

NYPL RESEARCH LIBRARIES

3 3433 06733191 2

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

COF
Bickhan

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.hbtonline.com.cn

DELICIÆ BRITANNICÆ; OR, THE CURIOSITIES

www.libtool.com.cn

Hampton-Court and Windsor-Castle,

DELINEATED;

1597

WITH

OCCASIONAL REFLECTIONS;

And embellish'd with

COPPER-PLATES of the TWO PALACES, &c.

BY

GEORGE BICKHAM, jun.

The Whole attempted with a View, not only to engage the Attention of the Curious; but to inform the Judgments of those, who have but the least Taste for the Art of Painting.

Utile dulci. — HOR.

16

*He, and He only aims aright,
Who joins Instruction with Delight.*

L O N D O N :

Printed, and Sold by T. COOPER, at the Globe in Pater-Noster-Row; G. BICKHAM, jun. in Moy's Buildings, Bedford-Court, Covent-Garden; and by most Booksellers in London and Westminster: As also, at the Mense, near Hampton-Court, and at the Royal-Standard, near Windsor-Castle.
Price Pound 2 s. 6 d. M.D.CC.XLII.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

277343B

ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

R

1944

L

T H E
P R E F A C E.

THE principal Design of the following Treatise is to set the best Pieces of the best Painters in the fairest and most advantageous Point of Light; We flatter ourselves, that some few previous Reflections on the Nature and Beauty of that Art, in which they so happily excell'd, will be thought no improper, or disagreeable Amusement.

Among all the curious and delightful Arts, that of Painting (says Monsieur de Piles, who was a Connoisseur, and a famous French Writer) has always met with the most Admirers; insomuch, that the Number ber of them almost includes all Mankind. And amongst these, there are Multitudes daily found, who value themselves on the Knowledge of it; either, because they frequently are admitted into the Conversation of some of the best Painters, who have expatiated on the Beauties of their Profession; or, because they have had an Opportunity of seeing some of the most accurate Performances in that Way; or lastly, because their Taste is by Nature good. That Knowledge of theirs, however, (if it may with Propriety be so call'd) is so very superficial, and so ill-grounded, that they are altogether incapable of giving any tolerable Description of those particular Touches, wherein the Beauty of those Works, with which they are so highly transported, principally consists; or to account for the Errors and Imperfections of the greater Part of those, which they too partially censure and condemn.

The Art of Painting has likewise been display'd, in a very pompous Manner, by one Bellori, an ingenious Italian Writer, and an accurate Judge, but as he who reads his Dissertation, with any Degree of Pleasure, must have a Taste for the Philosophy

The PREFACE. v

phy of Plato, we shall purposely wave it, as being agreeable, comparatively speaking, but to a very few. www.dliffewl.com.cn

Without having Recourse, however, to any such abstruse Speculations, we may entertain a just Idea enough of the Perfections of Painting, not only from those numerous Qualifications, which are absolutely necessary to form a skilful Professor, but from the uncommon Honours that have been paid to the Art, by the greatest Monarchs in all Ages.

The Accomplishments then, which are properly requir'd, are these that follow.

1st, A good Judgment, that he may do nothing against Reason, and Verisimilitude, or a Conformity to Truth.

2dly, A docible Mind, that he may profit by Instructions, and receive, without Arrogance, the Opinion of every one, and principally of knowing Men.

3dly, A noble Heart, that he may propose Glory to himself, and Reputation, rather than Riches.

A 3

4thly

4thly, A Sublimity, and Reach of Thought, to conceive readily, to produce beautiful Ideas; and to work on their Subjects nobly, and after a lofty Manner, wherein we may observe somewhat, that is delicate, ingenious and uncommon.

5thly, A warm and vigorous Fancy, to arrive, at least, to some Degree of Perfection, without being tir'd with the Pains and Study, which are requir'd in Painting.

6thly, Health, to resist the Diffipation of Spirits, which are apt to be consum'd by unwearied Diligence, and constant Application.

7thly, Youth, because Painting requires a great Experience, and a long Practice.

8thly, Beauty, or Handsomeness, because a Painter delineates himself in all his Pictures; and Nature loves to produce her own Likeness.

9thly, A convenient Fortune, that he may give his whole Time to Study, and may work chearfully, without being haunted with the

The PREFACE. vii

the dreadful Image of Poverty, ever present to his Mind.

www.libtool.com.cn

10thly, Labour, because the Speculation is Nothing without the Practice.

11thly, A love for his Art. We suffer nothing in the Labour, which is pleasing to us: Or if it happen that we suffer, we are pleas'd with the Pain. And

Lastly, To be under the Discipline of a knowing Master, &c. because all depends on the Beginnings; and because, commonly the Scholar takes the Manner of his Master, and is form'd according to his Gusto.

If then, so many noble Qualities, as are here enumerated, are requisite for the Attainment of this single Art, surely he must be insensible, that is not touch'd with its Beauties.

The Charms of Painting will further appear, if we consider the Advantage it has over all other Arts, and the Honours that have in all Ages been paid to the Professors of it.

Tho'

viii The P R E F A C E.

Tho' Poetry, 'tis true, is her Sister-Art, yet even She, with all her Allurements, cannot stand in Competition with her. For herein, her Superiority consists, that amongst so great a Diversity of Languages, she makes herself understood by all the Nations of the World ; and, that she is necessary to all other Arts, because of the need which they have of demonstrative Figures, which often give more Light to the Understanding, than the clearest Discourses we can make : Horace, in his Art of Poetry, says,

*Hearing excites the Mind by slow Degrees ;
The Man is warm'd at once by what he sees.*

This Art, moreover, by its Altar-pieces, and other beautiful Decorations, has been very serviceable to Religion itself, and has made stronger Impressions on the Mind, than the most elaborate Discourses. Gregory of Nice, after having made a long, and beautiful Description of Abraham's Oblation of his Son Isaac, concludes in the following Terms. “ I have often cast my Eyes “ upon a Picture, which represents this moving “ Object, and could never withdraw them with- “ out Tears. So well did the Picture represent
“ the

The PREFACE. ix

" the Thing itself, even as if the Action were " then passing before my Sight.

www.libtool.com.cn

We shall now conclude with shewing what Testimonies of Respect and Esteem were paid the antient Painters, by Persons of the highest Distinction.

The greatest Lords, whole Cities, and their Magistrates of old, (says Pliny) took it for an Honour to obtain a Picture from the Hands of the antient Painters. And in the 10th Chap. of his 35th Book, he informs us, that it was by the Authority of Alexander himself, that the young Gentlemen at Sicyon, and afterwards throughout all Greece, learnt, before all other Things, to Design upon Tables of Boxen-wood; and that the first Place among all the liberal Arts was given to Painting.

Demetrius gave incontestable Proofs of his uncommon Regard for the Professors of Painting, even when he was besieging the City of Rhodes: For he was pleas'd to employ some Part of that Time, which he ow'd to the Care of his Arms, in visiting Protogenes, who was then drawing the Picture of Jalyfus. This Jalyfus (as Pliny assures us) hindred Demetrius.

x The PREFACE.

metrius from taking Rhodes, for fear he should burn the Pictures; and not being able to take the Town on any other Side, he was pleas'd to spare the Painting, rather than take the Victory, which was already in his Hands.

Alexander had no greater Pleasure, than when he was in the Painting-room of Apelles, where he commonly was found. And that Painter once receiv'd a sensible Testimony of the great Esteem and Regard which that Monarch had for him; for having caus'd him to paint Campaspe, one of his favourite Concubines, quite naked, on Account of her incomparable Beauty, and perceiving that Apelles was smitten with her Charms, he generously made him a present of the dear Object of his Wishes.

But to come nearer to our own Times. Francis the First, King of France, was so charm'd with Painting, that he allur'd out of Italy all the best Masters; and amongst others, Leonardo de Vinci, who after having continued with him for some Time, dy'd at Fontainebleau, in the Arms of that great Monarch, who could not behold his Death without shedding Tears over him.

Charles

Charles the Fifth, has adorn'd Spain with the noblest Pictures that are now remaining in the World. That Emperor one Day took up a Pencil, which fell from the Hand of Titian, who was then drawing his Picture, and upon Titian's paying him a Compliment on that Occasion, he made him this immediate Reply, Titian has merited the Service of Cæsar. And the Author of the Life of Titian assures us, that Emperor valu'd himself more on his being made thrice Immortal by the Pencil of that inimitable Artist, than in subduing whole Kingdoms.

In short, that Monarch had such a Regard for Titian, that he loaded him with Riches. And whenever he sent him any Money, which for the Generality, was a considerable Sum, he always did it with this obliging Testimony, that his Design was not to pay him the Value of his Pictures, because they were above any Price; in Imitation of the Worthies of Antiquity, who bought the rarest Pictures with Bushels of Gold; without weighing it, or counting the Number of the Pieces therein contain'd.

I shall mention but one Instance more, and so conclude: Lewis the XIVth, of France, show'd

show'd as much Love for Painting at Home, as he did for Courage Abroad, and testify'd his Taste for it by the vast Encouragement he gave, and the valuable Presents which he made to Le Brun, who was his favourite Painter. He founded likewise an Academy for bringing the Art of Painting to its utmost Pitch and Perfection. And Monsieur Colbert, who was prime Minister, honour'd it, not only with his Favour and Protection, but his frequent Visits.

As to those Testimonies of Love and Esteem, which have been paid to the Professors of this Art in our own Nation, they are sufficiently demonstrated in the ensuing Discourse.

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

Hampton Court G. Bickham sc.

DELICIÆ BRITANNICÆ.

BOOK I.

THE ROYAL PALACE OF HAMPTON COURT.

HIS Magnificent Structure (we may venture to assert) is more agreeably situated (Windsor only excepted, of which we propose to give a particular Account hereafter) than any other of his Majesties Rural Recesses: It lies on the North-Bank of the River Thames, about two small Miles from the Antient Town of Kingston, and on the High-Road from Stains to London.
Notwithstanding it lies so close to the Riverside, yet it is never in the least incommoded by the Rise of the Waters, which, in other Places, is too often occasion'd by sudden Floods, or inordinate Tempests; and tho' not far from the Reflux of the Tides, yet 'tis at such a convenient Distance, as never to be influenc'd by any of those Impurities, which the Flowing of the Tides are too apt to create: Neither were the Gardens, tho' they extend almost to the very Margin of the River, ever known to be overflow'd: And what still renders its Situation more agreeable, there are no Marsh-Grounds, on either Side the River, to make the Waters stagnate, or the Air, upon that Account, either foggy or unhealthful.
B side

The River here is high enough to be navigable, and low enough to be agreeably rapid; so that, tho' the Stream moves but gently on, yet it does not sleep, or seem to stand still, like a Pond.

This easy Movement keeps the Waters forever clear and clean. In short, the Bottom is always in View, the wanton Fish are always visible, and nothing is wanting, that can render a River always entertaining.

Having thus given the Reader a transient Idea of the Situation of this beautiful Palace, I shall proceed in the next Place to speak of its antient, and illustrious Founder.

It was first rais'd from the Ground by that great Statesman, and Favourite of King Henry VIII. Cardinal Woolsey, and devolv'd on the Crown, in the Forfeiture of his Eminence, when

OF HAMPTON COURT. 15

when his then Majesty seiz'd his Effects and Estate, by which sudden Turn of Fortune, this Rural Seat, and that of Whitehall (another magnificent Mansion House of the Cardinal's Erection at his own Expence) was at his Majesty's Disposal at the same Time. Two such fine Palaces as the above mention'd, built at the sole Charge of one private Subject, will ever be lasting Monuments of the Pride and Ambition, as well as the almost inexhaustible Treasures of that imperious Prelate, who knew no Bounds to his Avarice, till he was overthrown at once, by incurring the Displeasure of his Royal, and Munificent Benefactor.

Tho' Hampton Court was (as before has been observ'd) a Recess in every Respect fit for a Prince, even in King Henry VIII's Time, yet it never appear'd in its full Glory, till the latter End of King William III. who greatly admiring the Situation, added several very elegant and pompous Apartments to it, causing the great Stair-Case, and some of the Ceilings to be painted by Signior Verrio, a very curious Artift, tho' much inferior to some of the great Masters, of whose Works we shall give a Description hereafter; for here are not only many Pieces of the most able Hands, but Hampton Court, as Mr. Richardson observes in his Essay on the Theory of Painting, is the great School of Rafaele, the most celebrated of them all.

But before we enter upon the Subject propos'd, in order to render this new Design as useful, and rational an Amusement as possibly we can, we shall from Time to Time have Recourse, not only to Modern History, as Occasion shall require, but to the justly admir'd Doctor King, Abbe lew. Lucbe, and Mr. Baniere, as the best, and most artful Expositors of the Mythology of the Antients: For there are different Species of Books expos'd to Public View, such as Pictures, Prints, Tapestry and Statues. These are so many Riddles to those who are ignorant of Fabulous History, to which we must be oblig'd very often to apply, for their better Illustration.

16 The ROYAL PALACE

Without making therefore any further Apology for, or Introduction to our present Undertaking, we will begin with the Entrance into this Palace, at the Gates of which there are four large Brick Piers; the two Inward, which form a Gate-way, are adorn'd with the Lion and Unicorn, the Royal Supporters, holding each of them a Shield, whereon are the Arms of Great Britain: On the two Outward are several Trophies of War, well carv'd, in Stone; with two small Portals on each Side.

Having pass'd through the long Courtyard, on each Side of which are Stabling for the Officers of his Majesty's Household, we proceed to the first Portal, which is a beautiful Piece of Brick-work, embellish'd with four Heads of the Roman Cæsars, two on each Side, with their respective Names under them: The first is Trajan, the second Adrian, the third Tiberius, and the last Vitellius. For what

OF HAMPTON COURT. 17

what Reason the Cardinal should chuse the Effigies of these four Emperors, of such different Characters, to decorate this Part of the Building, is not easily to be conjectured. Woolsey 'tis true, was a great Scholar, and a Patron of Men of Learning; so were Trajan and Adrian, and both Men of unblemish'd Character, and on that Account might claim his Esteem; but then Tiberius tho' a learned, was a very wicked Prince; one of his greatest Foibles however was, what the Cardinal could not fairly condemn, I mean his supporting and suffering himself to be manag'd at Will by his overgrown Favourite Sejanus. Vitellius had indeed no one good Quality to recommend him; but, like the Cardinal, was notorious for his dissolute and luxurious Course of Life. From this Portal spread two Wings, built in the same Taste, and a large Pavement, of a semi-circular Form in Front.

Thro' the Portal adorn'd (as just mention'd) with the four Heads, we pass into a large Quadrangle, remarkable for nothing curious, except its Spaciousness and Uniformity: This leads to a second Quadrangle, where, over the Portal, is a beautiful Astronomical Clock, the Workmanship and Contrivance of the late celebrated Tompion, on which are curiously represented the Rising and Setting of the Sun, his gradual Progression thro' the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, the various Phases of the Moon, and other such emblematical Amusements, as justly make it the Object of universal Admiration. And here, in order to instruct, as well as entertain our Readers, we shall give them, in this Place, Abbe le Lucbe's Historical Account of the Origin of the Zodiack, and his agreeable Explication of its respective Hieroglyphicks.

18 The ROYAL PALACE

The old Egyptians, says he, having first observ'd the four natural divisions of the Year, perceiv'd that the Sun, in each of these Seasons, was plac'd successively under distinct Stars. In order, therefore, to be as exact as possibly they could, and to parcel out the Year in such a Manner, as should be commodious and unalterable, they divided each of the four Seasons into three Cantons of different Stars, and the whole Year into twelve Houses, or Stations of the Sun, to which they gave the Names of twelve different Animals, that had Relation to what was transacted upon Earth, in each of those Divisions of the Year.

The Sun, in Spring, covers the Earth with a vast Variety of inestimable Blessings. Those which the Antients were peculiarly fond of, and valu'd most, were Sheep, Kine, and Goats. In order to adumbrate, therefore, those numberless Benefits, and that Fecundity which was restor'd to them by the Spring, they gave to the three Constellations, thro' which the Sun passes in the Spring, the Names of those three different Creatures. The first Constellation under which the Sun is found when the Winter is withdrawn, and the Days and Nights are equal, was distinguish'd by the Name of the first Animal.

OF HAMPTON COURT. 15

imal that is usually brought forth at that particular Period, that is to say, the Lamb, or its Parent, the Ram. The second bore the Title of the Bull: And, as the Goats, who are hot in November, and pregnant for five Months, bring forth two young Ones oftner than one, at the Expiration of that Term, the third Constellation of the Spring bore the Denomination of the Twins, or Kids.*

When the Sun is arriv'd at the Summer Solstice, he advances no farther towards the Pole, but returns with abundance of Gravity and Precaution, as it were, to the Equator; for which reason, the Egyptians thought proper to assign the Name of the Crab to those Stars under which he then appears. The Manner in which this Animal marches is well known, and nothing could more aptly adumbrate the Retrogradation of the Sun. The excessive Heats which next come on, and the full Lustre in which that glorious Luminary then appears, induc'd them to give the Constellation under which he then moves, the Name of the Lion, the King and Terror of all the terrestrial Animals. The Harvest, which immediately succeeds, inclin'd them to delineate the sixth Constellation, by the Figure of a young Female Reaper, bearing an Ear of Corn. The Emblem, or Allusion, is taken from those young

* The Greeks substituted in their Room, tho' without any Foundation, the two Brothers, Castor and Pollux.

Vir-

20 The ROYAL PALACE

Virgins, who gain'd their Livelihood by gleaning after the Reapers; and nothing could be a more lively Representation of that Season of the Year, when Providence is lavish, as it were,
of her Favours, and supplies both rich and poor with Plenty of Provisions.

"T would be impossible to express that which the Equinox falls under, and equals Day and Night by any better Symbol, than that of a Ballance in Aequilibrio. The various Distempers occasion'd by the Sun in his Retreat, or which break out in the middle of Autumn, made them give the next Set of Stars the Title of the Scorpion; because that Animal carries not only a Sting, but a Bag of Poison in his Tail, and makes use of both, as he finds Occasion. The Sagittary, or Archer * who follows that destructive Animal; has a visible Relation to the Chace, or the Diversion of Hunting, which is principally follow'd after the Fall of the Leaf. As the Crab, that crawls with a retrograde Motion, was made the Symbol of the Summer Solstice, after which the Sun always returns to the Equator; so on the other Hand, in order to delineate the Winter Solstice, after which the Sun rises, and continues his progressive Motion to the other Tropick, the Name of Capricorn, or the Goat was chosen; because these Animals most commonly climb as they browse, and continue as-

The Greeks, instead of a Hunter, have substituted the Fabulous Idea of a Centaur.*

ending

OF HAMPTON COURT. 21

cending; and feeding, till they have reach'd the Summit of the Rocks and Mountains. The Water-Pot is a lively Image of the Hail, Rain and Snow, that fall in the dark, Winter Season. And lastly, the two Fish, which are link'd together by a Fillet or Bandage, seem to have Reference to the Generation of those Animals, who make their Appearance about the Close of Winter, at which Period Angling begins to come in Season.

But to return to our Quadrangle:---On the left Hand is the old great Hall, in which, by his late Majesty's Command, was erected a Theatre, wherein, as Mr. Gibber the Comedian, in his Apology for his own Life, Page 447. assures us, it was intended that two Plays should have been acted every Week, during the Time of the Court's Continuance there; however, seven Plays only, it seems, were perform'd in it, by the Comedians from Dru-ry-Lane, that very Summer it was erected; and one afterwards, in the Year 1751. for the Entertainment of the Duke of Lorrain, now Grand Duke of Tuscany.

In the Front is a Brick Portal, adorn'd with four Cæsar's Heads, but whole in particular, we are at a Loss to determine; this Part of the Building was repair'd in his present Majesty's Reign, as appears by a Key-Stone over the Gate, on which are the Letters G. R. and the Year of our Lord MDCCLXXII.

On the Right Hand of this Quadrangle there is a Stone Colonade, consisting of fourteen Pillars,

22 The ROYAL PALACE

Pillars, and two Pilasters of the Ionic Order, with an Entablature and Ballustrade at Top, decorated in the Middle with two large, carv'd Vases. This leads to the great Stair-Case, on which ~~are painted, at the~~ Top, on the left Side, as you come in, Apollo and the Nine Muses; representing a fine Concert of Musick, at whose Feet sits the God Pan, with his unequal Reeds; and a little below them, the Goddess Ceres, holding a Wheat-Sheaf in her left Hand, and pointing to several Loaves of Bread with her Right; in which she ds a Chaplet of Flowers; near her are the River Gods, Thame and Iffs, with their Urns, and behind them, two River Nymphs: A large Table is plac'd in the Middle with a large Quantity of rich gilt Plate upon it, adorn'd with Flowers. This Part of the Painting is a lively Representation of the Marriage of Thame and Iffs; alluding to the Palace being erected on the River, which takes its Name from the Union of their Streams. Apollo and the Muses are introduc'd into the Piece, as being the Deities who presid'd over all sacred Banquets, and were as much the Protectors of Mirth and Festivity, as of Poetry and Musick. Pan and Ceres have Allusion to the Fields and Meadows about Hampton Court, and Flora to the Gardens.

On the Cieling are painted Jupiter and Juno, seated on a rich Throne, with Ganymede riding upon Jupiter's Eagle, and presenting him the Cup. Juno's Peacock is in the Front; and

HAMPTON COURT. 23

and one of the Parcæ, or fatal Sisters, is waiting with her Scissors in her Hand, ready to cut the Thread of Life, whenever Jove should give her Orders. The Whole is cover'd with a fine Canopy, surrounded with the Signs of the Zodiack, and several Zephyrs, with Flowers in their Hands. On one Side of them is Fame, with her two Trumpets. This Piece is a Compliment paid to King William and Queen Mary; the Peacock is an Emblem of their Grandeur, the Destiny denotes their Power over the Lives of their Subjects, and the Zephyrs represent their mild and courteous Disposition tow'rds them.

Underneath this is a beautiful Figure of Venus, in an easy, careless Posture, with one Leg on a Swan, and Cupid riding on another, whilst Mars is making his Addresses to her as a Lover.

On the right Hand are Pluto and Proserpine, Cælus and Terra, Cybele, crown'd with a Tower, and others: Neptune and Amphitrite in the Front, and two Attendants, serving them with Nectar and Fruits.

On the left is Bacchus and his Attendants. He is drest in a Leopard's Skin, thrown over his Shoulders, and a Crown of Grapes upon his Head. He leans on a rich Ewer; his left Hand rests on Silenus's Head, who sits on an Ass that is fallen down, and seems to catch at a Table, to which the Goddess Diana above is pointing. The Table is supported by Eagles. On one Side of it sits Romulus, the Founder

24 The ROYAL PALACE

Founder of Rome, who seems very attentive, and looks up to Jupiter. There is a Wolf by his Side, by which, according to the received Notion, he was suckled with his Twin Brother Remus, when their Uncle Numitor had order'd them both to be cast into the River Tyber; but the Messenger employ'd in this wicked Design, having laid the Children gently down among some Rushes, they were found by the Shepherd Fausulus, who deliver'd them to his Wife to nurse, from whose Name, being Lupa, the Fable of their being suckled by a Wolf took its Rise.

On the other Side of the flying Table, is Hercules, drest in a Lion's Skin, and leaning on his Club. All the above Figures are painted in the Clouds. In another Pannel is Peace, holding a Laurel in her Right Hand, and in her Left, a Palm over Æneas's Head, who stands on the left Hand, and seems to invite the Twelve Cæsars, who are all standing together on the right, to a Celestial Banquet; amongst whom is the celebrated Spurina, the Soothsayer. The Genius of Rome is hovering over their Heads, with a flaming Sword, the Emblem of Destruction, and a Bridle, the Symbol of Government, both in her Right Hand.

This Prospect of Rome, with the flaming Sword and Bridle in the Hand of her Genius, seems an Allusion to the Revolution, at which Time, had it not been for the Assistance of our great and glorious Deliverer, King William

Of HAMPTON COURT. 25

Jiam III. the British Nation had felt again the Weight of the Romish Yoke.

In another Pannel is Julian the Apostate, writing at a Table, with Mercury, the God of Eloquence attending on him, in Allusion to the fine Writings of that wicked Emperor, who was an inveterate Enemy to the Christian Religion, notwithstanding his Education in it, and his Service at the Altar.

He was the Son of Constantius, Brother of Constantine the Great. His Mother's Name was Basilina. His first Tutor in Grammer was one Mardonius, an Heathen Eunuch, who resided at Constantinople. Ecebolius, one that waver'd in the Faith, was the next that instructed him in the Art of Rhetorick, at Nicomedia, to which Place he was sent by the Emperor, in order that Eusebius, who was Bishop of that Place, and his Kinsman, might improve him in Virtue and good Manners; but he was shamefully corrupted by one Maximus, who was not only a Philosopher, but a Magician. His Cousin Constantius, being inform'd of his dissolute Course of Life, and Julian dreading his Resentment, made himself a Monk: But tho' he behav'd in that Capacity to all outward Appearance as a good Christian, he was a very Heathen in private. Before this Time, both he and his Brother Gallus were constituted Clerks, and discharg'd the Office of Public Readers in the Church-Assemblies. The latter was a Zealot, and was very sanguine in the Erection of a Church, in H. A.

26 The ROYAL PALACE

Mour to Mammas the Martyr; the other, indeed, join'd with him in the Undertaking, but was perfectly remiss, and regardless of performing his proportionable Part. In Process of Time, Constantius, at the earnest Solicitation of his Royal Consort Eusebia, declar'd him Cæsar: And in the Year 335, he married Helena, the Emperor's Sister. He had formerly been sent into Gaul, where he overcame the Barbarians, and by vanquishing seven German Kings, restor'd Peace to those Provinces. His Deportment was so exemplary, and seemingly virtuous, that it gain'd him the universal Affection and Esteem of the Roman Legions; insomuch that in the Year 36, soon after the Death of Constantius, he was establish'd on his Throne. The Mask thereupon was immediately thrown off, and he caus'd the Idol-Temples of the Heathens publickly to be open'd; and not only restor'd their Worship, but assum'd the Office himself of their High-Priest: In short, he religiously observ'd all their Rites and Ceremonies, and endeavour'd, by the Blood of Sacrifices, to efface the Character of his Christian Baptism. He recall'd all those Hereticks who had been banish'd by his Predecessor, and restor'd the Donatists to their respective Posts or Employments in Africa, and embrac'd every Opportunity that offer'd to injure or oppress the Christians, whom (by way of Ignominy and Reproach) he branded with the Title of Galileans: And so far did he carry his implacable Malice and Aversion towards them, that he

OF HAMPTON COURT. 27

he did not scruple to put the King of Persia's Embassadors to Death, for no other Reason, than that they profess'd themselves Christians. In the Disposal of all Places he prefer'd such as were strenuous Advocates for Idol-Worship, and punish'd all Christians who presum'd to open any Seminaries, or Schools for the Education of Youth, and us'd, in short, his utmost Endeavours to extirpate the Catholick Faith. For which Reason he gave extraordinary Encouragement to Pagan Tutors; and introduc'd the Religious Custom of singing alternately in the Idol-Temples, together with the Distinction of Places, the Forms of Prayers, and some faint Resemblance of Public Penance by way of Atonement for enormous Crimes. He propos'd to have built several Public Hospitals, for the Reception of such as were sick and poor; as also Monasteries, for the Education of young Virgins, but did not live to see those laudible Intentions accomplish'd. But above all, he tried all the Means in his Power to prevail on his Soldiers in general, but more particularly the Prætorian Guard, to renounce the Christian Religion; the greatest Part of them however despis'd and abhorr'd the impious Proposition, and chose rather to abandon their Posts, and forfeit his Favour and Protection, than to turn Apostates. Maris, Bishop of Chalcedon, having publickly reprimanded him for his wicked Proceedings, he answer'd him without any Warmth or Emotion, That his Galilaean, notwithstanding all his

28 The ROYAL PALACE

Zeal; would never cure him of his Blindness. To which impious Reflection Maris reply'd, I bless my Saviour, that being blind, I need not pollute my Eyes with beholding such a shameful Apostate as you are. This likewise the Emperor bore with all the Calmness imaginable, as thinking such a Reply not worthy of his Regard or Resentment.

He very much affected all such Acts of Clemency and Moderation, with a View to gain by that Means the greater Credit to his wicked and villainous Designs. He gave free Leave to the Jews to rebuild the Temple of Jerusalem, and finding himself indispensibly oblig'd to make War upon the Persians, he breath'd nothing but Vengeance and Destruction on the Church, as soon as he return'd; but rashly engaging with the Enemy with his Coat of Mail, he receiv'd an accidental Wound, whereof he died. Finding himself in a desperate Condition, he took a Handful of his Blood (according to Theodore) and casting it up to Heaven, said, Vicisti Galilae, that is, O Christ, thou hast overcome me, and instantly expir'd; on the twentieth Day of June, in the seventh Year of his Reign, in the thirty first Year of his Age.

Tho' so wicked a Man, it is allow'd on all Hands, that his acquir'd Parts were extraordinary, and that his Works are the just Objects of universal Admiration.

As to his Person, he had sparkling Eyes, a stern, wandering Countenance, a strait Nose,
his

OF HAMPTON COURT. 29

his Mouth somewhat of the biggeſt, a Slit in his Under-Lip, a thick Beard, which he wore picked, his Shoulders large and moving, his Head hanging down, which he always turn'd on one Side and t'other; he walk'd very faſt, altho' he was but little, and made a great Noiſe when he laugh'd.

Amongſt the many Pieces which he wrote, there was a Satirical Letter, that he call'd the Miſopogon, or Beard-hater, as a Teſtimony of his Contempt of the People of Antioch, who had endeavour'd to make him appear ridiculous.

Over the Door, at the Head of the Stairs, is a Fyra, or Funeral Pyle, done in Stone-Colour: Under the Paintings before mention'd, are thirty ſix Pannels, repreſenting Trophies of War, and other Decorations in the ſame Colour.

The Paintings on this Stair-Caſe are all the Works of Signior Verrio, an ingenious Italian, who laid out ſeveral Gardens, and painted ſeveral other Pieces here, as well as at Windsor, and at the Seats of many of the Nobility.

As we propoſe to give a ſuccinct Account of the ſeveral Painters and Sculptors under their Capital Performances; and as This is far from being his Maſter-piece, we ſhall introduce the Hiſtory of that juſtly admir'd Artiſt in another Place.

A large Glaſs Lanthorn, with ſixteen Nozzles in it, and an Imperial Crown at Top,
C. 3 hangs.

30 The ROYAL PALACE

hangs from the Cieling, by a strong Brass Chain doubly gilt.

The GUARD-CHAMBER.

From the Stair-Cafe, we pass into the Guard-Chamber, which contains Arms for five thousand Men, artfully dispos'd in various Forms. Fronting the Door are three Trophies of Drums, hanging in an uniform Manner under the Windows, five in each Trophy. There are Pilasters of Pikes, Bayonets, and Bandaleers, on each Side sixteen Pannels, which go round the Room, with a great Variety of Decorations and Figures, as Musquets in Chequer-Work, Stars made of Bayonets, Swords, &c. also Circles, Ovals, Hexagons, and Octagons; in the Centers of some are the fam'd Medusa's Head, of others Jupiter's Thunder, and other Devices carv'd upon a Shield: The Sides are garnish'd with Bandaleers.

The Arms were thus dispos'd by Mr. Harris, who was the Person that first contriv'd to place the Arms in the same beautiful Order in the small Armoury in the Tower of London, which is universally admir'd, by People of all Nations, who have the Curiosity to survey them. This Man was originally a common Gun-smith, but after he had given such publick Proof of his superior Genius, he was allow'd a Pension from the Crown for his Ingenuity.

Over the Chimney are the Arms of England, &c. with the Garter, and Motto round them.

Of HAMPTON COURT. 35

them; and underneath is a neat Cypher of a W, and over it the Royal Crown, curiously carv'd in Walnut-tree.

On the Right Hand of the Door as we enter, are the Halberts for the Yeomen of the Guard, eighteen in Number, and a little farther, six large Carbines, regularly plac'd on a Table.

The Room is very large and spacious, of an oblong Form, above sixty Feet long, and forty Feet wide. The Arms here are all taken down to be clean'd, and are replac'd once every Year in the Spring.

The KING's PRESENCE CHAMBER.

On the Left Hand of the Entrance, behind the Door, is a fine Picture, about eighteen Feet by fifteen, of King * William III. in Armour, with his Truncheon in his Hand, mounted on a stately Horse, with a long Tail, trampling on Trophies of War, by which lies a flaming Torch. Mercury and Peace are over Head, in a Cloud supporting the King's Helmet, decorated with Laurel; and a Cupid holds a Scroll, which at present is not legible. In the Bottom Part of the Picture, is Neptune with his Attendants, by the Side of a Rock, who seems to welcome the Hero on Shore: There is a Prospect of Ships likewise at a Distance: And a serene, blue Sky, with.

* N. B. All Pictures mark'd throughout the Work with this Asterism, are Capital Ones, and deserve the Spectators particular Attention.

out

32 The ROYAL PALACE

out a Cloud, except that which Mercury and Peace sit on. In the Front Ground is Plenty with her Cornucopia, offering a Branch of Olives, and Flora presenting Flowers.

The Room is hung with rich old Tapestry, that has no particular Story wrought in it; but Landscape-Work, with the Figures of Nymphs, Fawns, Satyrs, Nereides, &c.

In the Front, are the Canopy and Chair of State, which are of Crimson Damask, as are also the Stools: On the Back-part of the Canopy are the King's Arms, and round the Vallance the Crown and Cypher embroider'd in Gold. This Room, tho' called the second, is the first Presence Chamber of the King's Apartment.

The Ceiling is vaulted, from the Center of which hangs a fine Lustre of nineteen Branches.

This Picture which was painted by the late celebrated Sir Godfrey Kneller, is one of his Master-pieces, and a glorious Proof of his extraordinary Genius. The Drawing is good, and the Colouring beautiful; the Lights and Shadows are dispos'd in the most artful Manner: Each Figure is beautifully bold, and the Invention truly noble; for as it is well known, his Majesty landed in the West of England, the Sails of the Ships at a Distance are swelled with the East Wind, and the Hair of the Figure of Plenty is ruffled, and blows the same Way.

This

OF HAMPTON COURT. 33

This justly admir'd Painter was born at Lubeck, in the Lower Saxony, in the Year 1646, and was a Pupil of Rembrandt. He travell'd to Rome, and drew after the antique Statues and Busts, whereby he attain'd to the most beautiful and graceful manner of drawing a Likeness that any Painter was ever Master of: He was not so exact a Copyer of Nature in the minute Parts as Van Dyck, but what he added to her made ample Amends for what he neglected; for he gave a peculiar Grace and Dignity wherever the Character requir'd it; upon which Account, a noble Duke, who made no mean Figure, was once pleas'd to say to him, "Sir Godfrey, every Body tells me, "the Picture you have drawn for me is extremely like, and yet, methinks, when I "view myself and that together in the Glass, "I appear like a meer Poltroon to it.

He was so far from taking the Advantage of little Marks and Defects for a Likeness, in all his Pieces, that he left them quite out, and painted from those Parts that could make the Picture strike the Eye in the most agreeable Manner. As the mean, hard Likeness is the present Fashion, Kneller's great Abilities are not so much regarded at present, as they will doubtless be admir'd by Posterity.

Tho' he has drawn a great many slight Pictures, assisted by meaner Painters, from his want of Time and Multiplicity of Business; yet we have this to say in his Favour, that his best Pictures, such as the Dutchess of Grafton,
in

34 The ROYAL PALACE

in the Room, of which we are now speaking, the Chinese at Windsor, the Picture of Grinlin Gibbons at Houghton-hall, Archbishop Tillotson, a Half-length Lady at Mr. Baron Scrope's and several others, are equal at least, if not superior in Grace, to any Portraits in the World.

This great Master died in the Year 1723, and lies buried at Twickenham, near Whitton, where he had a good Estate, and a fine Seat; but there is a handsome Monument set up for him at the lower End of the North Isle in Westminster-Abby, which was design'd by himself, and executed by our present great Sculptor Mr. Rysbrack, on which is the following Inscription:

M. S.

GODEFREDI KNELLER
EQUITIS ROM. IMP. ET ANGLIÆ
BARONETTI PICTORIS REGIBUS CAROLO II. JACOBO II. GULIELMO III.
ANNÆ REGINÆ. GEORGIO.
QUI OBIT XXVI OCT.
ANN. MDCCXXHI. ÆTAT. LXXVII.

Kneller by Heav'n, and not a Master, taught,
Whose Art was Nature, and whose Pictures Thought,
When now two Ages he had snatch'd from Fate,
Whate'er was beautiful, and whate'er was great;

Crown-

Of HAMPTON COURT. 35

Crowned with Princes Honours, Poets Lays,
Due to his Merit and brave Thirst of Praise;
Living, great Nature fear'd he might out-vie
Her Works; and dying, fears herself may die.

A. P.

The Mention made by Mr. Pope, in these Lines, of Princes Honours, Poets Lays, alludes to his having been made a Knight of the Roman Empire, to his having been knighted by King William III. and made a Baronet by King George I. and to the many Compliments paid him by the English Poets, among which, those publish'd by the late ingenious Mr. Congreve, and the inimitable Mr. Addison, are allow'd to be touch'd up with the greatest Elegance; for which Reason we shall take the Liberty to transcribe them; and as there are particular Beauties in both, we shall leave our Readers themselves to give the Preference to which they please.

To

T O

Sir GODFREY KNELLER.

By Mr. CONGREVE.

I Yield, O Kneller, to superior Skill,
 Thy Pencil triumphs o'er the Poet's Quill;
 If yet my vanquish'd Muse exerts her Lays,
 It is no more to rival thee, but praise.

 Oft have I try'd, with unavailing Care,
 To trace some Image from the much-lov'd Fair;
 But still my Numbers uneffectual prov'd,
 And rather shew'd how much, than, whom, I lov'd :

But thy unerring Hand, with matchless Art,
 Has shewn my Eyes th' Impression in my Heart ;

The bright Idea both exists and lives,
 Such vital Heat thy genial Pencil gives :
 Whose daring Point, not to the Face confin'd
 Can penetrate the Heart, and paint the Mind.
 Others

Of HAMPTON COURT. 37

Others some faint Resemblance may express,
Which, as 'tis drawn by Chance, we find by Guess.

Thy Pictures raise no Doubts, when brought to View,

At once they're known, and seem to know us too.

Transcendent Artist! How compleat thy Skill!
Thy Pow'r to act, is equal to thy Will.

Nature and Art, in Thee, alike contend,
Not to oppose each other, but befriend:

For what thy Fancy has with Fire design'd,
Is by thy Skill both temper'd and refin'd.

As in thy Pictures, Light consents with Shade,

And each to other is subservient made,

Judgment and Genius so concur in Thee,

And both unite in perfect Harmony.

But after Days, my Friend, must do thee Right,
And set thy Virtues in unenvy'd Light.

Fame due to vast Desert is kept in Store,
Unpay'd, till the Deserver is no more.

Yet, 't'hou, in present, the best Part hast gain'd,
And from the chosen Few Applause obtain'd:
Ev'n He, who best could judge, and best could praise,

D

Has

38 The ROYAL PALACE

Has high extoll'd thee in his deathless Lays;
 Ev'n Dryden has immortaliz'd thy Name;
 Let that alone suffice thee; think That, Fame,
 Unfit I follow, where he led the Way,
 And court Applause, by what I seem to pay.
 Myself I praise, while I thy Praise intend,
 For 'tis some Virtue, Virtue to commend:
 And next to Deeds, which our own Honour raise,
 Is to distinguish Them, who merit Praise.

TO

T O

Sir GODFREY KNELLER,

On His PICTURE of

KING GEORGE I.

KNELLER, with Silence and Surprise,
We see Britannia's Monarch rise,
A Godlike Form, by Thee display'd
In all the Force of Light and Shade ;
And, aw'd by thy delusive Hand,
As in the Presence-Chamber stand.

The Magick of thy Art calls forth
His secret Soul, and hidden Worth,
His Probity and Mildness shows,
His Care of Friends, and Scorn of Foes.

D 2

In

40 The ROYAL PALACE

In ev'ry Stroke, in ev'ry Line,
Does some exalted Virtue shine,
And Albion's Happiness we trace
Thro' all the Features of his Face.

O! may I live to hail the Day,
When the glad Nation shall survey
Their Sovereign, thro' his wide Command,
Passing in Progress o'er the Land!
Each Heart shall bend, and ev'ry Voice
In loud applauding Shouts rejoice;
Whilst all his gracious Aspect praise,
And Crowds grow loyal as they gaze.

This Image, on the Medal plac'd,
With its bright Round of Titles grac'd,
And stamp'd on British Coins shall live;
To richest Ores shall Value give;
Or wrought within the curious Mould,
Shape and adorn the running Gold.
To bear this Form, the genial Sun
Has daily, since his Course begun,
Rejoic'd the Metal to refine,
And ripen'd the Peruvian Mine.

Thou, Kneller, long with noble Pride,
The foremost of thy Art, hast vy'd

With

OF HAMPTON COURT. 41.

With Nature in a generous Strife,
And touch'd the Canvas into Life:
Thy Pencil has, by Monarchs sought,
From Reign to Reign in Ermine wrought,
And, in their Robes of State array'd,
The Kings of half an Age display'd.

Here swarthy Charles appears, and there
His Brother, with dejected Air:
Triumphant Nassau here we find,
And with him bright Maria join'd;
There Anna, great, as when she sent
Her Army through the Continent,
E're yet her Hero was disgrac'd;
O, may fam'd Brunswick be the last,
(Tho' Heav'n should with my Wish agree,
And long preserve thy Art in Thee)
The last, the happiest British King,
Whom thou shalt paint, or I shall sing!

Wife Phidias, thus his Skill to prove,
Thro' many a God advanc'd to Jove,
And taught the polish'd Rocks to shine,
With Airs and Lineaments divine;
Till Greece amaz'd, and half afraid,
Th' assembled Deities survey'd.

42 The ROYAL PALACE

Great Pan, who went to chase the Fair,
 And lov'd the spreading Oak, was there;
 Old Saturn too, with up-cast Eyes,
 Beheld his abdicated Skies;
 And mighty Mars, for War renown'd,
 In Adamantine Armour frown'd :
 By him the Childless Goddess rose,
Minerva, studious to compose
 Her twisted Threads ; the Web she strung,
 And o'er a Loom of Marble hung ;
Thetis, the troubled Ocean's Queen,
 Match'd with a Mortal, next was seen,
 Reclining on a Funeral Urn,
 Her short liv'd darling Son to mourn.
 'The last was he, whose Thunder slew
 The Titan Race, a rebel Crew,
 That, from an hundred Hills ally'd,
 In impious Leagues their King defy'd.

This Wonder of the Sculptor's Hand
 Produc'd, his Art was at a Stand :
 For who wou'd hope new Fame to raise,
 Or risque his well-establish'd Praise,
 That his high Genius to approve,
 Had drawn a GEORGE, or carv'd a Jove ?

Of HAMPTON COURT. 43.

We shall now proceed to give a short Account of the remaining Curiosities in the Second Room, which we left unfinish'd.

Over the Chimney is a whole Length of the Marquis of Hamilton, Lord Steward of the Household to King Charles I. painted by Van Somer.

Over the Doors are two Pieces of Architecture, beautifully painted by Rosso, an Artist of great Reputation, some of whose best Works are in the Galleries of the French King's Palace of Fontainbleau. He was a great Architect, as well as Painter, and so highly esteem'd by Francis I. that he made him Super-intendant General of all his Buildings, Pictures, &c. gave him a considerable Pension; and allow'd him such Opportunities of making his Fortune, that he liv'd for a considerable Time, in such Affluence and Splendor, that few Princes made a greater Figure.

However, at the End of this Painter was somewhat extraordinary, we presume a short Relation of it will be thought no disagreeable Amusement.

ROSSO, after he was grown immensely rich, was robb'd of a large Sum of Money, and as he unfortunately imagin'd, by one Francisco Pelegrino, a Florentine, who was one of his most intimate Friends, as well as his Countryman. Upon which Suspicion, he procur'd an Order for his Imprisonment, and caus'd him to be put to the Torture; which he underwent with such Resolution and Courage,
and

44 The ROYAL PALACE

and asserted his Innocence, in the Height of the most agonizing Pains, with such Constancy, that he was honourably acquitted.

Our unhappy Painter, partly out of Remorse for this inhuman Treatment of his injur'd Friend, and partly out of Fear of the fatal Consequences of his most just Repentment, dispatch'd himself by Poison, in 1541, and in the forty fifth Year of his Age.

The SECOND PRESENCE-CHAMBER.

Over the Chimney is a whole Length of Christian IV. King of Denmark, by Van Somer. This Picture, as most of the large ones are, is decorated round the Frame on the Outside with Festoons of Fruits and Flowers, beautifully carv'd in High-relief, in Lime Wood.

Over all the Doors are Pieces of Ruins and Landscapes by Rossò.

The Hangings of this Room are very ancient Tapestry, but very rich, the Lights being all Gold, and the Shadows Silk; the Subject of those on the Left is Hercules and the Hydra; and those on the Right is Midas with his Asses Ears.

The Room is spacious, with a vaulted Ceiling, from the Center of which hangs a gilt Chandelier of twelve Branches. The Chair of State and Stools are of Crimson Damask, fring'd with the same Colour. Here are two Tables of fine Marble, which have Pieces

Of HAMPTON COURT. 45
Pier-Glasses over them, with gilt Stands on each Side.

The AUDIENCE ROOM.

Over the Chimney is a whole Length of Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia, who was his present Majesties Great Grand-mother, and the Daughter of King James I. Her Husband Frederick V. Prince Elector Palatine of the Rhine, and herself likewise, were drove out of their Kingdom, for Want of the seasonable Support of her Father. She came over into England the Year after the Restoration of her Nephew, King Charles II. and died about nine Months after that in London, at the Lord Craven's in Drury-Lane, in the Year 1662.

Over each of the Doors in this Room, is a Madonna, by Domenico Fetti, who, by studying the Works of Giulio Romano at Mantua, became an excellent Imitator of that great Master. He died in the Year 1624, in the 35th
Year of his Age.

The Tapestry is fine; the Subject on one Side Abraham and Lot dividing their Lands; and on the other, God appears to Abraham in the Front, and Abraham is purchasing a Piece of Ground for a Burying-place.

The Room is lofty : In the Middle hangs a beautiful Chandelier of Silver chas'd, with sixteen Branches. Between the Windows are Glasses;

46 The ROYAL PALACE

Glasses; and under them Tables, finely carv'd and gilt Stands on each Side.

Here is a fine Canopy of State, with Window-Curtains, Chair and Stools of rich Crim-son Damask, lac'd, and fring'd with Gold.

The DRAWING-ROOM.

Over the Chimney-Piece is a whole Length of King * Charles I. which is universally allow'd to be the finest Representation of him that ever was painted, and one of the Master-pieces of that great Artist Sir Anthony Van Dyck. Tho' his Majesty is dress'd indeed in his Royal Robes, yet he is drawn in a dejected Posture, and with an Air of Sorrow in his Countenance, to intimate to the Spectator, that he was just entering into his Troubles at the Time when he sat for his Picture: And tho' the Piece in general be dark, yet there is a peculiar Brightness in the Face and Hands.

We shall here give our Readers the Character and History of this great Master, extract-ed from Mr. Graham's short Account of the Painters.

Sir Anthony Van Dyck (says our Author) was born at Antwerp, in the Year 1599; and gave such early Testimonies of his most excellent Endowments, that Rubens, his Master, jealous of his being soon as universally approv'd of as himself, in order to divert him from History-Pieces, would frequently commend his peculiar Talent in painting after the Life,

OF HAMPTON COURT. 47

Life, and took such Care to keep him constantly employ'd in that particular Branch, that he determin'd at last to make it his principal Study; and for his further Improvement travell'd to Venice, where he attain'd the beautiful Colouring of Titian, Paolo Veronese, &c. And after a few Years spent in Rome, Genoa, and Sicily, he return'd Home to Flanders, with a Manner of Painting so noble, natural and easy, that Titian himself was hardly his Superior; and no other Master in the World equal to him for Portraits.

He came into England soon after Rubens left it, and was retain'd in the Service of King Charles I. who conceiv'd a very high Esteem for all his Works, honour'd him with Knight-hood, made him a Present of his own Picture, set round with Diamonds, settled on him a considerable Pension, sat very often to him for his Portrait; as did most of the Nobility and principal Gentry of the Kingdom after him.

Tho' he was a Person of but a low Stature, yet he was well proportion'd; and tho' very handsome, was modest, affable and courteous: He was likewise a great Encourager of all those who excell'd in any Art or Science whatsoever, and generous to the last Degree. He married one of the most beautiful Ladies of the English Court, the Daughter of Lord Rutben, Earl of Gowry, and liv'd in State and Grandeur answerable to her Birth. As to his Dress, it was generally very rich, his Coaches and Equipage were very magnificent, his Re-

tinue

48 THE ROYAL PALACE

tinue numerous and gay : His Table was so splendid, and so much frequented by People of the best Quality of both Sexes, that his Apartments were more like the Court of a Prince, than the Lodgings of an Artificer.

Towards the latter End of his Life, he grew weary of the constant Fatigue of Face-Painting ; and being ambitious of immortalizing his Name by some more bold and arduous Undertaking, went to Paris, with a View of being employ'd in the Service of the French King, but not meeting with that Encouragement he expected, he return'd to London ; and being introduc'd at Court by his Friend Sir Kennelm Digby, he propos'd to make Cartones for the Banqueting-House at Whitehall : The Subject of which was intended to have been the Institution of the Order of the Garter, the Procession of the Knights in their Habits, with the Ceremony of their Installment at St. George's Feast. But as his Demands at first of Four-score Thousand Pounds were thought very unreasonable, whilst the King was treating with him for a more moderate Sum, the Gout and other Distempers put an End to his Life, in the Year 1641, in the 42d Year of his Age : And his Body was interr'd in St. Paul's Cathedral.

DU FRESNOY, speaking of Rubens, says, his School was full of admirable Disciples, amongst whom, Van Dyck was the Man, that best comprehended all the Rules and general Maxims of his Master ; and even excell'd him in the Delicacy of his Colouring, and in his Cabinet-

Cabinet Pieces; his Taste however, in regard to the Designing Part, was nothing superior he owns, to that of Rubens.

In the same Room where this fine Picture of King Charles I. is, there are two capital Pictures over the Doors.* The Subject of the First is, the Scripture-History of David cutting off Goliath's Head. The Former is here represented as a very little Person. The Head of the Latter is very large, and of a fine dead Colour. The Sword likewise, with which it was cut off, is very large. This beautiful Piece was painted by Fetti, of whom we have already given a short Account. The Other, which is a Representation of the * Holy Family was painted by Correggio, of whom Du Fresnoy gives this Account, that he painted at Parma two large Cupola's in Fresco, and some Altar-Pieces. This Artist found out certain natural and unaffected Graces, says he, for his Madonna's, his Saints, and little Children, which were peculiar to him. Tho' his Manner is exceeding great, yet neither the Design, nor the Work is perfectly correct. His Pencil was both easy and delightful, and it must be acknowledg'd that he painted with great Strength, great Heightning, great Sweetness, and Liveliness of Colours, in which none excell'd him.

He had such a Manner of distributing his Lights, as was peculiar to himself; which gave a great Force and Roundness to his Figures. He would extend a large Light, and then make it lose itself insensibly in the Dark Shadowing, which he plac'd out of the Masses with surprising Art. And those give them that Roundness, without our being capable of perceiving from whence such Force, and such an agreeable Amusement to the Eye arises. In all Probability, continues Du Fresnoy, the rest of the Lombard School copied him in this Particular. He was not, however, over-curious in his Choice of the most graceful Attitudes, neither had he the Talent of setting a Group of Figures in the most advantageous Light: His Designs are frequently imperfect, and the Positions in them not duly observ'd. Tho' the Aspects of his Figures are too often disagreeable to the Eye; yet his Manner of designing Heads, Hands, Feet, and other Parts, is very great, and justly deserves our Imitation. His Art was most conspicuous in conducting his Pictures, and knowing when to leave off; for there was such an Union in his Painting, that his greatest Works seem'd to have been the Performance only of a Day; and appear as if we saw them from a Looking-Glass. His Landscapes are no less beautiful than his Figures, and the just Objects of our Admiration.

E

then

50 The ROYAL PALACE

Mr. Richardson gives an Instance of this Painter's Fancy, in a Danae of his, wherein he has finely express'd the Sense of that Story; for upon the Descent of the Golden Shower, Cupid draws off her Linen, and two Loves are trying a Dart tipp'd with Gold upon a Touch-stone.

This

Of HAMPTON COURT. 51

This ANTONIO ALLEGRI, generally call'd Correggio, from the Place where he was born, in the Dukedom of Modena, was a Man of such natural Parts, that nothing but his unhappy Education, which gave him no Opportunities of studying Abroad, or of consulting the Antients, in order to perfect himself in Design, prevented him from being the most conspicuous Painter in the World. He had a Genius however so sublime, and was Master of a Pencil so inexpressibly soft, tender, and beautiful, that Giulio Romano, on seeing a Leda and a naked Venus, which he painted for Frederick Duke of Modena, as Presents for the Emperor, was pleas'd to declare, that it was impossible, in his Opinion, for any Thing of Colours to go beyond them. His chief Works are at Modena and Parma, at which last Place he spent the greatest Part of his Life in Obscurity, and work'd hard to maintain his Family, which was somewhat large, without meeting with that Encouragement which was due to his Merit.

He was extremely humble and modest in his Deportment : He led a very religious Life, and was much lamented at his Death, which happen'd in the Fortieth Year of his Age (in 1534) by drinking some cold Water, when he was over hot, and over fatigu'd with carrying home some Copper Money, to the Value of about sixty Crowns, which he had receiv'd for one of his Pieces.

The other Furniture of this Room consists of a rich Chair of State and Stools, two large Marble Tables between the Windows, with Pier-Glasses up to the Ceiling, and two Pair of fine gilt Stands: The Window-Curtains are Tissue, with a Silver Ground. There are six Silver Sconces on the Tapestry, which is richly woven in with Gold, but, is very ancient; the Subject, the Scripture-Story of Abraham sending his Servants to get a Wife for Isaac.

The STATE-BED-CHAMBER.

Over the Doors are two * Pieces of Flowers beautifully painted by Baptist.

Over the Chimney is a whole Length of the Dutchess of York (Daughter of the Lord Chancellor Hyde, and Mother to Queen Mary and Queen Anne) painted by Van Somer; under which, and over the two Doors is a large Collection of China, plac'd there by Queen Mary, who was peculiarly fond of that Sort of Ware.

The Tapestry is the History of Joshua, all round the Room, which is very spacious.

The Ceiling was painted by Verrio. The Subject of one Part of it is Endymion and the Moon: Endymion is lying with his Head in Morpheus's Lap, and Diana, in her Crescent, viewing him with the utmost Attention as he sleeps.

The

OF HAMPTON COURT. 53

The Story is this. Endymion, who was a peculiar Favourite of the Moon, was the Son of Æthlius, and Grandson of Jupiter, who took him up into Heaven, where he attempted to violate the Chastity of Juno, upon which Jupiter cast him into a perpetual Sleep: Diana hid him from the Sight of Jupiter, in a Cave on Mount Latmos, where she had fifty Daughters by him, and amongst others a Son, called Ætolus, from whom the Country of Hyanthis took the Name of Ætolia.

ENDYMION, in reality, was a good and just King of Elis, and an Astronomer, who study'd the Motions of the Moon, and for that Reason would frequently pass whole Nights in the most retir'd Places, in order to make his Observations on her without Interruption.

On another Part of the Cieling is a fine Figure of Somnus, or Sleep, with his Attendants. In the Border are four Landscapes, and four Boys, with Baskets of Flowers, intermix'd with Poppies.

The Bed is of Crimson Velvet, lac'd with Gold, and adorn'd with white Plumes of Feathers on the Top. There are likewise in this Room eight Silver Sconces chas'd, with the Judgment of Solomon upon them; a fine black and Gold India Screen; a large Pier Glass, ornamented with Glass; that is cut and ting'd with blue; a Marble Table, and two gilt Stands: And in one Corner, an eight-Day Clock in a Walnut-tree Case.

54 The ROYAL PALACE

The KING'S DRESSING-ROOM.

www.libtool.com.cn

Over the Doors are fine Flower-Pieces by Baptist.

The Cieling is painted by Verrio, the Subject, Mars and Venus. Mars is sleeping in Venus's Lap; several Cupids are stealing away his Armour; some his Coat, others his Shield, Helmet, Sword and Spear; while others are binding him about the Legs and Arms with Fetters of Roses. The Border is embellish'd with Jeffamin, Orange Trees in Pots, and several Sorts of Birds.

The Room is about twelve Feet long, and six wide; and in it are two Windows, with rich Window Curtains, a neat Table between them, on which stands a Clock; and on the right Hand is a curious Weather-Glass. The Hangings are of Straw-colour'd India Damask; the Chair, and Screen are of the same.

The KING'S WRITING-CLOSET.

Over each Door is a Piece of Flowers by Baptist, in a contrast Taste; and over the Chimney is a fine Picture by Bougdane of all Sorts of *Birds; the Peacock in Front, and the principal Figure.

OF HAMPTON COURT. 55

In the left Hand Corner is a curious Weather-Glass; and in another Part of the Room, an Indian Cabinet, fill'd at top with fine China, plac'd there by the late Queen Mary.

This Closet is of a Triangular Form, and has two Windows. The Hangings and Stools are of a Pea-Green India Damask; there is a fine Collection of China over the Chimney, and a Glass there so plac'd, as to shew all the Rooms that are on that Side of the Building at once.

QUEEN MARY'S CLOSET.

Over the Chimney is an ancient Painting, said to be Rafaele's, but if so, it must certainly have been in his younger Days: 'Tis a Representation of Jupiter's Throne, by which is the Thunder, and his Eagle in the Clouds, with some Figures in the Posture of Suppliants, notwithstanding Jupiter is absent.

The Hangings are all Needlework, wrought by the Queen's own Hand: Here are likewise an Easy-Chair, four others, and a Screen, all said to be the Work likewise of that pious Queen, whose Beauty, good Sense, and other fine Accomplishments made her universally belov'd, and rever'd by all that knew her.

The Work we are now speaking of must be allow'd to be extremely neat; and in particular, the Figures, which are chiefly Flowers,

56 The ROYAL PALACE

ers, are all well shadow'd, perhaps equal to the best Tapestry, and shew great Judgment in the Drawing.

In this Closer, which is but small, are three Windows.. Here is a fine Pier-Glass, with a blue Border; a large Table and pair of Strands of Lead, inlaid with Brass, and a curious Parcel of China over the Chimney; a gilt Tea-Table, and a writing Desk.

The END of the KING's APARTMENT.

THE

T H E
Q U E E N's
A P A R T M E N T.

The QUEEN'S GALLERY.

THIS is likewise call'd the Tapestry Gallery, and is about seventy Feet long, and twenty-five Feet wide ; where hang the seven fine Pieces of Tapestry, which contain the History of Alexander the Great, done after the famous Paintings of Le Brun, an Account of whose Life we shall give our Readers in this Place.

CHARLES LE BRUN was born at Paris, in 1620, and came into the World with all the happy Dispositions requisite to form a great Master.

Master. He began his Studies under the Direction of Simon Vouet, and finish'd them at Rome, by the Indulgence of Monsieur the Chancellor Seguier, who first took Notice of him, by seeing him one Day with his Father, who was a common Carver, that was employ'd in the Gardens of the Hotel Segulier, and frequently brought his Son with him, in order to make him copy some Designs after him. Monsieur Segulier, one Day walking in his Gardens, saw the Lad Designing, and observ'd that he did it in a very pretty Taste, and with such Ease, for one of his Years, as gave just Hopes of a rising Genius; he recommended him therefore to Vouet, who was at that time painting the Library of the Hotel Segulier.

LE BRUN, when but fifteen Years of Age, drew two Pictures, that surpriz'd the Painters of those Times: The first was the Portrait of his Grandfather; and the other was a Representation of Hercules knocking down Dionides's Horses. The Chancellor Seguier, some Time after, perceiving by Le Brun's Ambition to learn, and the Progress he had made in his Art, that he was well qualify'd for travelling, sent him into Italy, in 1639, where for three Years successively he allow'd him a very handsome Pension.

The first Testimonies of his more than common Abilities, after his Return Home, were the Prize Pictures, which he painted two Years together for the Church of Notre Dame.

The

The first Year he painted the Martyrdom of St. Peter ; and the second, that of St. Stephen.

His Reputation was now so well establish'd, that Monsieur Foucquet, Superintendant of the Finances, employ'd him to paint his fine House at Vaux le Vicomte, and in order to engage him wholly in his Service, not only paid him for his Work, but allow'd him a Pension of twelve Thousand Livres a Year besides.

After Mr. Foucquet fell into Disgrace, his Pencil had obtain'd such a Character, that the King, on the Recommendation of Monsieur Colbert, made him his principal Painter, and ennobled him, and honour'd him with the Order of St. Michael.

His Genius was lively, penetrating, and equal to whatever he undertook. His Invention was easy, and his Talent universal, Landscapes only excepted. His Colouring, indeed was not so much admir'd ; nor was the Distribution of his Lights and Shadows so artful, as could have been wish'd ; but his Taste for Designing, his fine Choice of Attitudes, the agreeable Manner in which he dispos'd his Draperies, the Justness of his Expression, and, in a Word, his strict Regard for the Decorum, must ever be approv'd of, and be admir'd by the nicest Judges.

His capital Works are the Ceilings of the Gallery, and grand Stair-Case of Versailles ; and his large Pieces contain the History of Alexander the Great : The Tapestry at Hampton ton

60 The ROYAL PALACE

ton Court, and the Prints likewise which are done from them, are sufficient of themselves to render his Name immortal.

He seem'd to have a peculiar Regard for the Roman School, in point of Design, but as to Style and Taste, he inclin'd to imitate that of Bologna, and particularly follow'd the Manner of that great Master Annibale Caracci.

L. E. BRUN publish'd two Dissertations; one of Physiognomy, and the other of the Passions. He procur'd several very valuable Advantages for the Royal Academy of Painting and Sculpture, in Paris; laid the Plan of a new One for the Students of his own Nation in Rome; and there was nothing of any Importance done for the Advancement of the liberal Arts, before Le Brun was consulted.

He was constituted Superintendant of the Manufactures, at the Gobelins: And having govern'd, for several Years, all the King's Artificers there, like the Father of a Family, he died among them, universally belov'd, and much lamented, in the seventieth Year of his Age, in his Lodgings at the Gobelins, in the Year 1690. His Tomb is in a Chapel, which he purchas'd in the Church of St. Nicholas du Chardonnet, where there is a magnificent Mausoleum erected to his Memory, by his Widow.

The fine Pieces of Tapestry we are now speaking of, are not dispos'd in the Gallery according to the Rules of Chronology, but according to the Uniformity of their Sizes; for some

OF HAMPTON COURT. 61

some of the last Actions of Alexander's Life stand first. There are seven distinct Histories therein represented, of which we shall take due Notice in their proper Places.

There have been many Prints of these fine Pieces of Tapestry publish'd by very good Hands; but the most curious are those, engrav'd by Gerard Audran, of which there were but a few Sets work'd off, and the Copper Plates were afterwards gilt with Gold, and lodg'd in the French King's Closet. What Sets are now to be had, sell at a very extravagant Price.

We shall here amuse our Readers with the Character of Alexander, extracted from Freinshemius.

ALEXANDER improv'd so much under the wise Directions of his great Master Aristotle, that he was enabled thereby to put in Execution the great Things which he afterwards undertook. In his younger Years, however, Leonidas, a Relation of his Mother Olympias, and Lyfimachus of Arcanania were his Governors and Præceptors. A Physician likewise, whose Name was Philip, was plac'd near him, and a Nurse, one Hellanica, was found out for him, who was both temperate and discreet. She was the Daughter of Dropis, and of one of the best Families in all Macedon.

This Care in his Education had so good an Effect, that, even whilst a Child, he gave large

62 The ROYAL PALACE

Promises of being that great Prince, which afterwards he appear'd to be. He was remarkable in his Infancy for an extraordinary Strength of Body, and he discover'd betimes an Heroick Genius, far beyond what could be reasonably expected at his Age. Tho' he was agreeable and handsome, yet he despis'd all Ornaments made use of to set off his Person, saying, That the Care of such Trifles belong'd only to Women, who could gain Esteem by no greater Advantages; but that he should think himself handsome enough, so he was but possess'd of Virtue.

His Limbs were well proportion'd, and his Joints well knit and strong; and as he was but of a moderate Stature, he was much stronger than he seem'd to be. He had a white Skin, tho' his Cheeks and Breast were stain'd with an agreeable Red. His Hair was of a Gold Colour, and fell down in Ringlets; his Nose was aquiline, and what was somewhat particular, his Eyes were of different Colours; the Left being blue, and the Right of a perfect black. There was in them however such a secret Virtue, that no one could behold him without Fear and Veneration. He was so very active and nimble, that he would frequently run for a Prize with the swiftest about him. He endur'd Fatigue with a Patience that was almost incredible; and often-times, by the Practice of this Virtue, he preserv'd his Army in Times of the greatest Distress.

By

Of HAMPTON COURT. 63

By his repeated Exercises, and the natural Warmth of his Constitution, he so purg'd off all bad Humours, that not only his Breath, but his Body diffus'd such an agreeable Odour, as even perfum'd his Cloaths: And there are some who imagine, that his too great Affection for Wine, and his excessive Indulgence of his other Passions were principally owing to this Heat of Blood.

In the Time of Quintus Curtius there were Pictures and Statues of him to be seen, of the most excellent Workmanship; for that his Person might not suffer under the Hands of any unskilful Painters or Sculptors, he publicly declar'd, that whoever presum'd either to paint his Picture, or carve his Bust, without his free Permission, should feel the Weight of his Resentment.

Tho' there were several good Workmen at that Time, yet Apelles was the only Man that had his Consent, and painted his Picture to please him; Pyrgoteles grav'd him on precious Stones, and Lysippus and Polycletus represented him on Medals.

His Governor, Leonidas, being apt to walk too fast, Alexander caught the Imperfection from him, and was never able to correct that confirm'd Habit afterwards. It must be allow'd indeed, that the Force of Education is very prevalent, but it is most probable, that this was to be imputed to this Prince's natural Temper, rather than to the Example of his Tutor; for it is in some Measure requisite, that the Motions of the Body should follow the impetuous Ardour of the Spirits. But his Successors were so far from reckoning this Impetuosity as an Imperfection, that they were fond of imitating him in it, as they did likewise in his wry Neck, his stedfast Look, and elevated Voice, tho' they were incapable of imitating him in his Courage and Virtue. There were many of them in Fact, whose long Lives had nothing in them comparable to his Childhood.

He never said any Thing that was mean; but all his Words and Actions surpass'd his Fortune: For tho' he was fond of Applause, yet he was ambitious of having it proceed from such Things as were the most laudable. Praise arising from mean Things, in his Opinion, was inglorious, and he always look'd upon a Victory as the more valuable, the more the Enemy he vanquish'd was valu'd and esteem'd. For which Reason, when he was press'd by some Friends to enter himself among the Competitors at the Olympick Games, and told, that by his Dexterity and Address he might gain the Esteem of all Greece; he answer'd, Had I Kings to contend with, I would hearken to your Proposals.

Whenever his Father Philip either gain'd any remarkable Victory, or took a Fort of any Importance, he could not forbear shewing some Concern for his Success, as thinking that his Father would leave nothing for him to do, when he was able to bear Arms. He look'd upon upon all his Father's Acquisitions as Diminutions of his Glory, and the Love of Fame was his darling Passion.

Tho' Nature requires Rest sometimes, yet he indulg'd himself that Way as little as possible. www.libtool.com.cn

If any thing of Importance happen'd, that demanded a more than ordinary Attention, he would use Arts to prevent his sleeping, tho' it was never so late. And for that Reason, when in Bed, he would hold a silver Ball in his Hand over a Bason, that the Noise of it, when it fell, might immediately awake him.

From his Infancy he had a religious Regard for the Gods, and gave early Testimonies of his uncommon Courage and enterprizing Genius. As soon as his Mind was fit for serious Studies, Aristotle was sent for, and constantly attended him, 'till, upon the Death of his Father, he came to the Crown, and undertook an Expedition into Asia; during which Time, he learnt every Thing that so great a Master, and so famous a Philosopher, could possibly teach him.

He study'd the Art of Elocution likewise, under Anaximenes of Lampsacum, which preserv'd that City, when he had determin'd to demolish it for having sided with the Persians.

ALEXANDER shew'd a greater Veneration for the Works of Homer, than for all the Monuments of Antiquity, and was of Opinion that no One had describ'd that political Wisdom by which Governments subsist, to that Perfection that he had. He carry'd his Works always about him, and when a-bed, he laid That, and his Sword together under his Pillow, calling them his Military Art, and the best Provision for the War. He envy'd Achilles for having so divine a Poet to celebrate his Virtues.

66 The ROYAL PALACE

We come now to amuse our Readers with a succinct Account of those particular Actions which are so beautifully delineated on the several Pieces of Tapestry, which render this Gallery so justly the Object of Admiration, and strike the Eye with such an agreeable Surprise.

The FIRST STORY, in order of Time, tho' the third in point of Position, is that of Alexander and his Horse Bucephalus.

He shew'd his undaunted Courage as well as extraordinary Dexterity, to the Astonishment of his Father, and every one else, in his Management of the Horse Bucephalus, so call'd, because he was mark'd with an Ox's Head. Tho' Thessaly was in great Reputation for its Horses, yet Bucephalus was stronger, and more beautiful than all the Rest; for which Reason, Philonicus of Pharsalia, thinking him fit only for a great Prince, brought him to Philip, and offer'd to sell him for sixteen Talents; but upon Tryal, in an open Field,

Of HAMPTON COURT. 67.

Field, not one among the King's best Equerries, or any of his Retinue could manage him; he rose with such Fury, that he threw every one that attempted to mounthim, so that they look'd upon him with an Eye of Contempt, as a Horse that was untractable and useless. Whereupon Alexander said with some Concern, What a fine Horse these People lose, thro' their Ignorance and Want of Courage! Having repeated this Expression several Times, his Father reprimanded him for finding Fault with the best and most experienc'd Horsemen, and talking as if he imagin'd, that he could manage such an ungovernable Creature better than they: Alexander upon this, offer'd to make the Attempt, with his Father's Permission. But, said Philip, What will you forfeit, if you cannot accomplish what you pretend to? The Price of the Horse, said Alexander. At this every one smil'd, and it was agreed unanimously, that in Case he won, his Father should pay for the Horse; if not, he should depofite the Money himself.

Upon this, Alexander, laying hold of the Horse's Bridle, turn'd him towards the Sun, in such a Manner, that his Shadow should not startle him; for he had observ'd, that the Sight of it made him more untractable: But finding him still hot and fiery, he gently strok'd him, and laying hold of a favourable Opportunity, leap'd at once upon his Back, notwithstanding he was still in his Fury. Bucephalus, at this, unus'd to a Rider, flung his
his

68 The ROYAL PALACE

his Heels and his Head about ; and disdain-ing the Curb and Bridle, ran away full Speed.
He was at that Time in a spacious Plain, that was fit for riding in. So Alexander gave him the Rein, set his Spurs to his Sides, and made him run with all the Vigour and Fury that he could : Nay, when he perceiv'd that he began to tire, and seem'd willing to stop, he still spurr'd him on till he was quite spent,
and having thus tam'd him, he brought him back to his Father, as gentle as could be wish'd, and very fit for future Service.

PHILI, upon Alexander's dismounting; embrac'd him, and with Tears of Joy cried out, Macedonia will be too narrow an Empire for this great Spirit.

BUCEPHALUS tho' thus tam'd by Alexander, maintain'd his Original Fierceness, and would submit to nobody else. And after he had serv'd him in several successful Engagements, and help'd him out of many Dangers, he was kill'd at last in a Battle against Porus.

The greatest Artists have thought this Story a Subject worthy of their Pencils, and capable of transmitting their Names to latest Posterity. There are two Statues of Alexander taming this Bucephalus, which were carv'd by Praxiteles and Phidias, as a Piece of Rivalship; and a Display of their utmost Art.

The

THE SECOND STORY is the Visit of Alexander to Diogenes.

www.libtool.com.cn

The next Part of Alexander's Story, in Order of Time, is in that Piece of the Tapestry which is over the Chimney, where he is represented as paying a Visit to Diogenes, the Cynick Philosopher, who had made Choice of a voluntary Poverty, and preferr'd Liberty and Retirement from the World to all other sub-lunary Enjoyments.

At that Time he liv'd in the Craneum, which was the Suburb of Corinth, and where there was a solitary Grove of Cypress. Alexander, having the Curiosity to see him, went to this Recess, where he found him walking, and assur'd him, let him ask for whatever Favours he thought proper, that they should immediately be granted him.

The Philosopher then requested Alexander to stand a little on one Side, that he might not keep the Sun from him, which was a more valuable Blessing than any other he could possibly confer on him.

The King was so agreeably surpris'd at this unexpected Answer of Diogenes, (whom he found he had it not in his Power, even in the Height of his good Fortune to oblige) that he declar'd, If he was not Alexander, he could wish to be Diogenes.

This Prince's Greatness of Soul, which made him view, as from an Eminence, most of those Things

Of HAMPTON COURT. 70

Things which attract the Generality of Mankind, and make them run headlong, as it were, into unavoidable Destruction, had not so much undeceiv'd him, but that, blinded with Ambition, and an insatiable Thirst after Glory, he could not see how much happier it was to want nothing, than to be possess'd of all the Superfluities that the World could possibly afford him.

The THIRD STORY is the Passage of Alexander over the Granicus.

When Alexander came with his Army into the Plains of Adraſtea, through which the Granicus ran with great Rapidity, a Party of those who were sent before, with Hegelœbus, to reconnoitre the Enemy, brought Word, that the Persians were drawn up in Battalia on the other Side of the River. Whereupon he halted for some Time, and call'd all his Generals together, to consult with them about his Passage over the River. Most of them were of Opinion, that it was a rash and impracticable Attempt to stem the Current of that River, in full View of so many thousand Horse and Foot, that were drawn up on the other Side; especially as the Bank itself was very steep, and of difficult Access.

Others suggested, that it was then the Month Deſius, (answering to our June) which the Macedonians were too sensible was very fatal to them,

Tho'

OF HAMPTON COURT. 71

Tho' ALEXANDER, regarded not the Danger, yet he did not despise the Superstition; as he knew very well what Force a Scruple of Religion always had over the narrow Conceptions of the Vulgar. He order'd therefore, that this dangerous Month should be call'd Artemisus, which was the Name of the preceding Month: And, the better to compose the Minds of those who were alarm'd at this Alteration, he caus'd Aristander, who was appointed to make Oblations for their safe Passage, to be secretly instructed to write with an artificial Ink, on that Hand which was to receive the Entrails, and to invert the Characters, so that the Liver when impos'd upon it, might attract the same, by its Heat, and express the Words in a proper Manner; which were, That the Gods had given the Victory to Alexander.

This Miracle being artfully spread abroad, inspir'd every one with such mighty Hopes, that they unanimously declar'd, in loud Acclamations, That after such Tokens of the Favour of Heaven, there was no Room to doubt of the desir'd Success.

Parmenio, however, endeavour'd to prevail on the King to stay 'till the next Day; at least, before he engag'd the Enemy, because the greatest Part of that Day was spent; but Alexander, thinking it more advisable to make Use of that Disposition of Mind which his Men were at that Juncture in, led them on forthwith; and said to Parmenio, by way of Railery, That the Helespont would have Reason to

to blush, should they boggle at passing a Brook, after they had conquer'd the Difficulties of the other Passage.

The King had scarce pass'd through the Violence of the Stream with thirteen Troops of Horse, but he was on all Sides press'd by the Persian Cavalry, before he could either get firm Footing on the Shore, or make good the Ranks that had been disorder'd in the Passage; Arsites, who was Governor of Phrygia, having openly declar'd, that he would not suffer the least Hurt to be demolish'd, if he could prevent it, and the Rest having concurr'd with his Sentiments, they posted themselves along the River Granicus, to the Number of about an hundred Thousand Foot, and twenty Thousand Horse, making use of the River as a Fortification, and intending, as it were, to bar that Door of Asia against Alexander.

As soon as the Persians knew of his Arrival, they dispos'd their Cavalry (in which their main Strength consist'd) in such a Manner, that Memnon, with his Sons, and Arfanes the Persian, were oppos'd to the right Wing of the Macedonians, which the King commanded, as Parmenio had the Command of the Left.

Arsites was on the same Side as Memnon, with the auxiliary Horse of the Paphlagonians; Spithridates, the King's Son-in-Law, was with the Rear Guard, accompany'd by his Brother Rhæfæces, who was Governor of Lybia and Ionia, and with the Hircanian Horse. There were two Thousand Medes, and as many many Bactrians under the Command of Rheomitres in the Right Wing of the Foot. The main Body was under the Command of Pharnaces, the Queen's Brother.

OF HAMPTON COURT. 73

These being more numerous, and having the Advantage of Ground, press'd hard upon Alexander's Army, and the Fight was sharp on both Sides: The King was here in imminent Danger; for being remarkable by his Arms, by his Intrepidity, and by the Orders he gave up and down, great Numbers made it their principal Concern to attack him.

In the Heat of the Action, a Dart which was levell'd at the King, stuck fast in the Folds of the lower Part of his Armour, but did him no manner of Hurt: He was in real Danger, however, from Rhæfæces and Spithridates, two of the most resolute Persian Generals, who bore hard upon him at the same time. For having broke his Lance upon Spithridates his Breast-Plate, Spithridates's Brother, riding up to him as he was going to draw his Sword, struck so heavy a Blow with his Cymeter on his Helmet, that he pierc'd it through, and touch'd the King's Hair. As Part of the Helmet fell down by the Force of the Stroke, he was just going to repeat it, and on that Part of his Head that lay expos'd, when Clytus, concern'd at the King's apparent Danger, flew to his Assistance, and prevented him, by cutting off the Sword-Arm of the Barbarian: Alexander slew Spithridates at the same time.

G

The

74 The ROYAL PALACE

The FOURTH STORY is Alexander's Visit to the Mother, and Wife of Darius, in their Tent, after his first Defeat of that Prince.

www.libtool.com.cn

Alexander is here accompanied by Hephestion, who being of much the same Age with the King, and with Respect to his Person, much more beautiful, Sisigambis, the Queen-Mother, mistook him for the Victor, who paid him Homage after the Persian Manner ; but some of her Eunuchs, convincing her of her Error, and shewing her the King, she prostrated herself at his Feet, and begg'd, as she had never seen him before, that he would excuse her involuntary Mistake. Whereupon, he is here represented, as raising her up with the utmost Complaisance. And passing a handsome Compliment at the same time on Hephestion, he told her, that she was not mistaken ; since they were both Alexanders.

The FIFTH STORY is his Triumphant Entry into Babylon.

After the famous Battle of Arbela, wherein Darius was totally defeated, Alexander, marching towards Babylon, was met by Masæus, who was Governor of that Place, and yielded both himself and the City to his Disposal. Tho' the King receiv'd him graciously enough, yet he form'd his Army, which he headed himself, into a Square, commanding them to enter the City in the same Order, as if they

Of HAMPTON COURT. 75

they were to go upon an Engagement. The Walls were fill'd with Babylonians, who were ambitious of beholding their new Sovereign; but the greater Part went out to meet him: Amongst these was Bagophanes, Governor of the Castle, and Keeper of the King's Treasure, who was willing to appear as zealous as Masæus.

The Road was strew'd with Flowers and Garlands, and adorn'd on each Side with Silver Altars, fill'd not only with Frankincense, but all manner of Perfumes. He was follow'd, by the Presents which were design'd for the King, viz. Doves of Cattle and Horses, with Lyons and Leopards, enclos'd in strong Cages, made for that Purpose. These were follow'd by the Magi who sung Hymns after the Manner of the Country. After them came the Obaldæans, the Babylonian Prophets, and the Musicians with their respective Instruments, and then the Babylonian Cavalry. The King order'd the Populace to follow in the Rear of the Foot, and being surrounded by his Guards, enter'd into the City in a triumphant Chariot.

The SIXTH STORY is Alexander's Fight with KING Porus.

The Fight between this Indian Prince and Alexander was for a long time doubtful, the Macedonians sometimes pursuing, and sometimes flying from the Elephants, which caus'd

the Battle to continue till the Sun was almost set; when at last, they chopp'd their Legs with Axes, made for that particular Purpose, They had another Kind of Weapon besides which was crooked, and resembled a Scythe wherewith they cut off their Trunks.

The Elephants, enrag'd with their Wounds, bore down their own Party, and throwing those who conducted them on the Ground, trampled them to Death. By this time Fear had so seiz'd them, that, they were drove like Sheep out of the Field of Battle; but Porus, notwithstanding the greatest Part of his People had forsaken him, began to ply those who encompass'd him with Darts, and wounded great Numbers at a Distance, being himself expos'd, like a Mark, at which every one took his Aim: He had nine Wounds before and behind, so that having lost a Profusion of Blood, the Javelins might rather be said to drop from his Arm, than be deliver'd. The Elephant however, on which he rode, not being as yet hurt, made great Havock among the Enemy, till the Governor of it perceiving the King's Limbs to fail him, put the Beast to Flight, and made the best of his Way: Alexander however follow'd him as fast as he could, but his Horse being much wounded, fainted under him, and might rather be said to set him gently down, than throw him. Being thus oblig'd to change his Horse, it put a stop to his Pursuit.

In

Of HAMPTON COURT. 77

In the Interim he sent the Brother of Taxiles, the Indian King, to persuade Porus to surrender ; but, notwithstanding his Strength fail'd him, and his Blood was exhausted, yet he rais'd himself up at the known Voice, and said, I am sensible thou art the Brother of Taxiles, that Traitor of his Sovereignty and Kingdom. And at the same Time cast the last Dart he had left with such Fury and Indignation at him, that it pierc'd his Body through to the Back. Having given this last Testimony of his Strength, he flew faster than before ; but having by this Time receiv'd a great many Wounds, was incapable of going any farther ; so that Porus was oblig'd to stop, and with some Foot, made Head against the Enemy, that pursu'd him.

Alexander being come up with him, and being inform'd of his Obstinacy, gave strict Orders, that no Mercy should be shewn to those who made the least Resistance. Hereupon, they ply'd Porus and his Men with Darts from every Side, till at last, being unable to bear up any longer, he began to slide down from his Beast. The Indian, who led the Elephant, imagining that he wanted to alight, made the Beast kneel down according to Custom ; The rest observing it, did the same, by which Means Porus and all his Followers became Captives to the Conqueror.

Alexander, thinking Porus to be dead, commanded his Men to strip his Body ; but as they were executing his Orders, and taking off his Armour and Garments, the Beast began to defend his Master, and attack the Aggressors; and taking up Porus with his Trunk, put him once more upon his Back. Upon which, the Elephant was presently cover'd with Darts, and kill'd, and the Indian King was put into a Waggon; but Alexander, observing him to lift up his Eyes, was mov'd with Compassion, and said to him: "What Madness possels'd thee to try the Fortune of the War

78 The ROYAL PALACE

 " with me, since thou hadst heard such mighty " things of me; especially when Taxiles thy " Neighbour might have been a sufficient
 " Instance of my Clemency to such as are prudent enough to submit to my Will before it " is too late.

To which Porus reply'd: "Since thou
 " askest me the Question, I will tell thee
 " without the least Reserve. I thought No " body so strong as myself; for I knew my " own Power, but had not as yet experienc'd
 " thine. From the Event of this Engagement I am convinc'd that thou art the greater Prince of the two, and I think it no " small Happiness to hold the next Rank to " thee.

Being ask'd again, by Alexander, What Treatment he thought he deserv'd at his Hands: Use me, he reply'd, as this Day's Action shall inspire thee; whereby thou art sensible of the Frailty of mortal Happiness.

This Admonition had more Influence on Alexander, than any Intreaty could have had,
 for

OF HAMPTON COURT. 79

for, considering the Greatness of his Mind, which ever was free from Fear, and no ways impair'd by Adversity, he not only took Compassion on him, but us'd him with Respect. He order'd the same Care to be taken of his Wounds, as if he had fought in his Service; and when he was cur'd, he admitted him amongst the Number of his Friends, beyond every one's Expectation: And in a short Time afterwards gave him a more extensive Kingdom than his own.

There was nothing indeed more commendable in Alexander, or more natural to him, than an high Esteem for true Valour, and intrinsic Merit: He did not pay, tis true, the same Regard to it in his own Subjects, as in an Enemy; because the Fame of the first, in his Opinion, was a Diminution of his own, which he imagin'd receiv'd some Lustre from the Greatness of those he conquer'd.

The SEVENTH STORY is Alexander's Second Entrance into Babylon.

The Chaldean Prophets, being sensible of Alexander's Intention to go a second Time towards Babylon, advis'd him not to enter that City, because he set out in an unlucky Hour, which portended, as they said, the Danger of his Life. But he contemn'd their Counsel, and resolutely pursu'd his intended Journey; for he was inform'd, that Ambassadors from

80 The ROYAL PALACE

from all Parts of the World were waiting there for his Arrival.

The Terror of his Name had spread itself so univerſally throughout the World, that all the Nations ſeem'd to pay their Court to him, as to one who was ordain'd to be their Sovereign. He therefore made all the Haſte he could, as if he was to hold a general Diet there of all the Nations of the Earth.

On his Arrival at Babylon, he receiv'd all the Embaſſadors in the moſt courteous Manner, and ſent them Home. About this Time one Medius, a Native of Threſſaly, gave a ſplendid Entertainment, to which the King and all his Friends were invited. Here, as he was drinking off Hercules's Cup, he gave a Groan, like one that had been run through the Body; and being carried from the Entertainment half dead, and in the utmoſt Torment, he call'd for a Sword to put an End to his intolerable Pains.

His Friends gave out, that Exceſs of Drinking was the Cauſe of his Illneſs, but in Reality it was a Plot againſt his Life, the Infamy of which was ſtifled by the great Power of his Succeſſors.

Under the Story of Alexander and Diogenes, is a very neat Buſt of a Venus in Alabaſter, ſtanding upon an oval Looking-Glaſs, under which are two Doves billing, in Alabaſter likewise, in Baſſo Relievo.

In this Gallery are two very fine Tables of Egyptian Marble; two black and Gold Indian dian Screens, four Settees, and sixteen Stools, of green Damask, on gilt Frames; with eight very large Vases of Blue and White China.

Of HAMPTON COURT. 81

All the Pieces of Tapestry above mention'd were brought from Flanders by General Cadogan, and purchas'd at a common Auction at a Price far inferior to their intrinsick Value. They were first set up in the Order they now stand, about the Beginning of the Reign of his late Majesty King George I.

The QUEEN'S STATE BED-CHAMBER.

Over the Chimney-Piece is a whole Length of King James I. painted by Van Somer.

On his Right Hand is Anne his Royal Consort, second Daughter of Frederick King of Denmark; and on his Left, the Princess Elizabeth his Daughter, who was afterwards Queen of Bohemia: These were likewise both painted by Van Somer.

Over the other Door is a beautiful whole Length, of that hopeful Youth, Henry Prince of Wales, eldest Son of King James I. who died in the 19th Year of his Age, amidst the publick Rejoicings which were made for the Reception of the Palgrave, who was just come over into England, in order to solemnize his Nuptials with the Princess Elizabeth.

M. Rapin de Thoyras, assures us, that he was one of the most accomplish'd Princes that ever

ever was in all Europe, if the Character which Historians have given him may be rely'd on. For they all agree, that he was sober, chaste, temperate, religious, and full of Honour and Probity. He was never heard to swear, though the Example of his Father, and the whole Court, was but too apt to have corrupted him in that Respect. He took great Delight in the Conversation of Men of Honour; and those who were not reckon'd as such, were look'd upon with a very ill Eye at his Court. He had naturally a Greatness of Mind, noble and generous Thoughts; and was as much displeas'd with Trifles, as his Father was fond of them.

He was naturally gentle and affable; but, however, in his Carriage had a noble Statelyness without Affectation, which commanded Esteem and Respect. He shew'd a warlike Genius in his passionate Fondness for all martial Exercises. A French Ambassador, coming to take his Leave of him, found him tossing the Pike, and asking him, What Service he would command him to his Master? The Prince bade him tell him what he was doing.

In short, to say all in a Word, though he was but Eighteen Years old when he died, no Historian has tax'd him with any Vice. The King, his Father, is said to have been jealous of him, and to have ask'd one Day, If his Son would bury him alive? I pass over in Silence many Things said on this Occasion, particularly what some Authors would insinuate, that the

the King caus'd him to be poison'd. In such a Case, the Proofs ought to be as clear as the Sun, and I find in the most inveterate Historians against King James, only bare Suspicions and naked Conjectures, which probably were but Fruits of the blackest Malice. Others are contented with accusing the Viscount Rocheſter of this Crime, but without any manner of Proof. Some ſlight Preſumptions may have help'd to breed this Supicion, which indeed was ſpread immediately after the Prince's Death: Wherefore his Head and Body were order'd to be laid open, in the Preſence of many Phyſicians and Surgeons, who gave their Opinion upon Oath, that no Marks of Poiſon appear'd. But what reflected moſt upon the King, was his commanding, that no Perſon ſhould appear at Court in Mourning; whether he was willing to remove all melancholic Objects from his Sight, that might conſtantly renew his Concern, or did not think proper to interrupt the Diversions prepar'd for his Daughter's Marriage. Decency oblig'd him, however, to defer the Nuptials a few Weeks, as the Prince's Funeral could not be perform'd till the 7th of the next Month (December.) The Prince died on the 6th of November, 1612.

Among the Perſons of Worth and Honour, who ſhar'd this Prince's Eſteem, Sir Walter Raleigh was not the leaſt conſiderable, for whom he had ſuch a Regard, that he would ſay

84 The ROYAL PALACE

say, "sure no King but my Father would "keep such a Bird in a Cage.

He kept a constant Correspondence with that great Man by Letters and Messages, and often, though unsuccessfully, solicited his Father for his Liberty.

In the Prince's last Illness, the Queen sent to Sir Walter Raleigh for some of his Cordial, which she herself had taken in a Fever, some Time before, with remarkable Success. Ra- leigh sent it, together with a Letter to the Queen, wherein he express'd a tender Concern for the Prince; and, boasting of his Medicine, stumbled unluckily upon an Expression to this Purpose; That it would certainly cure him, or any other, of a Fever, except in Cases of Poison.

The Prince dying, though he took the Medicine, the Queen, in the Agony of her Grief, shew'd Raleigh's Letter, and laid so much Weight on the Expression about Poison, that,
to her Dying-Day, she could not be persuaded,
but that her beloved Son had foul Play shewn him.

If this be true, might not there be a Stress too confidently laid on this Medicine, in supposing, that nothing but Poison could resist the Power of it? and perhaps there was some Inad-vertency in starting such a Suspicion in a fond Mother.

The Ceiling of this Bed-chamber was painted by the late Sir James Thornhill. The Subject is, Aurora rising out of the Ocean in her golden Chariot,

Of HAMPTON COURT. 85

Chariot, drawn by four White Horses. In the Cornice are four Pourtraits, one on every Side. I. His late Majesty King George I. II. His present Majesty. III. Her late Majesty Queen Caroline. IV. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

In this Chamber there is likewise a fine Bed of Crimson Damask, two Indian Sconces, and a Glass Lustre with Silver Nozzles.

The QUEEN'S DRAWING-ROOM.

The Ceiling here was painted by Signior Verrio, in the Middle of which, is the Figure of the late Queen Anne, * representing Justice, with the Scales in one Hand, and the Sword in the other : She is drest in a purple Robe, lin'd with Ermine; and Neptune and Britannia are holding a Crown over her Head.

On the Sides of the Room are several other Paintings of Verrio, representing the British Fleet ; Prince George of Denmark pointing to it ; and the four Parts of the World shewn by four Figures ; but these were thought so badly executed, that they are now quite conceal'd, and cover'd over with green Damask Hangings, upon which are plac'd nine Pictures, three on each Side the Length of the Room, and three at the End ; these Pieces were formerly all in one, and of a prodigious Length, as may be discern'd by some Parts of the Figures, which have been cut asunder; and some in one Place, and some in another. The Whole is a Triumph of Julius Cæsar, consisting of a long Procession of Soldiers, Priests, Officers of State, &c. at the End of which, that Emperor appears in his triumphant Chariot, with Victory over his Head, crowning him with Laurel.

H

gures

It is painted in Water-Colours upon Canvas, by Andrea Mantegna, who was a Disciple of Jacobo Squarcione.

With Respect to this Painter, Mr. Graham assures us, that he was very correct in his Designs, curious in foreshortening his Figures, well skill'd in Perspective, and familiarly acquainted with the Antiquities, by his constant Application to the Statues, Basso Relievo's, &c. His Neglect, however, of seasoning his Studies after the Antique, with the living Beauties of Nature, has made his Pencil somewhat hard, and dry: His Drapery likewise is for the most part too stiff, according to the Mode of those Times, and too perplex'd with little Folds.

He was several Times employ'd by Pope Innocent the Eighth, and by other Princes of the highest Distinction: But the very best of all his Works is this Triumph of Julius Cæsar, for which he receiv'd the Honour of Knighthood, from the Marquis Ludovico Gonzaga of Mantua.

He was one of the first that practis'd the Art of Engraving in Italy, which was then but

Of HAMPTON COURT. 87

but lately found out by one Maso Finiguerra, a Goldsmith of Florence.

He died in the Year 1517.

www.libtool.com.cn

The QUEEN'S STATE AUDIENCE-ROOM.

There are five whole Length Pictures in this Room, all painted by Holbein. The First represents the Dutchess of Brunswick. The Second the Duke of Brunswick. The Third the Marchioness of Brunswick, their Daughter. The Fourth the Dutchess of Lenox, and the Last, the Queen of Scots.

The Canopy of State is here very rich ; as are also the Tapestry Hangings, the Story of which is the Children of Israel carrying the twelve Stones to the River Jordan, as related in the 4th Chapter of the Book of Joshua.

Hans Holbein, born at Basil in Switzerland, in the Year 1498, was educated under his Father ; by whose Assistance, and his own Industry and Application, he made a speedy Progress in the Art of Painting, and acquir'd such a Reputation by his Piece, entitled Death's Dance, which was hung up in the Town-hall of Basil, that the celebrated Erasmus, after he had oblig'd him to draw his Picture, sent him with it into England, and gave him Letters of Recommendation to Sir Thomas Moore, then Lord High-Chancellor, who entertain'd him with all the Respect imaginable, and employ'd him in making not only the Portrait of himself, but all his Family; the Sight of which so charm'd King Henry VIII. that he took him directly into his Service, and by the many signal Testimonies which he gave him of his Royal Bounty and Benevolence, made him highly respected by all the Gentry and Nobility throughout the Kingdom. One of his best Pieces was that of the said King and his Queen, &c. at Whitehall; which with several other curious Portraits, some as big, and others less than the Life; and as well in Water-Colours, as in Fresco and Oil, may challenge a Place among those of the most celebrated Italian Masters.

He was conspicuous likewise for his peculiar Talent of Invention, and forming new Designs for Engravers, Sculptors, Jewellers, &c. and was very remarkable for performing all his Pieces with his left Hand.

Du Fresnoy, speaking of the German Painters, says, that Albert Durer and Holbein were wonderfully knowing, and had they travell'd into Italy, had certainly been of the first Form of Painters. For nothing can be alledg'd against them, but that they had a Gothique Taste. As for Holbein, continues he, he perform'd even better than Rafaëlle; and I have seen a Portrait of his painting, that might stand in Competition with most of Titian's.

This

Of HAMPTON COURT. 89

This great Artift died in London, of the Plague, in the Year 1554.

www.libtool.com.cn
The DINING-ROOM and BALL-ROOM,

Which is about fifty Feet long, and thirty wide.

There are no Paintings in this Room ; but 'tis embellish'd with a fine Marble Chimney-Piece, three Marble Door-Cases ; and several large Mahogany Tables.

The PRESENCE-CHAMBER belonging to the PRINCE of WALES.

Over one of the Doors is Guzman, over another Gundamor, two Spanish Embassadors ; over the third is Madame Chatillon, the famous French Admiral's Lady ; and over the Chimney, Lewis XIII. of France, with a Walking-Stick in his Hand, and a Dog by his Side: All four Pictures painted by Holbein.

The Tapestry Hangings are of green Damask, wherein is curiously wrought the History of Tobit and Tobias.

Here are two fine gilt Stands in the Form of Termini, and a Canopy of State.

90 The ROYAL PALACE

The DRAWING-ROOM belonging to the PRINCE of WALES.

This Chamber is hung with Tapestry, on which is wrought the Scripture-History of Elymas the Sorcerer struck blind, as related in the 13th Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles; this is taken from one of the Cartons, which we shall speak of in their proper Place.

Over one of the Doors is a whole Length of Count Mansfield, that famous General of the Spaniards in the Low-Countries. Over another is a whole Length of the Queen of Spain, Wife to Philip II. and over the Chimney, the Duke of Wirtembourg: All painted by Holbein.

The BED-CHAMBER belonging to the PRINCE of WALES.

Over one of the Doors, is a whole Length of the Prince of Parma, Governor of the Netherlands; over the Chimney-piece, a whole Length of the Duke of Lunenburg, Great Grand-father to his present Majesty; over another Door, Philip II. King of Spain; and over a third, the Queen of Denmark, Consort
of

Of HAMPTON COURT. 91
of Christian IV. These are likewise painted by Holbein.

The Bed is of green Damask.

www.libtool.com.cn

The PRIVATE CHAPEL.

Here is nothing but a few Chairs, and an Octogonal Cupola at Top.

The PRIVATE BATHING-ROOM.

In this Room there is no Furniture worthy of Notice.

The PRIVATE DINING-ROOM.

Here are four Pictures of the Spanish Armada, painted by Vande Velde; and over the Chimney, a very fine one, by Van Dyck, of the Lord Effingham Howard, the Lord High Admiral of England.

We shall here * give our Readers a short Account of the Event of that important Enterprize, extracted from Rapin.

Philip of Spain, ever intent upon his Project of invading England, prepar'd in Portugal, at Naples, and in Sicily, a Fleet, call'd the Invincible Armada. It consisted of an Hundred and Fifty great Ships, in which were

92 The ROYAL PALACE

were embark'd nineteen Thousand Men, and two Thousand six Hundred and Thirty Pieces of Cannon. It was to have been commanded by the Marquis De Santa Cruz, but that Admiral dying whilst the Fleet was equipping, the Duke De Medina-celi was appointed in his Room.

On the other Hand, the Duke of Parma had caus'd an Army of thirty Thousand Men to advance towards the Coasts of the Low-Countries, and prepar'd a great Number of Vessels to transport them, in order to join the Spanish Fleet, and land in England. The Project was to station the Fleet at the Mouth of the Thames, to assist the Troops who were to march directly to London.

Queen Elizabeth, who wanted not good Spies, having timely Notice of these great Preparations, provided for the Defence of her Kingdom with great Care and Diligence.

She fitted out a considerable Fleet, which however was inferior to that of Spain, both in the Number, and the Largeness of the Ships, and gave the Command of it to Charles Lord Howard of Effingham, High Admiral of England, who was very expert in Sea-Affairs. He had for Vice-Admirals, Drake, Hawkins, and Forbisher, three of the best Sea-Officers in the World.

On

Of HAMPTON COURT. 93

On the other Hand, Henry Seymour, second Son of the late Duke of Somerset, lay upon the Coast of Flanders, with forty Sail, English and Dutch, to hinder the Prince of arma, from joining the Spanish Fleet. Moreover, Elizabeth had in England an Army of forty Thousand Men, whereof three Thousand under the Command of the Earl of Leicester, were posted near the Thames Mouth. The rest were near the Queen's Person, ready to march where it should be thought necessary. Besides this, there was in each County a Body of Militia well arm'd, under Leaders, who had Orders to join one another, as Occasion should require. It is certain, that there are no Train'd-Bands in the World more proper for a bold Action, than those of the English: So in case the Spaniards had landed, they would have met with their Match.

The Sea-Ports were fortify'd, as much as the Time would permit, and Signals were every where appointed, to shew the Places where the Troops were to march. In short, it was resolv'd, that if the Spaniards made a Descent, the Country round about them should be laid waste, that they might have nothing to subsist upon but what they brought from the Fleet.

This was the Course taken by Francis I. in Provence against Charles V. with Success that answer'd his Expectations. These Measures being being taken, the Enemy was expected with uncommon Alacrity, though it should seem that on such an Occasion every one would have been in the utmost Consternation; especially, as the Queen of England had no Ally to assist her, and had great Difficulties to struggle with, which however she bore with a Masculine Spirit, and betray'd no Signs of Fear, notwithstanding the dangerous Situation she was in.

94 The ROYAL PALACE

The Duke de Medina-celi sail'd out of the Tagus with the Invincible Armada, on the 3d of June, 1588, and steer'd his Course towards the North. Within a few Days a Storm arising, so dispers'd his Ships, that they could not rejoin till they came to the Groyne. This Accident occasion'd a Report over Europe, that the Spanish Fleet was entirely destroy'd. Walsingham himself, Secretary of State, thought his Intelligence so certain, that he wrote to the Lord Admiral Howard, to send home four of the largest Ships, there being no farther Danger this Year. But the Admiral answer'd, he could not think of parting with the four Ships, though he should be oblig'd to keep them at his own Charge, till he had more certain Advice. The better to know the Truth, he sail'd with all his Fleet towards Spain, with Design to complete the Destruction of the Enemy's Armada, which was represented to him as disabled: But when he approach'd Spain, he heard the Fleet had not suffer'd so

Of HAMPTON COURT. 95

so much Damage as was reported. At the same Time, the Wind changing to the South, he sail'd back to his Station at the Mouth of the Channel, for fear, with the same Wind, the Enemy's Fleet should advance towards England.

But it was the twelfth of July before the Spaniards departed from the Groyne, and two Days after, the Duke de Medina-celi sent a Yacht to notify the same to the Duke of Parma, that he might be ready to join him. The 19th, the Spanish Fleet enter'd the Channel, and the 20th, appear'd in Sight of the English, who let it pass, in order to follow it before the Wind.

Whilst the Spaniards were in the Channel, the English kept close to them, and even took some of their Ships. Of this Number was a Galeon, commanded by Don Pedro de Valdis, which was sent to Dartmouth, and a Ship of Biscay, in which was the King's Treasure; but the Spaniards had taken out the Money, because she had been fir'd.

On the 23d of July, the Wind being in the North, the Duke de Medina-celi stood towards the English Fleet. There was that Day a sharp Engagement, wherein the Spaniards, though much superior in Number of Ships, obtain'd no Advantage. The Unweildiness of their Ships, and the Agility of the English, lish, made it easy for these last to stand off or on, as they saw fit, and so to balance the Superiority of their Enemies. The Tryal the Spaniards made, on this Occasion, of the English Valour and Skill in Sea-Engagements, began, doubtless, to give them quite another Notion of their Enterprize, from what they had hitherto conceiv'd.

96 The ROYAL PALACE

In the mean while, the Duke de Medina-celi sent daily Messengers to press the Duke of Parma to put to Sea with his Army. But that was not practicable, by reason of the English and Dutch Ships, being posted advantageously to hinder the Junction. It was necessary for the Spaniards to approach the Coast of Flanders, to compel them to retire. But the 27th, in the Evening, they were no farther off then Calais, where they came to an Anchor, being still follow'd by the English, who lay within Shot. Here the English Fleet was join'd by a good Number of Ships, not only of the Queen's, but divers private Persons, who had fitted out several at their own Expence. And now the Fleet consisted of an hundred and forty Ships of War, small indeed in Comparison of the Spanish, but however with the Advantage of moving more easily, and retiring into the Ports of England in Case of Necessity. The Duke of Parma, who was to sail from Dunkirk and Newport, was still earnestly solicited by the Duke de Medina-celi to put to Sea, and make a Descent in Eng-

England, as it had been resolv'd. But, besides that the Ships which expected him were not yet withdrawn, notwithstanding the Neighbourhood of the Spanish Armada, many of his Mariners had deserted, and his Fleet was ill provided with Victuals. In short, he could not, or would not embark.

Whilst the Spaniards lay before Calais, the English Admiral sent, in the Night, eight Fire-Ships among their Fleet. This Sight struck them with such a Terror, that instantly cutting their Cables, they put to Sea to avoid impending Danger. In this Confusion the Admiral-Galeass, commanded by Hugo de Moncada, having lost her Rudder, floated up and down till the next Day, when she was taken by the English, after a sharp Engagement, wherein Moncada was slain. Though the Spanish Admiral had order'd every Ship to return to her Station as soon as the Danger was past, and made a Signal for that Purpose, there were but few that endeavour'd to obey. So the Fleet remain'd dispers'd, some of the Ships being driven to the North, and others upon the Shallows of Flanders, where they were in great Danger. They had not only to guard against the Sands, but also against the English, who so play'd upon them with their Cannon, that several Spanish Ships were that Day disabled, and the Galeons, call'd St. Philip and St. Matthew, fell into the Hands of the Zealanders.

At last, a North-West Wind driving the Fleet upon the Coast of Zealand, where they were like to be lost, the English gave over the Chace, for fear of being expos'd to the same Danger. Happily for the Spaniards, the Wind turn'd to the South-West very seasonably, and freed them from their Distress. But now, perceiving the Impossibility of executing their Project, they resolv'd to return Home, by sailing round Scotland and Ireland, and the rather, as some of their Ships had already steer'd that Course.

The English Admiral seeing them stand to the Northward, left Part of his Fleet to have an Eye upon the Coast of Flanders, and gave them Chace, though at a little Distance, till they were past Edinbourg-Frith. The Course they steer'd gave some Suspicion, that they were sure of a Retreat in the Ports of Scotland. Whereupon the English Ambassador at King James's Court, made him large Offers, and even some Promises, which he had not Power to make, and which were never perform'd

In the mean Time, the Spanish Fleet, continuing their Course, sustain'd some farther Damage by contrary Winds, which caus'd several of their Ships to be lost on the Coast of Scotland and Ireland. Seven Hundred Soldiers and Mariners, who escap'd to Land in the King of Scotland's Dominion, were sent to the Duke of Parma with Queen Elizabeth's Consent. But those who were shipwreck'd in Ireland, and cast ashore, were all put to the Sword, or perish'd by the Hands of the Executioner; the Lord-Deputy, by whose Order it was done, fearing they would join with the Rebels.
to

Of HAMPTON COURT. 99

PHILIP II. receiv'd the News of the ill Success of his Fleet, with an heroic Patience. He had spent three Years in preparing this Armada, with an incredible Expence, and, when he heard of the Defeat, so contrary to his Expectations, thank'd God it was no greater.

This is as some say; but it was reported by others, that the King being at Maf, when the News was brought him, as soon as high Mass was over, he swore that he would waste and consume his Crown, even to the Value of a Candlestick, but he would utterly ruin the Queen and the English Nation, or else himself and all Spain should be tributary to her.

Upon the Retreat of this so formidable a Fleet, England was fill'd with universal Joy. Elizabeth order'd a publick Thanksgiving for this Deliverance, to be made in all the Churches in the Kingdom, and went herself to St. Paul's, in great Solemnity, to perform the same Duty. After which, she conferr'd on the Lord Admiral a Yearly Revenue, in

I 2

Recom-

100 The ROYAL PALACE

Recompence of his great Service to his Country, and bestow'd Pensions on the Wounded.

www.libtool.com.cn The KING'S PRIVATE BED-CHAMBER.

The Bed is of Crimfon Damask, and the Bed-Chamber is hung with fine Tapstery, which represents the remarkable Engagement at Solbay.

This memorable Battle was fought in the Year 1672. The two Fleets of England and France join'd the Beginning of May; the first consisting of forty, and the last, of an hundred Men of War. That of the States had seventy two large Ships, and forty Frigats and Fire-ships, and consequently was very much inferior in Number to the combin'd Fleet of England and France.

It was commanded by the famous de Ruyter, assisted by Cornelius de Wit, the Pensionary's Brother, as Deputy from the States. De Ruyter, having put to Sea before the Enemies Fleets were join'd, had endeavour'd to prevent their Junction; but not succeeding, and being inform'd that the two Fleets lay at Anchor at Southwold, or Solbay, in Suffolk, he resolv'd to attack them.

He

Of HAMPTON COURT. 101

He had like to have surpriz'd them, but being disappointed, prepar'd for Battle. The two Fleets of England and France, now composing but one, were rang'd in three Squadrons. The Duke of York, High Admiral of England, commanded the Red-Squadron; the Count d'Etrees the White; and the Earl of Sandwich, the Blue. The Fleet of the States was likewise divided in the same Manner; de Ruyter, was oppos'd to the Duke of York, Bankert to Count d'Etrees, and Van Ghent to the Earl of Sandwich.

The Battle was fought on the 28th of May, both Sides display'd all the Art and Skill which Experience had taught the Commanders and Officers; they fought with equal Bravery, with almost equal Loss, and both Sides challeng'd the Victory.

The Admiral-Ship of the English being disabled, the Duke of York was oblig'd to hoist his Flag in the London. The Royal James, commanded by the Earl of Sandwich, not being able to disengage from a Fireship, after she had sunk two, was blown up, with the Earl, and her whole Crew. The English lost two Ships more, the Hollanders three, and Van Ghent was kill'd.

The Historians of the two Parties equally pretend, that their Fleets chac'd that of the Enemy; but both speak of it very faintly.

102 The ROYAL PALACE

For it is not entirely the same with Engagements at Sea, as with those at Land; where commonly he who remains Master of the Field of Battle, justly assumes the Honour of the Victory; whereas, in Naval Engagements, a Fog, a Calm, a Wind, either contrary or tempestuous, may oblige the victorious Fleet to retire first.

Be this as it may, Rejoicings were equally made at London and the Hague, for the Success of this Battle, though with very little Reason.

The English complain'd, that the French did not discharge their Duty, and only fought at a Distance, after having seperated from the Fleet. This Conduct is ascrib'd to secret Orders given to Count d'Etrees, not to expose too much his Master's Ships, but to leave the English and Dutch Ships to destroy one another.

The KING'S DRESSING-ROOM.

There are no Paintings here; the Room is hung with red Damask, but there is no Furniture that is any thing curious.

The

The GREAT COUNCIL-CHAMBER.

www.libtool.com.cn

We are now come to the Carton Gallery, in which are seven Paintings by Rafaele, which are univerſally admir'd, and of inestimable Value.

RAFAELLE DA URBINO (according to the Account which Grabam gives of him) was one of the handsomeſt, and beſt temper'd Men living, and, by the general Conſent of Mankind, acknowledg'd to have been the Prince of Modern Painters; and is often ſtil'd the DIVINE RAFAELLE, for the inimitable Graces of his Pencil, and for the Excellence of his Genius, which ſeem'd to have ſomething more than Human in its Compoſition: He was belov'd in the higheſt Degree by the Popes Julius II. and Leo X. He was admir'd and courted by all the Princes and States of Europe; and particularly by Henry VIII. who would fain have oblig'd him to have come over into England. His Perſon was the Wonder and Delight of Rome, as his Works are now the Glory of it: He liv'd in the greateſt State and Splendor imaginable, moſt of the eminent Maſters in his Time being ambitious of working under him; and he never went abroad, without a Crowd of Artiſts, and others who attended and follow'd him him purely out of Respect : He declin'd Marriage, tho' very advantageous Offers had been made him, in hopes of a Cardinal's Cap, which he expected; but falling into a Fever in the mean Time, and concealing the true Cause of his Distemper from his Physicians, Death disappointed him of the Reward due to his most extraordinary Merits.

RAFAELLE was born on Good-Friday, in the Year 1483, and died on Good-Friday 1520 : So that he liv'd only Thirty-seven Years complete.

DU FRESNOY assures us, that he surpass'd all modern Painters, because he possess'd more of the excellent Parts of Painting than any other ; and it is believ'd, that he equall'd the Antients, excepting only, that he design'd not naked Bodies with so much Judgment as Michael Angelo : But his Gusto of Design is purer and much better. He painted not with so good, so full, and so graceful a Manner as Correggio : Nor has he any thing of the Contrast of the Lights and Shadows, or so strong, and free a Colouring, as Titian : But he had a better Disposition in his Pieces without Comparison, than either Titian, Correggio, Michael Angelo, or all the rest of the succeeding Painters to our Days. His Choice of Attitudes, of Heads, of Ornaments, the Suitableness of his Drapery, his Manner of Designing, his Varieties, his Contrasts, his Expressions, were beautiful ful in Perfection; but above all, he possess'd the Graces, in so advantagious a Manner, that he has never since been equall'd by any other. There are Portraits, or single Figures of his, which are finish'd Pieces. He was an admirable Architect; handsome, well made, and tall of Stature; civil, and well-natur'd; never refusing to teach another what he knew himself.

Of HAMPTON COURT. 135

He had many Disciples; among others, Giulio Romano, Polydore, Gaudenzio, Giovanni d'Udine, and Michael Coxis.

The Pictures, which we are now speaking of, call'd Cartons, from their being painted on Paper, were originally design'd only for Patterns of Tapestry, and were sent for that purpose, by Leo X. to Arras, in Flanders, a Place famous for that curious Work; but his Holiness dying soon after, as well as Rafaele, and the Persons who were employ'd not being paid for their Tapestry, these Patterns were never return'd, but lay for a long Time at Arras, till King James purchas'd them, but at what Price we cannot determine. We have heard, however, that they were valu'd at an hundred thousand Pounds a-piece.

After the Death of King Charles I. Cromwell was too much a Connoisseur in Painting to part with these inestimable Pieces; but they were carefully preserv'd in large Deal Boxes, in the Banqueting-House at Whitehall; some of them being in four, and others in

106 The ROYAL PALACE

in five Pieces, and there they remain'd till after the Revolution, when King William rebuilt Hampton-Court, and the Gallery, in which they are now hung up, which was built on purpose for them.

The Story of the first Carton is the Death of Ananias, as related in the vth Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

The Story of the second Carton is Elymas the Sorcerer, struck with Blindness, as related in the xiiiith Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

The next is the Lame Man heal'd by Peter and Johz, Acts iii.

The Fourth, which is over the Chimney, is the miraculous Draught of Fishes, Luke v.

Here is in this Picture a Fault which is so visible, that almost every body takes Notice of it; and therefore we must not pass it over, without giving our Readers the Opinion of the ingenious Mr. Richardson, who is universally allow'd to be a compleat Judge of the Cartons.

RAFAELLE, says he, in this Carton, has made a Boat too little to hold the Figures he has plac'd in it; and this is so visible, that some are apt to triumph over that great Man,

as

as having *nodd*ed on that Occasion ; which others have pretended to excuse, by saying, it was done to make the Miracle appear the greater ; but the Truth is, had he made the Boat large enough for those Figures, his Picture would have been all Boat, which would have had a disagreeable Effect ; and to have made his Figures small enough for a Vessel of that Size, would have render'd them unsuitable to the rest of the Set, and have made those Figures appear less considerable ; there would have been too much Boat, and too little Figure.

It is amiss as it is, but would have been worse any other Way, as it frequently happens in other Cases. Rafaelle therefore wisely chose this less Inconvenience, this seeming Error, which he was sensible the Judicious would know was none ; and for the rest, he was above being solicitous for his Reputation with them. So that upon the whole, this is so far from being a Fault, that it is an Instance of the great Judgment of that incomparable Man, which he learn'd in his great School the Antique, where this Liberty is commonly taken.

The Story of the Fifth is Paul and Barnabas at Lystra, where the Priest of Jupiter is going to sacrifice an Ox to them, taking them for Gods, as related in the xivth Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

That

108 The ROYAL PALACE.

That of the Sixth is Paul preaching at Athens, an Account whereof we have in the xviith Chapter of the same Book.

The Story of the Seventh and last is Christ's Charge to St. Peter, commonly call'd The giving the Keys. According to the Evangelist St. John, Chap. xxi.

In this Carton Mr. Richardson has observ'd how Rafaëlle has improv'd the Story ; to be able to do which, he tells us, is one of the Excellencies of a Painter.

Our Lord, says he, by the Relation of the Evangelist, seems (at least a Roman Catholic, as Rafaëlle was, must be suppos'd to understand it so) to commit the Care of his Church to that Apostle, preferably to the rest, upon the Supposition of his loving him better than any of them : Now though the History is silent, it is highly probable, that St. John, as he was the belov'd Disciple, would have expected this Honour, and be piq'd at his being thought to love his Master less than St. Peter : Rafaëlle therefore, in this Carton, makes him address himself to our Lord with extreme Ardour, as if he was intreating him to believe he lov'd him no less than St. Peter, or any of the other Apostles. And this puts one upon imagining some fine Speeches, that it may be suppos'd, were made on this Occasion, whereby Rafaëlle has given a Hint for every Man

Of HAMPTON COURT. 109

Man to make a farther Improvement to himself of this Story.

Notwithstanding the numberless Beauties in these inestimable Paintings, as no Work of human Art was ever brought to Perfection, it must be allow'd, they have their Faults ; and that tho' the Cartons of Rafaele are some of his last Works, yet the Colouring of them is not equal to the Drawing ; but at the same Time, as the ingenious Gentleman we have so often quoted upon this Subject, observes, it cannot be deny'd, but that he who painted those, could colour well, and would have colour'd better.

It is to be consider'd, they were made for Patterns for 'Tapestry, not profess'd Pictures; and painted, not in Oil, but in Distemper : If therefore one sees not the Warmth, the Mellowness, and Delicacy of Colouring, which is to be found in Correggio, Titian, or Rubens, it may fairly be imputed, in a great Measure, to these Causes.

A judicious Painter has other Considerations relating to the Colouring, when he makes Patterns for Tapestry to be heighten'd with Gold and Silver, than when he paints a Picture without any such View ; nor can a Sort of Dryness and Harshness be avoided in Distemper, upon Paper : Time moreover has apparently chang'd some of the Colours. In a

K

Word,

110 The ROYAL PALACE

Word, the Tout-Ensemble of the Colours is agreeable and noble, and the Parts of it are in general extremely, but not superlatively, good. www.libtool.com.cn

There are fine Gravings of these Pictures from Draughts taken at several Times; first by Mr. Gribelin, then by Sir Nicholas Dorigny, and afterwards by Sir James Thornhill.

Over the Fire-Place in this Gallery, is a fine Bas-Relieve of Venus, drawn in her Chariot, attended by several Cupids, in white Marble.

There is likewise a very fine Pair of gilt Andirons in the Chimney, one with the Figure of Mars upon it, and the other of Hercules.

The ADMIRAL'S GALLERY.

In this Room are the Pictures of the following renown'd Admirals: I. Sir George Rook . II. Sir Cloudsley Shovel . III. Sir John Leake . IV. Lord Torrington . V. Admiral Churchill . VI. Sir Stafford Fairborne . VII.	Sir John Jennings . VIII. Sir Thomas Hopson . IX. Admiral Beaumont . X. Sir Thomas Dilks . XI. Admiral Bembo . XII. Admiral Whetstone . XIII. Admiral Wishart . XIV. Admiral Graddon . And XV. Admiral Munden .
--	--

ALL

OF HAMPTON COURT. III.

All painted by Sir Godfrey Kneller, and Mr. Dabl.

The QUEEN'S STAIR-CASE.

On the left Hand as you go up is a large Picture, in a Gold Frame, painted by Viek, of King Charles II. and Katharine his Queen. The Duke of Buckingham is therein represented as Science, in the Habit of a Mercury, and Envy is struck down by naked Boys.

There are additional Ornaments, in the Mosaic Taste, on each Side of the Stair-Case as well as the Ceiling, by Mr. Kent.

The NEW QUADRANGLE.

In the Center of this Square is a round Basson, and four large Lamps on Pedestals of Iron-Work; and on the right Hand, over the Windows, are the twelve Labours of Hercules done in Fresco.

Hercules is suppos'd to have been born at Thebes, and to have been the Son of Alcmena, the Wife of Amphytrion, the Theban, by Jupiter, who paid her a Visit, and deceiv'd her, under the Shape of her Husband, whilst he was gone to the War against the Teleboans, a People of Aitolia. Some say, that the Night, in which the amorous Deity assum'd the Hero's Form, was extended as long as three, and others as nine, and thrown all into one.

Archippe, the Wife of Sthenelus, who was King of Mycæne, being with Child at the same Time as Alcmena was, Jupiter foretold, that of two Princes, the first that came into the World should have an uncontrollable Power over the other.. Whereupon Juno hasten'd the Pains of Eurysteus's Mother, and retard-ed, as much as in her lay, the Birth of Hercules : By which Means Eurysteus was born first, and had full Power to impose what Task, how difficult or unreasonable soever, he thought proper upon Hercules, and to treat him as his Slave.

Some however assert, that it was the Oracle of Delphos, that made him subject to this Prince, for having, in his Madness, murder'd his own Children. But be that as it may, we shall without any farther Introduction proceed to the History of his Twelve Labours, which he undertook in Obedience to the Injunctions of his Lord and Master.

I. The Lion of the Forest of Nemea ravag'd the Country in a dreadful Manner. Some Authors will have it, that he fell from the Region of the Moon, and that his Hide was so tough, that neither Dart nor Javelin could penetrate into it. Hercules hunted him, and having run him into a Cave, out of which he

Of HAMPTON COURT. 113

he could not escape, he there strangled him. Ever after, he wore the Skin of that Animal, as a Publick Testimony of that Heroic Exploit. Which Fiction, in short, is no more than this, that Hercules hunted, and kill'd a Lion of an extraordinary Size.

II. His Second Exploit was the Defeat of the Hydra. This terrible Dragon haunted the Marsh of Lerna, and infested all the adjacent Country. He never left his Den without committing the most horrible Ravages. The fearful Husbandman left his Field uncultivated, and the boldest Traveller trembled, as he pass'd by the Monster's Den. He had the Shape of a Serpent, and the Feet of a Dragon; his Back was cover'd with Scales; he had seven Heads, some say nine, and others fifty, that vomited out Fire and Brimstone. Hercules undertook to rid the World of this Monster. Arm'd only with his Club, and accompany'd by his Brother Iolaus, who was his Twin-Brother, he goes and attacks the Serpent in his very Den. The Hydra, seeing him approach, rushes furiously upon him, and covers him with a Cloud of flaming Smoke. The undaunted Hero lifts up his Club, and at the first Stroke knocks off one of his Heads. But straight a new one sprung up in its Place, and the Blood that issued from the Wound fell to the Earth, and there engender'd Scorpions and Serpents. Hercules beheld with Intrepidity this amazing Sight; he redoubled

K 3.

his

114 The ROYAL PALACE

his Blows ; but they serv'd only to exasperate the furious Monster. No sooner is one of his Heads knock'd off than others arise ; and the Wounds that ought to have destroy'd him serve only to give him new Strength and Vigour. The invincible Son of Jove had infallibly fail'd in his Enterprize, had he not been assisted by his faithful Companion. The only Way to hinder this new Projection was to stop the Blood, that flow'd from the Wounds. This Jolaut succeeded in, by seering them with a burning Brand. The Monster sinks under the Force of Hercules's Arm, and at last expires at the Victor's Feet.

This Fiction has been explain'd several Ways. Some say, that the Marsh of Lerna, being infested with Serpents, which multiply'd, notwithstanding all the Pains that were taken to destroy them, Hercules, with the Assistance of his Friend, set Fire to the Reeds, with which the Marsh was cover'd, and thus extirpated them. Others will have it, that he only drain'd the Marsh, that us'd to overflow the Country. And lastly, some insist, that it was a Nest of Robbers; and notwithstanding Hercules kill'd several of them, yet their Number increas'd, till at last he broke into their Lurking-holes, and destroy'd the whole Gang by Fire.

III. In

OF HAMPTON COURT. 115

III. In another Chase (which was his third Labour) he kill'd a terrible wild Boar, that had his Haunt in the Forest of Erymanthus.

www.libtool.com.cn

In Order to embellish this Part of his Story, it was feign'd, that he bound him, and brought him on his Shoulders alive to Euryſtheus, who had like to have fainted away at the Sight of ſo ſhocking a Beaſt.

IV. His next Task was to hunt down a Hind on the Mountains of Menalus, and bring it to Euryſtheus alive. As this ſprightly Creature was ſacred to Diana, he was twelve Months in the Purſuit of her. She had brazen Feet given her by the Poets, to denote her Swiftneſs. However, he caught her at laſt by meer Speed in Running.

V. He drove away the Birds that infeſted the Lake Stymphalus and Arcadia, in ſuch prodigious Flocks, that they darken'd the Sun: They us'd to carry off Men and devour them.

The Meaning of this is, that a Gang of Robbers, which kept near this Lake, and murder'd Travellers, was at laſt deſtroy'd, or put to Flight, by Hercules and his Companions.

VI. Hercules, being order'd by Euryſtheus to go and bring away the Girdle of Hipolyta, Queen of the Amazons, that is, to make War
ON

116 The ROYAL PALACE

on those Heroines, and rifle their Treasures, embark'd on the Euxine Sea, and landing on the Banks of the Thermodoon, he gave them Battle, routed them, brought away the Girdle, took the Queen herself Prisoner, and gave her in Marriage to Theseus.

VII. King Augias's Stables had not been clean'd for thirty Years. The Dung was heap'd up in such Quantities, that there was no Room for the Cattle. Hercules, with the Help of his Soldiers, cleans'd them, by bringing the River of Alpheus through them.

VIII. The Island of Crete was laid waste by a furious Bull, that brought Ruin and Destruction with him wherever he went ; he was sent thither by Neptune, to revenge the Insult he had receiv'd from the Inhabitants. Hercules vanquish'd him, and brought him to Eurystheus ; that is to say, Eurystheus order'd him to go to that Island, and fetch a Bull from thence to breed by, which he executed accordingly.

IX. Diomedes, Tyrant of Thrace, made his Mares devour all the Strangers that came into his Dominions. Hercules vanquish'd him, and made the Tyrant himself undergo the same Fate.

The Meaning of this is, that Eurystheus, having commanded Hercules to go, and carry off

OF HAMPTON COURT. 117

off some of Diomedes's Horses, who had a very fine Breed of them, this Prince made Resistance, and was kill'd in the Battle. He had so far ruin'd himself with keeping Horses, that he was forc'd to sell his very Slaves to support the Expence. Hence it was said, that Horses fed upon human Flesh.

X. In the Island of Erythia reign'd a King call'd Geryon, who had three Bodies. This Prince had a Herd of Oxen, which devour'd Strangers, and were guarded by a Dog with two Heads, and a Dragon with seven. Hercules defeated him, kill'd the Dog and the Dragon, and carry'd away his Herds. Geryon's three Heads denote his reigning over three Islands, viz. Majorca, Minorca, and Ebusa, or Iwica. Some say, they were three Brothers, that liv'd together in so close a Friendship, that they seem'd to have but one Inclination. Others pretend, that this Fable owes its Rise to the Phœnicians, and explain it in the following Manner.

Hercules having made a Descent in the Island Erythia, the Inhabitants march'd out against him in three different Bodies, but were defeated: 'This the Phœnicians in their Language express by Words, importing, that he defeated the three Heads of their Inhabitants.

The Name Gargitius, which the Mythologists give to Geryon's Dog, is compounded of two

118 The ROYAL PALACE

two Phœnician Words, which signify The Terror of Strangers.

XI. Buſiris, ~~lik~~ King of Egypt, ſent ſome Pirates to carry off the Heſperides, Neices to Atlas, King of Mauritania; Hercules repulſ'd them, deliver'd the Princeſſes, and purſuing his Victory, kill'd Buſiris.

Atlas, to reward the Hero, made him a Preſent of ſome of the fineſt Sheep of his Country.

As the Beauty of their Fleeces had got them the Name of golden Sheep, and the Greek Word for a Sheep, ſignifies likewise an Apple, the Story was told, that the Hero had brought golden Apples from the Gardens of the Heſperides.

Some Authors however pretend, that thoſe Apples were nothing elſe but the Oranges and Lemons, that grew in great Abundance, in the Gardens of Mauritania; and that the Dragon which Hercules ſlew, to make way for his carrying off his precious Fruit, was a great Dog, that watch'd one of thoſe Gardens.

Others, in fine, imagine, that this Fable hints at the Riches which Atlas, or ſome other Prince, had hoarded up; becauſe the Word
Malon

OF HAMPTON COURT. 119

Malon, or Melon, in the Arabic Tongue signifies Riches, and in the Greek an Apple, or Sheep, as before has been observ'd.

www.libtool.com.cn

XII. The last Commands that Eurystheus laid on Hercules were to go down into Hell, and bring up the Dog Cerberus. This the Hero executed, and at the same Time deliver'd Theseus, who had gone down thither to keep Pirithous Company. (The Design which these two Friends form'd to carry off the Daughter of Aidoneus, King of the Molossians, is what gave Rise to this Fiction.

That Prince, having had timely Notice of their Design, caus'd Pirithous to be torn in Pieces by a Dog, call'd Cerberus, and detain'd Theseus Prisoner; but he releas'd him soon after, at the Request of Hercules.

As Aidoneus us'd to send his Prisoners to work in the Mines, and as, to go into his Country, you must cross the River Acheron; he has from hence been confounded with Pluto, and Hercules's Journey has been look'd upon as a Descent into Hell. And as the Hero had at the same Time kill'd a Serpent, whose Den was in the Cave of Tenaurus, which was taken to be the Entry to the Kingdom of the Dead, and had brought some great Dog with him out of the Empire, he was said to have chain'd Cerberus.

These

120 The ROYAL PALACE

These are the twelve Labours of Hercules, which are so much talk'd of by the Poets : And in Order to make our short Account of them, not only entertaining but instructive, we thought proper to introduce the Historical Explications thereof along with them. And for the further Amusement of our learned Readers, we shall here give them an Abstract, or Recapitulation of the foregoing Stories, summ'd up in the following Verses, by the Poet Ausonius, as he translated them from the Greek of Quintus Smyrnæus.

Prima Cleonæi tolerata Ærumna Leonis.

Proxima Lernæam ferro & face contudit Hydram.

Mox Erymantheum Vis tertia perculit Aprum.

Æripidis quarto tulit aurea Cornua Cervi.
Stymphalidas pepulit Volucres discrimine quinto.

Threiciam sexto spoliavit Amazona baltheo:

Septima in Augeis Stabulis impensa laboris.

Octavo expulso numeratur adorea Tauro.

In Diomedeis Victoria Nona Quadrigis.

Geryone extincto decimam dat Iberia Palmam.

Undecimo Mala Hesperidum distracta Tri-umpho.

Cerberus extremi Suprema est Meta La-boris.

The

OF HAMPTON COURT. 121

The Room of BEAUTIES.

www.libtool.com.cn

The first is the Lady Peterborow . 2d.	6th. Lady Essex . 7th.
Lady Ranelagh . 3d.	Lady Dorset . 8th.
Lady Middleton . 4th.	Queen Mary . 9th.
Miss Pitt . 5th. Dut-	The Dutcheis of Graf-
cheis of St. Alban's .	ton.

QUEEN MARY was painted by Wissing, and all the Rest by Sir Godfrey Kneller.

The GARDENS.

We come next to the Gardens, which, with the Park and Ground on which the Palace stands, are about Three Miles in Circumference. In the pitch'd Pediment on the Front of the Palace this Way, is a Bas-Relief of Hercules's Triumphs over Envy; and facing this, a large Oval Basin, in the Middle, and answering to the Form of this Part of the Gardens, which is a large Oval, divided into Gravel Walks and Parterres, laid out in a very elegant Manner, by those two great Gardeners, Messieurs Longen and Wife.

L

At

122 The ROYAL PALACE

At the Entrance on the Grand Walk, are two large Marble Urns, on Pedestals, the Urns beautifully carv'd with Bas-Relieves : That on the First, on the Right Hand, represents the Triumphs of Bacchus ; that on the Other, on the Left, Amphitrite and the Nereides : At the Bottom of this Walk, which faces a long Canal running into the Park, are two other large Marble Vases : The Bas-Relief on One, represents the Judgment of Paris ; and on the Other, Meleager, hunting the Wild-Boar.

In four of the Parterres are four fine Brass Statues. The first is the Gladiator, which formerly stood on the Parade in St. James's Park, at the Foot of the Canal, and was remov'd hither in the Reign of Queen Anne. The Original is the wonderful Work of Agasias Desibheus of Ephesus, and is in the Burgesian Palace at Rome. The second is a young Apollo ; the third a Diana, and the fourth Saturn going to swallow one of his Children. All after fine Originals.

On the South Side of the Palace is the Privy-Garden, which was sunk ten Feet to give a View from the Apartments to the River Thames : In this Garden there is a fine Fountain, and two grand Terrace Walks.

On

of HAMPTON COURT. 123

On the North Side of the Palace is a Tennis-Court, and beyond that, a Gate, that leads into the Wilderness: Farther on, is the great Gate of the Gardens, on the Sides of which are large Stone Piers, with the Lion and Unicorn couchant, carv'd in Stone.

DELICIA

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

Windsor Castle. G. Bickham sculp.

DELICIAE BRITANNICÆ.

BOOK II.

THE ROYAL PALACE, OR CASTLE of WINDSOR.

HIS Castle, and Palace is the most beautiful, (and as we have hinted before) the most pleasantly situated Royal Recefs throughout the whole Island of Great Britain: And the Compliment that was once paid to the Earl of Nottingham's House, at Burleigh on the Hill, in Rutlandshire, may with more Justice be apply'd to this magnificent Seat we are now speaking of, and will give the Reader an adequate Idea of its uncommon Beauties. The Lines are as follow.
M the

126 · The ROYAL PALACE ·

Hail, happy Fabrick ! whose Majestic View
First sees the Sun, and bids him last Adieu ;
Seated in Majesty Your Eye commands
A Royal Prospect of the richest Lands.
The under-lying Vale shews with Delight
A thousand Beauties at one charming Sight.
No Pencil's Art can such a Landscape feign,
And Nature's self scarce yields the like again :
Few Situations may with this compare,
A fertile Soil, and a salubrious Air.

William the Conqueror, was the first English Monarch, that made Windsor his Rural Seat. As Hunting was that Prince's favourite Amusement, and as the Situation of the Parts adjacent were commodious for that Purpose, and fitted for the Entertainment of Kings, he agreed with the Abbot of Westminster, whose Seat it then was, for an Exchange, and took Possession of it, in Pursuance of his Contract. Here he erected likewise a strong Castle, and built several little Lodges, or Hunting-Houses, in the Forest adjoining,
and

and for the Conveniency of his Sport, lay frequently in a House, which the Monks had before enjoy'd, and was either actually in, or at least near the Town of Windsor : For the Town is much more antient than the present Castle, and was an eminent Pass upon the Thames in the Reign of the Saxon Kings.

After him, King Edward III. took a peculiar Delight in the Place, on Account of its pleasing Prospect, as well as beautiful Situation, and propos'd accordingly to make it his Place of Residence every Summer. Being thus determin'd, he laid out himself the Plan of that rich and magnificent Palace, which, in regard to its external Form and Building, we now see there ; for notwithstanding there have been great Alterations and Improvements made within, no material Additions have been made to the Building itself, the noble Terrace only excepted, which runs under the North Front.

The House itself indeed was a Palace, but without any Appearance of a Fortrefs ; but when the Building was once brought to the Slope of the Hill, on the Town Side, his Majesty then added Ditches, Ramparts, the Round Tower, and divers other Places of great Strength, from whence it deriv'd its Denomination of a Castle.

And such a Pride did his Majesty take in this Building, that William of Wickham, then Bishop of Winchester, and highly in his Favour, had like to have been discarded, for suggesting (as the King was privately inform'd) that he was the Founder. The Prelate however disavow'd the Allegation, and clear'd himself with Honour, by artfully asserting, that all he pretended to, was a Publick Acknowledgment, that whatever Money he had amass'd, or Reputation he had gain'd, thro' his Erection of that Castle for his Majesty, had been the Making of him. For he had caus'd, it seems, these Words, but not Wickham made This, to be cut on a Stone in the Inner Wall of the little Tower, which from him is distinguish'd, at this very Day, by the Name of Winchester Tower.

This MADE WICKHAM,

At that Time, tho' this Wickham was a Layman, and but meanly educated, yet having a good Genius, and a Taste for Architecture, he apply'd his Mind so close to that Art, that he was constituted Master-Builder of the Court: Nor does the Building fail to do the Architect, as well as the Royal Projector of it, Abundance of Credit; for in all the Decorations which have been since made by the Successors of that Prince, who have delighted in Windsor most, no one has thought fit to make the least Alteration in the Front, or to pull down any old Buildings, and substitute new ones in their Room,

Room, except some few Improvements of no great Moment at the Entrance to the great Stair-Cafe, the Kitchen, and other out-Offices, and the like; but the Great North and East Fronts, the Square of the Inner Court, the Great Gates at the Entrance from the Town, with the Round Tower, and the Walls annex'd, are all now standing in the self same Form in which they were left by King Edward III.

The only Addition, in the Inside, is a fine Equeſtrian Statue, which was erected to the Memory of King Charles. It even in his Life Time, by one of his grateful Domesticks.

Queen Elizabeth indeed made the Addition of the Terrace on the Outside; where she walk'd for the generality, near an Hour every Day before Dinner, if not prevented by Windy Weather, to which she had a peculiar Aversion. Wet Weather was no manner of Interruption to her Amusement there; for she took great Delight in walking Abroad (when the Rain was only mild and calm) with an Umbrella over her Head.

This Walk of hers must be acknowledg'd to be a magnificent Work, and no inconsiderable Improvement; for as it is rais'd on the Side of a steep Declivity of the Hill; that Hill must of necessity be cut down a prodigious Depth, to bring the Foundation to a Flat equal equal to the Breadth that was to be form'd above. It was rais'd from the Foundation by substantial Stone-work of a prodigious Thickness, with cross Walls of Stone, in order to band the Front, and prevent any Pressure from the Weight of Earth within. After that, this Work was to be all fill'd up again within, when what was first taken out, was thrown down the Front of the Hill, that the Precipice might be push'd out still farther, in order that there might be the same Slope from the Terrace, as there was before from the Foot of the Castle.

This Noble Walk is cover'd with fine Gravel, and has Cavities, with proper Drains, in order to carry off the Rain, so that let it fall never so heavy, none of it will lie upon the Terrace; by which means it is dry, hard, and fit for walking on, as soon as ever the Storm is over.

This Walk is very broad as well as long on the North Side; on the other Sides, indeed much narrower, and not so extensive. But we shall take Occasion to speak more fully of it in another Place.

Having thus given our Readers a cursory View of Windsor and its Castle, in their antient State, we shall now proceed to our intended Description of the various Curiosities with which the latter is at present enrich'd, and which strike the Eyes of all Beholders with the most agreeable Surprise.

Front-

Fronting the Town of Windsor and the Market-Place is the Town-Gate, leading to the Park ; but leaving that some small Matter on the Left, you come by an easy Ascent to another Portal, call'd the Castle-Goal ; which as soon as you have pass'd thro', on the Left, you see the poor Knight's Apartment, built in the Ionick Order, and in a Modern Taste.

Opposite to the last mention'd Portal stands St. George's Chappel, which King Edward III. acknowleg'd was begun by his Ancestors, and some imagine, that the Foundation was laid by Edward I. This is a most beautiful and magnificent Building, and shews the Greatness not only of the Court in those Days, but the Spirit and Genius of the Founder. The Chappel is not only fine within, but the Workmanship without is very curious. There is nothing now to be seen of equal Antiquity, that can stand in Competition with it for its extraordinary Beauties. King's College Chappel at Cambridge, erected by Henry VI. and Henry VIIIth's Chappel in Westminster Abbey are fine Buildings, but modern, however, in Comparison to This, which was begun, as appears by an Inscription on the Walls, in the Year of our Lord M.c.c.c.xxxvii.

The Coats of Arms, and the various Imagery, and other Decorations both within and without, are beautifully finish'd, and the Work

132 The R O Y A L P A L A C E

Work has stood out the Injury of Time to Admiration. The Beauty of the Building remains without any Improvements, and in a Word, requires none.

www.libtool.com.cn

The Establishment for the Chappel was very considerable, by the Donation of divers Subjects, before it was set apart to be the Chappel of the Order ; the Duke of Suffolk in particular, gave near three Thousand Acres of Land, nineteen Mannors, one hundred and seventy Messuages and Tofts, and several Advowsons of Churches to it, which with other subsequent Gifts, made the Revenue thereof amount to about one Thousand Pounds a Year, which was look'd upon as a prodigious Annual Income in those Days.

In the Choir are the Stalls for the Knights of the Order, with a Throne for the Sovereign : Also Stalls in the Middle of it for the poor Knights Pensioners.

Here are to be seen the Banners of the Knights, who now enjoy the Honour of the Garter : When any of them die, those Banners are taken down, and the Coat of Arms of the deceas'd Knight is set up in the Place appointed for those Arms over the same Stall ; By which Disposition, those Coats are, as it were, a living History, or more properly speaking, a publick Record of all the Knights that ever have been, since the first Institution of the Order, and of their Succession one to another; by which it appears, that Kings, Emperors, and Sovereign Princes have not thought it beneath them to accept of the Honour of being Knights Companions of this Order; whilst, at the same Time, to the Honour of the English Crown be it spoken, our Kings have never thought proper to accept of any of their Orders Abroad, of what Kind soever; whereas there is an Account in the Registry of the Order, that there are reckon'd up of their most noble Company
of

Eight Emperors of Germany.

Three Kings of Sweden.

Five Kings of Denmark.

Two Kings of Prussia.

Three Kings of Spain.

Six Princes of Orange.

Five Kings of France.

Four Dukes-Peers of France.

Two Noblemen of the House of Duras, in France, viz. Galliard de Duras, and Lewis de Duras, Earl of Feversham.

One King of Scotland, besides James VI. who became Sovereign of the Order.

Five Kings of Portugal.

One King of Poland.

Two Kings of Naples.

One King of Aragon.

N

Three

134 The ROYAL PALACE

Three Infants of Portugal.

One Prince of the House Palatine, viz. Prince Rupert.

One Prince of Denmark, viz. Prince George.

One Bishop of Osnaburg.

Five Princes of Brandenburg.

Seven Electors Palatine.

Two Electors of Saxony.

Two Dukes of Lorrain.

Three Dukes of Wirtemberg.

Two Dukes of Holstein.

Two Grandees of Spain.

Two Dukes d'Urbino in Italy.

One Duke of Savoy.

Four Princes of England, not Kings, viz.

Edward the Black Prince, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince Frederick, and the Duke of Cumberland.

Several Kings, and Persons of the highest Distinction have been interr'd likewise in this Chapel; as for Instance, Edward IV. and Charles I. Here is also the Family Burying-Place of the Dukes of Beauford, who are a natural Branch of the Royal Family of Lancaster.

Besides the Foreign Princes, Companions of this celebrated Order, there is a little Galaxy of
of

of English Nobility, the Flower of so many Courts, and so many Ages ; to whose Families the Ensigns of the Order have been an Honour, and ~~who are not the least~~ Glory this Order has to boast of.

The Present Knights are

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE II.

His Royal Highness Frederick, Prince of Wales.

His Royal Highness William, Duke of Cumberland.

His serene Highness, the Prince of Orange.

Charles, Duke of Somerset.

John, Duke of Argyll.

Henry, Duke of Kent.

John, Earl of Paulet.

Thomas, Earl of Stafford.

Lionel, Duke of Dorset.

John, Duke of Montagu.

Thomas, Duke of Newcastle.

Charles, Duke of Bolton.

Charles, Duke of Grafton.

John, Duke of Rutland.

John, Duke of Roxburg.

Richard, Earl of Scarborough.

136 The ROYAL PALACE

Charles, Viscount Townshend.

Charles, Duke of Richmond.

Robert, Earl of Orford.

Philip, Earl of Chesterfield.

Richard, Earl of Burlington.

William, Duke of Devonshire.

Spencer, Earl of Wilmington.

——— Earl of Peterborough.

——— Earl of Berkley.

Having thus given our Readers a transient Idea of the Antiquity of this Order, and a List of the illustrious Members that at present fill it up, we shall say no more about it, but refer those who shall think our Detail too deficient, to Mr. Asmole's History thereof, wherein no Circumstance is omitted, that is worth the Notice of the most curious.

Contiguous to this Royal Chapel is the Tomb-House, which was first erected by Cardinal Woolsey, and at that Time intended by him, as a Dormitory only for himself and his Family.

In King James II's Time indeed, it was made use of as a Chapel ; but at present it lies in a very ruinous Condition. In a short Time however, as we are credibly inform'd, it will be

be converted into a Free-School; and it's now repairing for that Purpose.

At some small Distance from the Tomb-House is a large Guard-Chamber, capable of receiving Three Hundred Men, and contiguous to it is an Out-Office, which at present is converted into a Publick House; well known by the Name of the Royal Standard.

On the Right Hand, as you go thro' the Castle-Gate, there is a Tower, which is the separate Apartment of the Captain of the Gentlemen Pensioners.

The next Tower is the separate Apartment of the Lieutenant of the Gentlemen Pensioners; and between that and the Devil's Tower, which stands at some small Distance, is another Range of private Lodgings for the Accomodation of other Pensioners.

The Reason why this last Tower has for a long Time been so distinguish'd, was a receiv'd Notion, as we are inform'd, that formerly it was haunted by evil Spirits: For many Years however, it has been inhabited, without the least Interruption or Disturbance, as we can find, from such aerial Visitors.

Of all the Towers, however, that adorn this Royal Palace, that which is call'd the Round-Tower, (and is the Residence or Apartment ment of his Grace the Duke of St. Alban's, who is Governor of the Castle) is the most conspicuous.

138 The ROYAL PALACE

When you are at the Royal Standard, beforemention'd, you advance about one Hundred Yards (leaving Winchester Castle on your left) to the King's Gate; at the Entrance whereof is planted a small Piece of Canon; and on the right, there is a Door-Way, and a Stair-Case, which consists of one Hundred and forty seven Steps of Purbeck Stone.

At the Top of the Steps is a small Piece of Canon, which is directed downwards, and appears from a small Port-Hole that commands the Stair-Case.

From thence you pass through a Court-Yard; in the Middle whereof stands a large Cistern, which was first erected by King, Charles II. in order to receive the Drains from off the Roof of the Out-Offices; all round which are hung Buckets, and other convenient Vessels for holding Water, either for the Service of the Offices beforemention'd, or for ready Help in Case of Fire.

From this Court-Yard you proceed to

The

The GUARD ROOM.

www.libtool.com.cn

Over the Chimney is a Star and Garter of an Oval Form, surrounded with Pistols and Bayonets; the Wainscoting is embellish'd all round with Carbines, Match-locks and Cartridges, upon Whole pikes, Half pikes, and Quarter pikes, with Bandaleers, in various Figures. Round the Cornish are hung a great Number of Breast-plates, with Helmets over them: There are likewise fifteen Drums, dispos'd in proper Places, and Bandaleers in Abundance round them.

Over the Door-Way, going to the Dining-Room are two Coats of Mail, belonging formerly to two Warlike Princes, (but to whom in particular we cannot say) inlaid with Gold; with Horse-Armour, Gantlets, and other Accoutrements complete.

On the Stair-Case going to the great Dining-Room, on the left Hand is planted a Yeoman of the Guard, painted on a Board, drest in all his Habiliments, as an Officer in Waiting. Here are four Pilasters of Pikes, decorated with Bandaleers, Carbines, and Matchlocks, upon Half-pikes. In the Center there is a large Horse-Shield, surrounded with Bayonets.

The

140 The ROYAL PALACE

The GREAT DINING-ROOM.

www.libtool.com.cn

There is Nothing here but a small Quantity of common Furniture, that deserves no particular Description.

The WITHDRAWING-ROOM.

This is furnish'd no better at present than the Dining Room, neither has the Closet, which is on the Right Hand, any Thing curious in it.

The BED-CHAMBER.

The Bed, and the Hangings are of yellow Damask. There are twelve Chairs likewise cover'd with the same.

The LITTLE DINING-ROOM.

From the Window you have a full View of Winchester Tower, and on the West a Prospect of the River Thames.

The

The Dressing-Room.

www.libtool.com.cn

Has nothing in it but common Furniture.

The CURTAIN.

Round it are seventeen Port-Holes, with Guns, to defend the Castle.

The LEADS.

On the West-part is erected the Royal Standard, which is painted as usual; and as to its Dimensions, it is twelve Foot by eight: Here is also the Union Flag, but this is lesser, and but eight Foot by six.

If you turn North-East, you have the Prospect of Harrow on the Hill. East and by North, of Hampstead and Highgate. East, of St. Paul's Cathedral; as also of Shooter's and Dulwich Hills. South East, of Madagascar's Hills by Sevenoake, in Kent. South, of Boxhill, in Surry, and Hind-Head in Sussex. West, of the Lord Cadogan's fine Seat at Cassom, in Berks. North West, of Nettlebed Windmill, Pen-

142 The ROYAL PALACE

Pen-wood and Pen-hills; as also of Eaton College, and Winchester Castle, which lie as it were under you.

www.libtool.com.cn

In your Return from these Leads, you come to the King's Gate, and then descend by seven Flights of Wooden Steps (five in a Flight) to the Terrace, beforemention'd to be erected by Queen Elizabeth, which is about eight Yards broad; and from East to West about 300 Yards long. The Length of the two Sides is about 100 Yards each. There is no Walk at all on the other Side; its Form being only three fourths of a Square.

At the East End of the Terrace there is a Bowling Green, and a Draw-Bridge at the Bottom. On the West, there is a very curious Sun-Dial, erected on a Pedestal, by the Order of King Charles II. which was made by one Henry Wynne, whereon all the Points of the Compass are particularly delineated, at which Place a Centinel always stands, and when any unguarded Spectator claps his Hand upon it, he claims, by Dint of Custom, Sixpence as a Forfeit.

As soon as you are come down from the Round Tower, you turn on the Right, and go thro' a narrow Passage, that leads directly into a spacious Square, or Quadrangle, on the North Side whereof is a wrought Iron Gate, or Portal, that leads to the Royal Apartment.

partments. As soon as you are admitted in the Entry, before you come to the Stair-Cafe, is a Colonade of eight Pillars, of the Ionic Order, with three Niches on every Side, and in each an antient Bust. The Pilasters too are all of the same Order. The Pavement is of free Stone.

At the Foot of the Stair-Cafe is a small Landing Place, consisting of three Stone Arches, with a Nich on each Side; on the Right, is a Brass Bust of a Roman Vestal; and on the Left, a Roman Slave, in the Action of picking a Thorn out of his Foot.

From thence you go up the Stair-Cafe, which consists of three Flights of Stone Steps, twelve in a Flight, with twisted Iron Rails, or Balusters, on the Right.

The DOME.

On the Ceiling, is Apollo in the Front, with a Variety of other Figures, attending him, which represent the united Charms of Poetry and Musick.

The

The CEILING under the Dome.

www.libtool.com.cn
 At the four Corners are the four Elements. Fire is represented in One, as a Woman with a Censer, flaming in her Hand, and is seated on a Roman Pile, and by her a Phoenix, and a Salamander.

Earth is represented in another, by a Nymph, or other Attendant of Ceres, with a Chaplet of Corn round her Head, a Wheat-Sheaf in her Left Hand, and in her Right a Cornucopia; on one Side of which there are two little Boys, with Plumbs and Cherries in their Hands. Underneath her Feet are strew'd Musmelons, Peaches, Cabbages, Carrots, Cucumbers, and Abundance of other Fruits and Herbs.

Air is represented in the Third, by a Woman sitting, with her Left Hand on a Peacock's Back; the Tail whereof is extended, and shewn in all its Pride and Glory. On the fore-Finger of her Right Hand is perch'd a King's-Fisher. Six naked Cupids, representing Zephyrs, are playing over her Head, with a Variety of Birds. There is likewise a Paroquet, in a flying Posture, by the Side of the Peacock. And Water is represented in the Last by a Nereid, holding one of her favourite Fishes in her Lap, Lap, and pointing to the Eye of it with her Right Hand.

Round about her are little Cupids, with their Wings all dropping wet: Each of them is in a different Attitude, and has a Fish of the same Species, as it were, to play with.

Under her Feet are the Dolphin, the Cod, the Eel, and a vast Variety of other Fishes.

Above the Four Elements,

And all round the Ceiling, which is underneath the Dome, are the Winds supporting the Clouds. In the Front is Aurora, seated in her Chariot, with her Nymphs in waiting, and giving Water to her Horses out of fine capacious Basins.

Underneath her, in the Cornish on the Left, are seated the two Signs of the Zodiack, Cancer and Aquarius, supporting a Golden Urn, full of Flowers. On the Right is Aries, or the Ram, and one of the Winds supporting a Golden Urn likewise, full of Flowers.

Over the Door, thro' which you enter into the Lodgings, are two Figures; one with Wings, representing Time; the other an Old Man, with a Lion's Skin over his Shoulders, a Ball in his Right Hand, and in his Left, a Lamb.

O

146 . The ROYAL PALACE

Lamb. His Feet are fetter'd, as it were, with a Circle of Stars, and support a Golden Urn, as the others do, full of Flowers. Over the Urn is a third Figure, with Wings on his Shoulders, a Celestial Crown on his Head, and a Scepter in his Right Hand.

On the Left Hand of the Stair-Case sits Libra, or the Ballance, with a Band of Stars round his Body, and in his Right Hand, a Pair of Scales; his Left leans on a Variety of Fruit. By him is another Figure with Wings, whose Right Hand is laid on a Branch of Herbs, supporting another Urn, that's full of Flowers.

Below the Cornish, are twelve painted Pilasters, in the Corinthian Order, between each of which is a Nich.

In the First in Front is the Figure of Geography, with a Compass in her Left Hand, and a Globe in her Right.

In the Second Nich in the Front, is a Figure, representing Comedy, with a Mask in her Right Hand, and a Musical Instrument in her Left.

In the first Nich on the Right, is a Figure, representing Tragedy, with a Cup in her Right Hand, and a Laurel, and Palm-Branch in her Left,

Left, with a Snake twisting round her Arm.

In the Second Nich, on the Right, is a Figure, representing Epic Poetry, with a Scroll in her Right Hand, and a Trumpet in her Left. She has Wings likewise to her Head, that are fasten'd with a Bandage or Fillet.

Over the Door, going into the Lodgings, is a Bust of Venus in Black Marble.

In the First Nich, on one Side, is a Figure representing Sculpture, with a Mall, or Mallet, in her Right Hand, and a Bust of an Old Man in her Left.

In the Nich on the other, is a Figure, representing Painting, with a Palette in one Hand, and a Mask in the other.

In the First Nich, on the Left Hand, is the Figure of Musick, playing on a Violin.

In the Second, is a Figure, that represents Mathematicks. Her Right Hand grasps a Square, and her Left is laid gently on her Breast.

All the Figures in general, being painted in Umber, and heightned with Gold, appear to the Eye like Brass Statues.

148 The ROYAL PALACE

In the square Niches, on the Right and the Left, are two Fabulous Stories from Ovid's Metamorphoses ; one of which represents the Transformation of Phaeton's Sisters into Trees, and the other, that of Cycnus into a Swan.

In the Front square Nich, is an open Oval Hole, which looks into a Back Stair-Cafe, where you see a curious Hunting-piece in Stone-Colour, wherein Meleager kills the wild Boar of Atolia, and gives the Head of it to his Mistress, the fair Atalanta.

There are two Pillars of the Ionic Order, painted on each Side the Hunting-piece.

The whole Stair-Cafe was design'd and executed, as we are inform'd, by Sir James Thornhill, in the Reign of his late Majesty King George I.

Having thus given our Readers a satisfactory Account, as we humbly conceive, of the most remarkable Beauties of the Stair-Cafe, we shall next conduct them into the Royal Apartments.

On your first Admission you are shewn

The

The QUEEN'S GUARD-CHAMBER.

The Ceiling of this Room, which was painted by Verrio, (as indeed all the other Ceilings are in general throughout the whole Palace) represents Britannia, in all her Glory, seated on a Globe; and Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, paying their Court to her.

We shall here, for the Amusement of our Readers, introduce a short Description of the Emblematic Figures, in which these four Parts of the Globe are generally represented by the most accurate Painters, amongst the Antients; with a short Explication of the Instructions they imply.

Europe then, in the first Place, is delineated, as a Lady, in a very rich Habit, of diverse Colours, sitting between two crosses Cornucopias; the one, full of all Sorts of Grain, and the other of black and white Grapes: She holds a Temple in her Right Hand, and points with the fore-Finger of her Left to Scepters and Crowns; a Horse amongst Trophies of Arms; a Book also, with an Owl perching upon it; a Variety of Musical Instruments that lie by her, and a Pallet for a Limner with Pencils.

By all which Emblems they denote, that this Part of the Globe, is the principal, and most most conspicuous for Religion, Arts, and Arms.

150 The ROYAL PALACE

Asia is represented as another Lady, wearing a Garland of various Flowers and Fruits, and clad in a rich embroider'd Vestment, holding divers Branches in her Right Hand, with Roots of Cassia, Pepper, and Olives; and in her Left Hand, a smoking Censer, and on one Side of her, a Camel on its Knees.

By the Garland, with which her Head is so adorn'd, they would intimate, that Asia produces every thing that is not only delightful to the Eye, but whatever is requisite for the comfortable Support of humane Life: By her rich Garment, they intimate, that there is great Plenty of those rich Materials; by the Bundle of Spices, that she distributes her Favours all over the habitable World: The Censer denotes the odoriferous Gums, and other fragrant Spices it produces, and the Camel, is a Beast proper to this Quarter of the World.

Africa is represented by a Blackmoor Woman almost naked, having frizzled Hair, an Elephant's Head for a Crest, a Necklace of Coral, and Pendants of the same; at her Ear a Scorpion, holding in her Right Hand a Cornucopia, with Ears of Corn in her Left Hand; a fierce Lion by her on one Side, and a Viper and a Serpent on the other. By her being

being represented almost naked, they intimate that those Parts abound not with Materials for cloathing; the Elephant is an Animal peculiar to that Country, and Vipers and Serpents likewise are more numerous there, than in any other Place.

America is likewise represented by a Woman almost naked, with a tann'd, or tawny Aspect, having a Veil folded over her Shoulders; round her Body an artificial Ornament of Feathers of divers Colours; holding in her Hand a Bow, and having a Quiver on her Shoulder, or by her Feet, and a humane Head pierc'd thro' with an Arrow, and on the Ground a Lizard.

By her being painted almost naked, they intimate, that the greater Part of the Inhabitants always go so; and the Arms are what both Men and Women use there: The humane Head denotes, that they are Cannibals, or Men-Eaters; and the Lizards are reported to be so large in those Parts, as to devour a Man, whenever they can lay hold of him.

But to return to our Ceiling-piece.

In the Corners of the Cornish are Juno the Imperial Queen of Heaven, Mars the God of War, Venus the Queen of Love and Beauty, and Minerva, or Pallas, the Goddess of Wisdom.

The

152 · The ROYAL PALACE

The Skirtings round the Ceiling are beautifully embellish'd with twelve several Figures, like Female Angels, with Wings on their Shoulders; each having by her one of the twelve Signs, or Symbols of the Zodiack; a particular Account of which, with a curious Explication of those several Hieroglyphicks, we have already interted in the 18th. Page of our Account of the Royal Palace of Hampton Court, to which we shall refer the Reader to avoid Repetitions.

There are a Variety likewise of other Figures, such as Zephyrs, Cupids, &c. all making their Court to Britannia, by way of further Decoration.

Over the Chimney is a beautiful * Portrait of Prince George of Denmark, all in Armour, with a loose Coat thrown over it, riding on a stately Horse, like Alexander's Bucephalus, with a martial Truncheon in his Hand; and underneath the Coat is plainly to be discern'd his blue Garter. On the Right Side of him is a distant Prospect of a strong Fort, and of a Fleet at some considerable Distance likewise on the Left. This beautiful Piece was painted by Mr. Dabl.

The whole Apartment is embellish'd with Whole pikes, Half pikes, and Quarter pikes; and upon them are Carbines, Bayonets, Bandoliers, Match-boxes, &c. all dispos'd in various rious Forms ; in which are carv'd Garters and Crowns in Lime-wood, with the Cypher of C. R. i.e. Carolus Rex, or King Charles, in the Middle : Besides these warlike Decorations, there are rich Tables, Stools, and other Household Furniture, in some Measure suitable to the Grandeur of the Room.

From this Chamber you go into

The KING's CHAPPEL.

The Ceiling represents, in the most lively Manner, the glorious Ascension of our Blessed Saviour into Heaven, who stands in all his Glory in the Center, with a numerous Train of Angels waiting round him. On the West Side is delineated the Tomb, or Sepulchre, from whence he arose with such Pomp and Magnificence ; and all round the Cornish are the Soldiers, that were set over him as a Watch, all fast asleep.

Tho' this be a Scripture-History, and doubtless very well known ; yet we flatter ourselves that a short Narrative of so remarkable a Passage, recorded in Sacred Writ, will be look'd upon as no disagreeable Amusement to any one, much less to such Readers, as may be seriously inclin'd.

With-

154 The ROYAL PALACE

Without making therefore any Apology, we shall venture to introduce the Story.

Our blessed Lord and Saviour having accomplish'd his Sacrifice on the Cross, and continu'd obedient unto Death, there happen'd a Variety of such extraordinary Circumstances, as discover'd beyond all Contradiction who he was, and made the Jews themselves conscious of the enormous Crime they had committed.

The Heavens were overspread with thick Clouds of Darkness during the Space of three whole Hours; the Veil of the Temple was rent from Top to Bottom; the Earth quak'd, the Rocks split; the Graves were open'd; the dead Bodies of many Saints, which slept, arose, and not only left their respective Tombs, but appear'd to divers Persons in Jerusalem.

So many extraordinary Signs or Tokens of the Dignity of him, whom the Jews had so unjustly, as well as inhumanly crucified, made the Centurion (who commanded the Soldiers) and they that were with him to watch our blessed Saviour, say, that doubtless this Man was the Son of God. The Rest, astonish'd at these unexpected Prodigies, spake to the same Purpose; and this great Assembly of the People, which came to this Spectacle, beholding such strange Things, chang'd their Insults into to Sighs, and return'd back with the utmost Compunction and Grief of Heart.

In the mean Time, the Jews, not being very willing that the dead Bodies of our Saviour and the two Thieves, who were crucified with him, should remain on the Cross, during the Time of their Passover, made their earnest Applications to Pilate, that the Thighs of these Criminals (as they took them to be) should be broken, and their Bodies be afterwards taken down from the Cross, to which Pilate very readily consented.

The Soldiers, having found the two Thieves as yet alive, broke their Legs, as they were order'd ; but as our blessed Lord was actually dead, one amongst them only pierc'd his Side with a Lance, from whence issued out a Profusion of Water and Blood.

At Night, one of our Saviour's Disciples, tho' unknown, named Joseph, of the City of Arimathea, who was a good Man, and no Ways concern'd in the Death of the blessed Jesus, came boldly to Pilate, to beg our Saviour's Body, which Pilate granted without the least Hesitation. Whereupon Joseph, together with a Friend of his, one Nicodemus, took the Body of our Lord, and embalming it with precious Spices, and shrouding it in a fine Linnen Cloth, buried it in a New Tomb, or Sepulchre, which he had hewn out of a Rock ;

156 The ROYAL PALACE

Rock, and he roll'd a great Stone to the Door of the Sepulchre, and departed. And there was Mary Magdalen, and Mary, the Mother of James and Joseph, sitting over against the Sepulchre.

Notwithstanding our blessed Lord lay thus buried in the Sepulchre, yet this did not altogether satisfy the Jews; for they were apprehensive, lest it should be publish'd, that he was Risen; for which Reason, they went in a Body to Pilate, telling him, that this Impostor had said, when he was living, that he would rise again after his Death; and entreated him to set a Watch by the Sepulchre, lest his Disciples should steal away his Body, and afterwards publicly assert, that he was actually risen.

Thus they blinded themselves with their own Wisdom; for by endeavouring to prevent beforehand (as much as in them lay) the Resurrection of our Saviour, they confirm'd the Belief of the Fact by such particular Proofs, as were too strong to be contested.

For the Sepulchre being so strongly guarded, and the Stone which secur'd it so safely seal'd, there immediately arose a great Earthquake: The Angel of the Lord, descending from Heaven, roll'd away the Stone which lay before the Sepulchre, and sat thereon: His Eyes shin'd like like

like Lightning, and his Garments were as white as Snow.

The Guards that lay near the Sepulchre, were struck with Terror, and became as dead Men ; wherefore they hasten'd to Jerusalem, and told the Priests, what strange Things has happen'd. Whereupon they immediately assembled, to consult together what Method, were best to be taken in an Affair of such Moment and Importance.

They could not find out (with all their Cunning) a better Expedient, against a Fact, that was so self-evident, than to corrupt these Soldiers with a considerable Sum of Money ; in Return for which they were peremptorily to maintain and assert, that whilst they slept, our Saviour's Disciples came and stole his Body away.

In the mean Time, Mary Magdalen, and some other Holy Women, whose Love was the same to Jesus, both living and dead, being come early to the Sepulchre, in order to perfume his Body with Spices, consulted amongst themselves, who should roll away the Stone, that obstructed their Passage to the Sepulchre : But they were greatly surpriz'd, as they drew near to it, to see it open ; and yet more so, when they enter'd in, and could not find the dear Body of him, whom they thus devoutly search'd for.

Mary Magdalen ran immediately to give Notice of this to the Apostles, and St. Peter being come to the Sepulchre with St. John, saw the Linnen-Cloaths wherewith the Body of Jesus Christ was wrapp'd. But they going away in an Astonishment, Mary Magdalen tarried behind, shedding Tears in the Sepulchre, when two Angels, cloath'd in white Rayment, one of which stood at the Head, and the other at the Foot of the Place where the Body of Jesus Christ lay, ask'd her, why she wept? To which she answer'd; That the Body of our Lord was taken away, and she knew not where it was laid. And the Angel said, "Fear not, I know that you seek JESUS, who was crucified: He is not here, but is risen, as he said; Come, see the Place where the Lord lay, and go quickly, and tell his Disciples, that he is risen from the Dead; and behold he goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him: Lo, I have told you."

Having thus given the Reader a short Narrative of the Subject made Choice of for the Decoration of this Ceiling, the next Painting that strikes the Eye, in the most agreeable Manner, is the Altar-Piece, which is a lively Representation of our blessed Saviour's last Supper with his Disciples, in a fine Taste. The Room, which our Lord and the Apostles are suppos'd to be in, has a Dome, thro' which which is seen the Real Organ belonging to the Chappel.

All along the North Side are represented as many of the Miracles of our blessed Saviour, as Verrio, who painted it, thought proper to introduce, and between each Division are painted Columns, twisted, and adorn'd in a very agreeable Manner.

Amongst the Group of Spectators is Verrio himself, in a full black Wig, who looks directly at you, whilst all the rest appear very attentive to the Subject of the Picture.

On the West Side, fronting the Altar is erected a Gallery for the Reception of the Royal Family, beautifully embellish'd with carv'd Work, consisting of Crowns, Stars, Garters, Cyphers, &c. and furnish'd with a large Scarlet Velvet Canopy, Curtains, and Cushions trim'd with Gold.

On the South Side, between the Windows, are painted a great Number of twisted Pillars of the Corinthian Order.

Under the Gallery, on each Side of the Passage, there is a small Sacristy, or little Room for depositing the Sacerdotal Vestments, Books, and other necessary Materials belonging to the Chappel.

The next grand Apartment is that which is call'd St. George's Hall, of which nothing can be said equal to what the Eye may be a Witness to.

As you enter, you pass under a large Gallery, with Iron Ballustrades, finely wrought and gilt, which is supported by four Wooden Figures, beautifully carv'd and painted; each about ten Feet in Height, who support the Gallery, and stand in fine Attitudes, bending, as it were, under their heavy Burthen, and representing a Father and his three Sons, whom the valiant Black Prince (Son of King Edward III. whom we shall have Occasion to speak of more largely in another Place) had made Captives at Legborn.

The Ceiling is pompously embellish'd with the Representation of his late Majesty King William III. (surrounded by the Graces) trampling with his Right Foot on a Lion's Head.

A little below, the Figure of Justice is display'd, with her Sword and Scales, and a great Variety of other Emblematic Figures, as an additional Decoration.

In the Front (being the West End) is seated his late Majesty King William III. on a Throne, richly dress'd, in the Order of the Garter, with his

his Cap on his Right Hand, and the Crown on his Left.

This Painting is look'd upon as one of Sir Godfrey Kneller's most accurate Performances. There are five Steps of real Marble going up to the Picture, and a fictitious one of five more on the Canvas, so naturally painted, that they deceive, in the most agreeable Manner, the Eye of almost every Spectator.

This was contriv'd by the Painter, to supply the Place of the real Ascent with Marble, a Ballustrade and a half Pace, which formerly were actually there, with Room for a Throne, or Chair of State for the Sovereign to sit on, when on publick Days he thought proper to make his Appearance in due Form.

Over this Throne, on which his Majesty is thus seated in State, is a most curious Picture of St. GEORGE on Horse-back, in all his Warlike Accoutrements, and in the Action of killing the Dragon, by the same Hand.

We shall here, without any Apology for so doing, introduce the History of this Heroic Exploit of our English Champion, not doubting but it will prove to many, at least to our younger Readers, no disagreeable Amusement.

The STORY of St. George and the Dragon.

ST. George for England, one of the noblest Champions in the World, was born in the City of Coventry: His Father's Name was Albert, High-Steward of England. As soon as he was born, he was put under the Care of three Nurses; one to give him suck, another to keep him asleep, and a third to provide him Food. But there was a wicked Enchantress; whose Name was Calyt, that liv'd in a Cave, in the Middle of a thick Wood, and she found an Opportunity to steal him from the Nurses, and kept him in this Cave till he was eighteen Years old. Then she furnish'd him with a strong Suit of Armour, an excellent Horse, and the sharpest Sword in the World; and he set out from the Cave to seek Adventures.

He travell'd till he came to the Borders of the Kingdom of Egypt, where meeting with a poor Hermit, St. George ask'd him, where he might have a Lodging for himself and his Horse?

Horse? Alas! Sir, said the Hermit, you seem to be a Stranger in this Country, and it is very unhappy for you that you are come into it; for the whole Country is almost destroy'd by a terrible Dragon, who devours every Day a young Virgin, insomuch that he hath now destroy'd all the Virgins in the Kingdom, except the King's Daughter, and she is to be sent To-morrow Morning to be devour'd by him.

St. George, hearing this, was determin'd to deliver the King's Daughter from the Jaws of the Dragon, or to lose his Life in the Attempt. He stay'd all Night in the Hermit's Cave, and rising early the next Morning, he buckled his Armour on, and mounting his Horse, rode towards the Place where the Hermit told him the Dragon was.

He had not gone far before he overtook them, leading the King's beautiful Daughter to the Place where she was to be devour'd, and addressing himself to the Princess, Fair Lady, said he, it were Pity that so much Beauty should become a Prey to the Jaws of a merciless Dragon, I therefore beg that you will go back to your Father's Palace; for I am determin'd either to kill this Dragon, or to lose my Life. Sir, Knight, answer'd the Princess, I am surpris'd that a Stranger should so generously hazard his Life for my Sake; but if you are re-
solv'd

164 The ROYAL PALACE

solv'd upon it, I will go back to my Father's Court, and pray for your Success.

So she return'd to her Father's, and St. George enter'd the Valley, and advanc'd towards the Dragon's Cave, where the Dragon lay. The Dragon no sooner saw him, but he sent forth such terrible Roarings, that all the Valley shook with the Noise. St. George was not at all daunted; but setting Spurs to his Horse, ran furiously against him with his Spear. The Scales of the Dragon were so hard, that the Spear was broke in a thousand Pieces; and the Dragon fought so furiously with his Wings and his Tail, that St. George had much ado to sit upon his Horse. At last the Dragon, opening his wide Mouth, was just going to devour both St. George and his Horse; but the Saint, turning nimbly about, thrust his Sword down his Throat, and pierc'd him thro' the Heart, so that he fell down under his Horse's Feet. Then alighting from his Horse, he cut off the Head of the Dragon, and fixing it on the point of the broken Spear, he carried it in Triumph to the King's Court, where great Rejoicings were made. The fair Princess, whom he had deliver'd from Death, presented him with a Diamond Ring of great Value, and after some Time became his Wife.

Tho' this Tale perhaps may prove sufficiently satisfactory to the Young and the Gay; yet

yet as 'tis told with the Air of a Romance, and several Authors of good Repute much question whether there ever was such a Hero as is here describ'd, or not; we shall, for the Entertainment of the more serious, have Recourse to History for the further Illustration of the Subject before us.

St. George was born in Cappadocia, in the latter End of the third Century. His Parents being Christians, afforded him the Advantage of being educated in that Religion. He is said to have lost his Father during his Minority; that he travell'd with his Mother, upon this Misfortune into Palestine, she being a Native of that Country, and having a considerable Estate there, which fell to her Son St. George, who being well descended, and having the Advantage of Youth and Strength of Limbs, undertook the Profession of a Soldier, and was made a Tribune or Colonel; in which Post, behaving with great Courage and Conduct, he was preferr'd to higher Stations in the Army by the Emperor Dioclesian. This Prince, having resolv'd on a Persecution of the Christians, and proceeded with great Cruelty in the Execution, St. George immediately laid aside the Distinction of an Officer, went to the Senate-House, and complain'd to the Emperor in publick of his Severities to the Christians, remonstrating, at the same Time, against the Idolatry of the Roman Worship, and arguing boldly in Defence of the Christian Faith.

Faith. Tho' this Remoustrance was a great Provocation to the Emperor, and the whole Senate, yet they endeavour'd to bring him off of his religious Principles with Offers of Honour and Promotion : But not being able to prevail on him by any such mean Motives, they put him to the Question, and tortur'd him with great Cruelty : And perceiving at last that his Constancy was not to be shaken, he was sent to Prison, and order'd to be drawn thro' the City, and beheaded the next Day ; which Sentence was accordingly executed : And thus St. George receiv'd the Crown of Martyrdom on the 30th. Day of April, in the Year of our Lord 290. The Memory whereof is preserv'd to this Day with Abundance of Pomp and Solemnity by our British Courtiers.

Tho' several Authors have strenuously asserted, that there never was such a Person in Being, as this St. George is represented, yet his Honour has been so well establish'd in Christendom, that not only several Religious Houses, but several Churches have been erected to his Memory. Moreover, he has the Honour to be esteem'd the Patron of Genoa, where St. George's Bank, and St. George's Regiment are very well known. He has likewise the Respect of a Saint paid him in the Country of Iberia in Asia, now call'd Georgia.

The Reason why St. George has been esteem'd the Protector of Military Men in Christenstendom, is partly on the Score of his Profession, and partly on the Credit of a Relation of his Appearance to the Christian Army in the Holy War, before the Battle at Antioch. The Success of this Battle, proving fortunate to the Christians, under Godfrey of Bologne, made the Memory of St. George shine out with a new Lustre, and dispos'd the Military Men to apply more particularly to his Intercession.

This Opinion of St. George's Assistance is farther fortified by his Appearance afterwards (as it is reported) to King Richard I. in his Expedition against the Saracens at Cyprus and Acon, which Apparition being declar'd to the English Army was a great Encouragement to the Troops, who soon after defeated the Enemy.

As to St. George's being represented on Horse-back, and tilting at a Dragon, under his Feet ; this is no more than an Emblematical Figure, and only signifies how he conquer'd the Devil, the Dragon in the Revelations, by his Faith and Christian Fortitude.

On each Side of this beautiful Piece of our English Champion is a Nich ; in one of which is a large Female Figure, with two Keys in her Hand ; and in the other, is the Figure of a Man, with his Right Foot upon a Wheel : What these Emblems or Symbols were intended by the Painter to express, we are at a Loss absolutely to determine, so shall wholly submit mit it to the better Judgment and Decision of the Spectator.

Over the Gallery which fronts these Figures is the Representation of a Lady in a Chair of State, with several little Boys, attending round her, holding the Paraphernalia belonging to the Order. Under this Figure is an Inscription, in a beautiful Compartment, wherein Verrio is mention'd to be a Neapolitan, and to be employ'd in these, and divers other curious Paintings, by King Charles II. King William III. and King George I.

The Decorations on the South Side (between the Windows) consist of various Columns, or Pillars, beautifully painted, and which strike the Eye in a very agreeable Manner.

On the North Side is represented, in the most elegant Manner, the remarkable Triumph of the Black Prince, the Eldest Son of that successful English Monarch, King Edward III. on Account of his entire Defeat of the French, at the Battle of Poitiers, in which their then Royal Commander, King John, and a great Number of other Persons of high Rank and Distinction were taken Prisoners. At the Upper End, King Edward his Father is seated on a pompous Throne, and the young Prince his Son, cloath'd as a Cæsar, with a Crown of Laurel on his Head, is represented as approaching him in a triumphal Car, supported on the Shoulders of several Slaves.

There is a numerous Train of Attendants; gayly drest, that wait on their victorious Master; together with a select Number of Captives; that close the Procession; the Representation whereof is so very grand, and the Figures so large, that the whole Performance takes up the greater Part of that Side of the Hall.

As this Part of the Hall principally strikes the Eye, and excites the Curiosity of almost every Beholder, we shall here for the Readers further Amusement, as well as Instruction, give him a compendious Historical Account both of King Edward the Father, and Edward the Son, who were, when living, the Pride and Glory of the English Nation.

Edward III. King of England, commonly call'd; from his Birth-Place, Edward of Windsor, succeeded his Father King Edward II. upon his Resignation of the Crown in 1327. whose Reign prov'd a Blessing to England, and a Scourge to France and Scotland. At Home he clear'd the Kingdom of Mertimer, Earl of March, an obnoxious Person upon several Accounts. From the Scots he recover'd Berwick; and Robert Bruce being dead, he forc'd upon them Edward Palioi for their King, from whom he receiv'd Homage. And to support him in his Throne, he went no less than four Times to Scotland. To France he laid Claim, as next Heir by his Mother's Side, upon the Death of her Brother Charles IV. King of France, the youngest Son of Philip IV. who died without Issue: Which occasion'd our famous Wars in France, against Philip, surnamed Valois, who had seiz'd upon the Kingdom, under Colour of a Salique Law, which excluded Women from all Right or Title to the Crown. And such was our Success in these Wars, that King Edward march'd up to the very Heart of France, making great Devastations along the River Seine, almost to the Gates of Paris. In these Wars were fought the two famous Battles of Cressy and poitiers, where the King's eldest Son, Edward the Black Prince, with a small Body of English, defeated a numerous Army of French, whose pompous Triumph, on that remarkable Conquest, is the Subject of the beautiful Paintings, which we have above describ'd.

The Battle at Cressy was fought in the Reign of King Philip; and that of poitiers, in the Reign of King John, who was his immediate Successor, and was taken Prisoner with Philip, his youngest Son.

When the News of this surprizing Victory was related to King Edward, with all the Circumstances of his Son's generous Deportment to his Royal Captives, it is said, the Father ther was more transported with that Part of the Narrative, than with all the rest.

In short, Historians assert, that two such Princes were never known to have so universal a good Character, at the same Time, as this our Edward, and his Heroic Son.

About this Time David Bruce, Son of Robert, King of Scotland, had, by the Favour of a strong Party, assisted by the French, depos'd King Baliol, and rais'd himself upon the Throne of Scotland. Being a profess'd Enemy to the English, he was easily prompted to attempt a War with England, and he took his Time for it, when King Edward was taken up with the long Siege of Calais. But at Navil's Cross, near Durham, his Army was entirely routed, and himself taken Prisoner; Queen Philippa, the Wife of King Edward, being herself in the Field: So that England had then the Glory of having, at one and the same Time, two Foreign Kings Prisoners, viz. John, King of France, and David, King of Scotland, two noble Subjects of Triumph. Here was also, at the same Time, a King of Cyprus; and those three Kings, together with King Edward, one Henry Ricard, then Lord Mayor, had the Honour to feast together at his own Expence.

'Twas in this Reign, that the Title of the Duke of Cornwall was first conferr'd on the victovictorious Edward, the Black Prince, which has been continu'd ever since, as a Birth-right to the Eldest Son of England. And his present Royal Highness Frederick, Prince of Wales, having erected at the lower Part of his Gardens at Carlton-House, adjoining to St. James's Park, a fine Bathing Room, or Grotto, over which is a Dining Room, richly adorn'd both within and without, has thought fit to commemorate his great and glorious Predecessor, in that Place.

172 The ROYAL PALACE

Amongst many other Decorations there, which are foreign to our Purpose, and not proper here to enumerate, are two curious Busto's on each Side of the Door; one representing the renown'd King Alfred, and the other Edward the Black Prince, who are both recorded in our English Annals, with all the Encomiums due to their uncommon Merit.

Under the First is the following Inscription, in Gold Characters.

ALFREDO MAGNO

Anglorum Reipublicæ Libertatis

Fundatori;

Justo, forti, bono,

Legislatori, Duci, Regi;

Artium Musarumque

Fautori eruditissimo;

Patriæ

OF WINDSOR.

173

Patriæ Patri ;

Posuit.

P. W. P.

www.Mibtool.com.cn

Which in English runs thus.

To ALFRED the GREAT,

Founder of the English Commonwealth and Liberty, the Just Law-giver, the brave
Leader, and good King ; the most learned Patron of Arts and Sciences ; and the Father of his Country.

Frederick, Prince of Wales, rais'd this Bust, in the Year 1733.

Under the Other,

EDWARD,

Edwardi Tertii Regis Filio,

Optimo, piissimo,

Gallie Debellatori ;

Qui

Partis strenue Victorus

Modeste et clementer Usus,

Laudetur

Q. J.

1733

174 The ROYAL PALACE

Animi Alti, benevoli, Verecundi,
 Lauru omni Triumphali
 Potiorem honestioremque
 Merito sibi vindicavit;
 Principi præclarissimo,
 Antecessori et Exemplari suo;
 Posuit
 F. W. P.
 MDCXXXV.

In English thus.

In Honour of the most renown'd Prince Edward, Son of King Edward III. his Predecessor and Pattern, the most excellent and pious Conqueror of France, who using the Victories gain'd by his Valour with Moderation and Clemency, justly challeng'd the Glory of a sublime, benevolent, and condescending Spirit; as being more desirable and honourable, than all the Ornaments of Triumph.

Frederick, Prince of Wales, rais'd this Bust, in the Year 1735.

But to return to our History.

This Reign of Edward III. is memorable besides for the Institution of the most noble Order

Of WINDSOR: 175

Order of the Garter, for the Removal of the Staple of English Wool out of Flanders, where it was formerly settled into England; and for the Conquest of the Isle of Man from the Scots.

In this Reign also died the Hopes of the English Nation, the incomparable Edward, the Black Prince, whose Death hasten'd that of his Royal Father: For not long after, he died at Shene in Surry, and was buried at Westminster; having liv'd to the Age of 65 Years, and reign'd something above 50.

By Philippa his Wife beformention'd, who was the Daughter of the Earl of Hainbault, he had 7 Sons and 5 Daughters. Two of his Sons died in their Infancy, viz. William of Hatfield, and William of Windsor; the other five were Edward, the Black Prince, his Eldest (whose Son Richard succeeded next to the Crown) Licnel Duke of Clarence, John of Guant, Duke of Lancaster, Edmund, Duke of York, and Thomas Duke of Gloucester.

His Daughters were Isabel, Joan, Blanche, Mary, and Margaret. Amongst which, Blanche died young.

Such of our Readers as shall be desirous of being farther inform'd of the Reign of this King, and the noble Exploits of our Black Prince, (who, on Account of his Warlike Deeds

176 The ROYAL PALACE

Deeds and not on Account of his Colour, was so distinguish'd) may consult Sneed, and the Life of Edward III. written by Dr. Barnes.

www.libtool.com.cn

This Story (as we are credibly inform'd) was painted, in another Manner, by the same Hand, viz. Mr. Verrio, in the Beginning of King William's Reign, and to remain'd, it seems, for several Years: For as soon as it was finish'd, the then Earl of Exeter, who was a great Admirer of all Arts, but particularly of fine Painting, employ'd him for twelve Years successively at his Country Seat, call'd Barleigh House, near Stamford, where he allow'd him a Coach and Horses, an Equipage, a Table, and several Servants, and a very considerable Pension.

After the Expiration of so many Years, King William entertain'd him again: And, as the Connoisseurs in Painting had found some Faults with his Capital Performance of the Triumph beforemention'd, directed him to cancel the Former, and make a Second Attempt, which Orders he accordingly obey'd, and threw it into the advantageous Light it now stands in, and which, 'tis presunt'd, will admit of no future Improvements.

Tho' we might very naturally, after this Account, introduce some Memoirs of this celebrated Painter; yet as he was good for little else; and as his Conduct was ungenerous, not to say say dishonest, towards all with whom he had to do, we shall throw a Veil over him, and refer those, who are more curious and inquisitive than ordinary, to the Inhabitants of Stamford aforesaid, where he resided for so many Years, for a Character of him, with Regard to his Deportment in private Life.

But to return to the Hall.

We have but one Piece more which deserves the Reader's Attention, and that is a fine Portrait (which is deposited over the Door, in a Corner just by the Gallery) of the Lady, who lost her Garter at an Assembly, which was taken up by King Edward, and was (as some will have it) the Original Cause of the Institution of that antient and honourable Order.

Whether this Story be grounded on Fact or not, we shall not presume to determine; since several Historians, of good Repute, are divided in their Opinion, with Respect to the Rise and Origin of that antient and illustrious Society. Some conjecture, that it arose from a Battle wherein Edward came off victorious, and wherein the Private Signal, or Watch-Word, that was then given, was the Garter.

Camden asserts, that Edward III. was the Founder of it, with no other View, than to do just Honours to all Heroic Atchievements,
and

178 The ROYAL PALACE

and to encourage all those who were distinguish'd by their Birth, to distinguish themselves by their uncommon Merit.

www.libtool.com.cn

The Original Book of the Institution ascribes the Invention of it to King Richard I. but acknowledges indeed, that King Edward very much adorn'd it, and made it shine in its full Lustre. The common receiv'd Notion, however, is this, that the Garter of King Edward's Consort, or (as some imagine) of Joan, then Countess of Salisbury, slipping off in a Dance, the King stoop'd himself, and took it up.

Some Noblemen, upon this Condescension of his Majesty, smiling at it, as a Mark of Royal Gallantry, he assur'd them with an Air of Gravity, that it should not be long before publick Honours should be done to that Garter; whereupon afterwards, he added the French Motto to it, which the Arms of the Crown still bear, viz. Honi soit qui mal y pense, or Evil be to him that Evil thinks, as a gentle Repri-mand to those, who put such a loose Construction on his innocent Intentions.

Having detain'd our Readers, we fear, somewhat too long in this Hall (tho' doubtless a very delightful one) we shall now conduct them into

The

THE KING'S GUARD-CHAMBER.

www.libtool.com.cn

In the Center of the Ceiling there is a Dome, on the Top whereof are Jupiter and Juno, seated on a Celestial Throne; with Mercury, the Messenger of Heaven, in Waiting, underneath them.

The Ceiling below the Dome is likewise gayly decorated. On one Side of it, is the Goddess Iris, richly array'd, and seated in all her Graudeur on her Bow, which strikes the Eye, in the most agreeable Manner, with its variegated Colours; on the other Side of the Dome are Mars, and Bellona, the God and Goddess of War, with other suitable Decorations.

Over the Chimney is a * Picture of that celebrated Hero, Charles the XIIIth, late King of Sweden, mounted on a second Bucephalus, in a warlike Habit, with a Truncheon in his Hand, and a Plume of Feathers in his Hat. This Piece is executed in a fine Taste, by the famous Vandyke, most of whose Performances are just Objects of universal Admiration.

The Room is decorated all round with a vast Number of Pikes, Carbines, and other Implements of War, particularly five Pieces of Armour mour compleate, and dispos'd at equal Distances: There are besides Breast-Plates, and Helmets, Three in a Row, and two Drums, alternately rang'd, all round the Cornish.

180 The ROYAL PALACE

The KING'S PRESENCE-CHAMBER.

On the Ceiling is Mercury, the Messenger of the Gods, with the Portrait of King Charles the I^{ld}, in his Hands, shewing it, with Transport, as it were, to the View of the four Quarters of the World, with a vast Variety of other Emblematical Figures, all beautifully display'd, in their proper Places.

The Room is hung with rich Tapestry Hangings, which are the Representation of some antient Roman Story, but what in particular, we are at a Loss to determine. As the Lights are Gold, however, they have a very good Effect, and are no disagreeable Decoration.

Over the Chimney is the Portrait of the late Countess of Dorset, drawn by Sir Peter Lilly.

Over one Door is a Madona, and over another, the Portrait of Father Jaul. The Canopy is a rich flower'd Scarlet Velvet. The Curtains, Chairs, and Stools are cover'd with Velvet

Velvet likewise, and of the same Colour. Under a fine Pier-Glass there is a large Silver Table, beautifully engraved; as also two Silver Stands, neatly engraved, but by what Hand in particular, we cannot presume to say.

THE AUDIENCE ROOM.

On the Ceiling is depicted Britannia, treading, in a triumphant Manner, on the Head of a Lion, with a vast Variety of other Emblematic Figures round about her.

Over one of the Doors is a half Length Portrait of St. Peter, with his Fish; and James and John behind him, drawn, in an elegant Manner, by Lucas Jordaine. Over the Chimney is the Portrait of the late Dutchess of Salisbury, by Sir Peter Lilly.

Over another Door is a beautiful * History-piece, by Vandyke, in which our Blessed Saviour is represented as standing, like a Criminal, before Pontius Pilate, who, notwithstanding his private Conviction of our Lord's being a just Person, and altogether innocent of the Facts, whereof he was accus'd; and notwithstanding he was willing indeed, if possible, to save him from the Fury of the People, and wash'd his Hands publickly before them, as a Testimony that he was not guilty of his Blood,

R

yet

182 The ROYAL PALACE

yet being a worldly-minded Man, and afraid of giving Distaste at Court, without the least Regard either to Justice or Humanity, not only condemn'd him at that time to be Scourg'd, but afterwards pronounc'd Sentence of Death upon him, which was executed accordingly.

Over the Door, leading to the next Room, is another History-piece, wherein the Apostles are represented, as looking into our Saviour's Sepulchre after his miraculous Ascension.

The Room is hung a'll round with rich, but very antique Tapestry, representing some religious Rites and Ceremonies of the Jews.

The Canopy, Chair, and Stools are all cover'd with rich Velvet, trimm'd with Silver.

The DRAWING - ROOM.

On the Ceiling is beautifully represented his late Majesty King Charles the 1st, riding in a triumphant Car, and trampling under his Feet the Figures of Envy and Ignorance. Over the Chimney is the Protrait of a celebrated Philosopher, in a Chinese Dress, with a Crucifix in his Hand, painted by Sir Godfrey Kneller. On one Side is a Magdalen, in a fine Taste; and on the other Venus and Adonis, by Rubens. Over the Door is the Head of John the Baptist, in a Charger.

The

The KING'S BED-CHAMBER.

www.libtool.com.cn

On the Cieling is delineated King Charles the II^d, seated on his Throne in his Robes of State, with a Figure, dress'd in a Mantle, embroidered with Flower-de-luces, representing France, as an humble Supplicant, kneeling at his Feet. Over one Door is a History-piece of one of St. Paul's Persecutions; and over another, the Portrait of King Charles the II^d, when but a Youth, by Vandyke. The Bed and Curtains are all of blue Damask, richly trimm'd with Gold Fringe. There are Silver Sconces regularly dispos'd all round the Room. Over the Chimney are plac'd three curious Marble-Busts; and the Tapestry Hangings are a Representation of the well-known Story of Hero, and Leander. The Lover is in the Action of Swimming over the Helespont, and his Mistress is waiting, with Concern for his safe Arrival, on the Shore.

The KING'S DRESSING-ROOM.

On the Cieling is represented the Fabulous History of Jupiter, descending into the Lap of the beautiful Danae, in a Golden Shower. Over one Door is a naked Venus, by Rubens;

R. 2

and

184 The ROYAL PALACE

and over another, a gay Bacchanal, by Jordaine.

www.libtool.com.cn The KING's CLOSET.

On the Cieling is beautifully represented the Fabulous History of Jupiter's Amour with Leda, under the Transformation of a Swan. On the Left Hand as you enter; is a large Piece of Needle-work, in a fine Frame, wrought, as we are inform'd, by Mary, Queen of Scots. The Story is a Confession, and the Figures that are introduc'd into it, are near four Foot high. Over the Chimney are plac'd three Marble Busts. Over one Door is a Magdalen; over another, a sleeping Cupid, by Titian; and over a third, a Psyche, the young and beauteous Mistress of Cupid.

The KING's DRAWING-ROOM.

On the Cieling is represented the Pantheon, or an Assembly of all the Gods. Over the Chimney is the Portrait of the Lady Digby, by Vandyke. The Room is hung all round with rich Tapestry.

The

The QUEEN'S BED-CHAMBER.

www.libtool.com.cn

On the Cieling is represented Morpheus, the God of Sleep, indulging himself in Indolence and Ease, with his Head reclin'd in the Lap of a venerable old Man, who has Wings upon his Shoulders. Over the Chimney is the Holy Family, by Rafaëlle.

The Bed, being of a rich Velvet, made in England, the Ground whereof is White, embossed with a great Variety of blue and scarlet Flowers, is cover'd with a Yellow Silk. The Curtains to the Windows are of the same Silk as the Cover. The Skreen, Chairs, and Stools are made up of the same wrought Velvet as the Bed.

The BEAUTY-ROOM.

This Room is furnish'd with fourteen several Portraits of the reigning Beauties; all Half-Lengths, and painted by Sir Peter Lilly.

The NAMES of these celebrated LADIES are as follow, viz.

www.libtool.com.cn

- 1 Mrs. Knott.
- 2 Mrs. Lawfon.
- 3 Lady Sunderland.
- 4 Lady Rochester.
- 5 Lady Denham.
- 6 The Sister of the said Lady Denham.
- 7 Mrs. Middleton.
- 8 Lady Byrom. N. B. This Piece stands over the Chimney.
- 9 The Dutcheß of Richmond.
- 10 The Countess of Northumberland.
- 11 Lady Gramont.
- 12 Dutcheß of Cleveland.
- 13 Dutcheß of Somerset. And
- 14 Lady Offery, Mother of the late Duke of Ormond.

The QUEEN'S DRESSING-ROOM.

In the Clofet, upon a Stool, is deposited an Ensign, or Standard, of white Sarcenet, near a Foot square, on which are three Flower-delucæ,

luces, neatly work'd ; by this the Charter of Blenheim is held. In the same Closet is a Portrait of her late Majesty Queen Caroline, without a Frame, and not put up. Here are likewise the Portraits of several Poets, Painters, and Philosophers. Over the Chimney are the Portraits of King Charles the First's Queen, King Charles the Second's Queen, and Queen Mary, when young, all in one Piece, by Vandyke. Over the Door is a Portrait of the Mother of her late Majesty Queen Anne, by Sir Peter Lilly.

Queen ELIZABETH'S-GALLERY, now
call'd the PICTURE-GALLERY.

Over the Door, is the well-known Story of Judith, and Holofernes, as recorded in the VIIth Chapter of the Book of Judith. On one Side of which, is the Portrait of King James the First, and on the other, the Portrait of his Royal Consort. There is a Dutch Family Piece on the Right, and Rome in Flames on the Left, but by what Hand, we cannot absolutely determine.

188 The ROYAL PALACE

The Furniture on the Left Side.

1. A Magdalen. ~~libtool~~. ~~appear'd~~, the mysterious Presents of Gold, Myrrh, and Frankincense. This Piece was performed, by Paul Veronese.
2. The Holy Family.
3. The Portrait of the late Emperor of Germany, in his Royal Robes. (A whole-Length.)
4. A Magdalen. (A Night-Piece) by Skalkin.
5. The Adoration of the Magi, or Wise-Men, who, being directed by a Star to the House where our Blessed Saviour lay in his Mother's Lap, not only fell down prostrate at his Feet and worshipp'd him, but offer'd him, notwithstanding the outward Poverty in which they both
6. The Conversion of St. Paul, as the Story is related in the XXII. Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.
7. The Story of the Sick Man, at the Pool of Bethesda, as the Story is related in the Vth Chapter of the Gospel of St. John. This Piece was painted by Raffaello.
8. The Fabulous Story of Perseus, and Andromeda.

9. A

9. A Conversation-Piece between Ara-tene, and Titian, by Titian. which lies in Heaps upon a Table; whilst the other is looking wishfully at the Scales, over his Shoulders. Above, is a little Shelf, with a Candle upon it, just extinguished.
10. * Two Misers, beautifully painted, by a Blacksmith. One is represented as weighing of Gold,

At the upper End of the Room, is a curious Amber Cabinet, and other valuable Furniture.

'The Furniture on the Right Side.

1. The Portrait of the young Duke of Gloucester, by Dabl.
2. The Portrait of his Royal Highness P. George of Denmark, (a whole-Length,) by the same Hand.
3. The Portrait of K. Henry the VIIIth, by Hans Holbein.
4. The Portrait of one Vandanelli, an Italian. Statuary, by Rembrant.
5. Fifteen several Portraits, all in a Row, of Roman Catholick Priests, of different Orders.
6. A Piece of Fowls, by Sneider.
7. A large Rural Piece, in low Life, by Bafsan.
8. A

8. A Representation of the famous Battle of the Spurs. Over which is inscrib'd, in Capitals, TERVAINE.
9. Two Views of Windsor-Castle, by Wafferman.
10. Two Italian Markets, by Michael Angelo.

The QUEEN'S DRAWING-ROOM.

Over the Door is the Story of Lot, and his two Daughters. Over another is a Dutch Family-Piece. The Room is hung with Tapestry, representing a great Variety of Rural Amusements. The Canopy is of rich flowered Velvet. Here are several Chairs, and Stools, likewise, cover'd with the same.

The DINING-ROOM.

In the Passage to it, is a fine Hunting-Piece, Six Yards by Eight, painted by Sneider. In the Front, is the Fabulous Story of Hercules at the Distaff, with his Mistress Omphale, beautifully painted, by Titian. Here is likewise a curious Night-Piece, so artfully dispos'd in a dark Place, as to have a very agreeable Effect, by Skalkin.

The

The BALL-ROOM.

www.libtool.com.cn

On the Cieling is represented Britannia, with various Emblematic Figures, denoting the Liberty of Europe. In the Cornishes are the Four Seasons, and the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack.

Over the Door is the Portrait of the famous Dunfessus. Over another, a Roman Charity, by Guido. In this Room, there are likewise two Chimneys; over the one is a beautiful Representation of the Arts and Sciences. And over the other, the Figure of Fame. Here are likewise a Holy Family-Piece, and a Satyr addressing Venus, dispos'd in proper Places, both well executed, The Room is hung with Brussel's Tapestry. Here is a large Pier-Glass, with a Silver Frame, a Silver Table underneath it, with the King's Arms, nearly engrav'd upon it, and a large Silver Stand on each Side.

The QUEEN'S AUDIENCE-ROOM.

On the Cieling is represented Queen Catharine, seated in a triumphal Chariot, with other suitable Decorations. Over the Door, on the Left Hand, is the Story of St. Stephen ston'd

192 The ROYAL PALACE

ston'd, as recorded in the VIIth Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. Over the Chimney is a Magdalen, just expiring, beautifully perform'd by Caraccio. www.libtool.com.cn

Over another Door is the History of Judith and Holofernes. Here is a Magnificent Throne with a Canopy, on which are two Plumes of fine Feathers. The Room is hung with rich Tapestry, and furnish'd with a Chair likewise, and two Stools, which are cover'd with rich Velvet.

The QUEEN'S PRESENCE-CHAMBER.

On the Ceiling is delineated Queen Catharine, surrounded like Venus, by the Graces. At one End of it is a Figure, representing Fidelity; and at the other, the Symbol of Secrecy, with other Decorations. Here is a fine Magdalen, with her Eyes fix'd steadfast on a Crucifix, by Sir Peter Lilly. Over the Chimney is the Story of Judith, and Holofernes, by Guido. The Room is hung with rich Tapestry, representing the various Persecutions of the Christians. And over the Door, is the Fabulous Story of Prometheus, struck dead by Jupiter, for presumptuously stealing away his Celestial Fire.

Having

Having thus given our Readers a cursory View of all the principal Beauties of the Royal Apartments, we shall conduct them, in the next Place, into the Inner Court, which lies on the Left Hand of the Grand-Stair-Cast, as they come down, notwithstanding the Curiosities there, as we are inform'd, are never expos'd to publick View, that Passage being free and open to none but the Royal Family.

Under the Piazza, on the West Side, which is pav'd with Stone, and supported by Stone arch'd Colonades, are two Wooden Benches, or Seats, scarce worth the mentioning; over the first, however, is hung up a very remarkable Pair of Stag's-Horns, which are at least four Yards wide.

Over the Colonades is a Stone Gallery, and over the Door of the Entrance into it, on the Left, is a whole-Length Portrait of the Donor of the Equestrian Statue, which stands in the Quadrangle, and of which we shall give a particular Account in its proper Place, drawn in a modern Dress, by Sir Godfrey Kneller.

In the Front is King David, playing on his Harp, with a Variety of other Musicians, who join in Concert with him. There are six Pillasters on each Side, painted in the Ionic Order, between which are four Statues; the First with a burning Heart in one Hand, and the other leaning on a Pillow, being a lively Representation of Christian Fortitude; the Second with a Bandage, or Fillet, over her Eyes, and her Hands resting on two Tables, to denote the Fervency of Devotion: The Third, with a Flame on her Head, and her Hands on her Breasts, as an Emblem of divine Meditation; the last with a Flame on her Head, a Book in her Hand, and a Flame on the Book, to intimate, that the sacred Scriptures were written by divine Inspiration.

194 The ROYAL PALACE

Over the Door on the Right Hand, is a Female Figure, with a Caduceus in her Hand, and a Star on her Head, which are the Emblems of Philosophy.

On the Cieling is delineated two Female Figures in a triumphal Car, with two Swans in Front. Jupiter's Eagle flies before them, and there are two little Cupids, as Attendants, with Doves in their Hands.

On the North Side of the Inner Court,

Are four Figures in arch'd Niches, representing Mars, the God of War, Juno, the Queen of Heaven, Jupiter, the God of Gods, and Neptune, the God of the wide Ocean.

In the Front on the same Side, in a Square
Nich,

www.libtool.com.cn
Is the Representation of a Roman Naval Engagement.

In the Front on the South Side, in a Square
Nich,

Are six Pilasters, carv'd in Stone, of the Composite Order.

Between the Pilasters,

Are 1st, The Story of Alexander, and Dio-genes in his Tub, which has been before related at large, in our Account of Hampton-Court.

2. Alexander taking up the Pencil of Zeuxes, one of the most celebrated Painters amongst the Ancients.

3. Alexander, at the Head of his Army. And

4. A Roman Sacrifice.

Observe, all these four last Pieces are perform'd in Stone-Colour.

196 The ROYAL PALACE

Under these curious Pieces, there is a Flight of seven Stone Steps, which goes up to the Queen's Stair-Case; on the Dome, whereof is represented the Battle of the Giants.

In the Front, under the Stairs, is Hercules painted, in Imitation of a Brass Statue.

There are two Flights of ten Stone Steps each, with wrought Iron Ballustrades, which lead to the Door of the Queen's Apartments.

On the Left Hand Side,

Vulcan is represented with his Attendants, very intent on forging the Armour of Achilles.

On the Left, in Front,

Is an Engagement between the Greeks and the Trojans.

On the Right,

Is represented, Hector slain, by the Hand of Achilles, and on the Left, Achilles himself, kill'd by Paris, who by Accident struck him with an Arrow in his Heel, in which Place alone, he was capable of being wounded.
On

On the West Side, over the Door, as you come in, are two Pieces of the same Size, with those above-mention'd. One whereof, is the Representation of the Trojan Fleet, and the other of the Grecian Fleet; all painted in Fresco on the Wall.

There being nothing further worth Observing in this inner - Court, the Spectator returns to the great Gate, fronting the Grand Stair-Case, before describ'd, which leads directly into the Quadrangle, or large Square; in the Center whereof, is the fine Brass Statue before-mention'd of King Charles the 2d, on Horse-back, erected on a large Square Pedestal, with Stone Steps; the Front of which, is embellish'd with the Cypher, (C. R.) or (Charles Rex.) surrounded with a Garter. On the Top are a Palm-Branch, a Crown of Laurel, a Scepter, and a Sword. The Royal Motto, Honi soit qui mal-y pense, i. e. Evil be to him that Evil thinks, is dispos'd in a Scroll, contriv'd for that Purpose.

The South Side is embellish'd with an agreeable Variety of emblematic Figures, expressive of the Art of Navigation.

On the West Side,

Is a Latin Inscription, within a Curtain, adorn'd with Flowers, the Purport whereof is,
S 3 that

198 The ROYAL PALACE

that TOBIAS RESTAT, who was an Inhabitant of Windsor, and one of his Majesty's Domestick Servants, erected that Monument, in the Year of our Lord, 1680, in order to perpetuate the Memory of his Royal Master, and to testify to the World, his grateful Acknowledgments of all the Favours, which from Time to Time had been conferr'd upon him.

The North Side of the Pedestal is embellish'd with a vast Variety of Fruits, &c. The whole is enclos'd with Iron Ballustrades, in a Square Form, with Lamp-Irons at each Angle. And Underneath it, is a curious Water-Engine, or Machine, for supplying the Royal Palace with Water, as Occasion shall require.

As there is nothing more Material to be view'd in this Quadrangle, we shall now conduct our Readers into the Park, which lies, contiguous, and is kept as smooth as a Carpet: At the Entrance whereof is erected a large Seat, with a high Back and Cover for the Head, which turns so easily, the whole being fix'd on an Iron or Brass Pin for that Purpose, that whoever sits in it, may turn it from the Wind, or the Sun, in Case either should prove incommodious, and may enjoy, even in a Storm, a perfect Calm. The Invention of this agreeable Machine is ascrib'd to Queen Elizabeth, who, tho' she took great Delight in being out in the Air, and even in the
the

the Rain, if not too violent, yet could not endure (as we have before observ'd) to be ruffled by the Wind.

www.libtool.com.cn

To conclude, all the Parks about Windsor are very agreeable and spacious. Even the Little Park (as it is generally call'd) is at least three Miles in Circumference: The great one Fourteen, and the Forest above Thirty.

The first is peculiar to the Court; the others are open and free for Riding, Hunting, or taking the Air, according as the Gentlemen, or Ladies who reside in the Parts adjacent, are respectively dispos'd.

In a Word, the Lodges in these Parks, which have been beautified by their respective Rangers, might, with Propriety enough, be call'd Palaces, were not their Glory eclips'd by the Palace itself, to which they belong.

Having thus taken a general Survey of all the most material Curiosities of this Royal Palace; at least, of those, which are daily expos'd to publick View, we imagine, a succinct Account of Eton College, (as it is so antient, and so stately a Building, and lies, as it were just underneath it,) will be thought no disagreeable Amusement, nor look'd upon as a forc'd, or an unnatural Conclusion of this our present Undertaking.

Tho'

Tho' Eton is not in the same County as Windsor, yet nothing parts them but a Wooden Bridge, that crosses the Thames; and the first Thing that strikes the Eye, is the College we speak of, which is allow'd on all Hands to be the finest School, or Seminary, for what is generally call'd Grammar Learning, that is to be met with, not only throughout the Kingdom of Great-Britain, but possibly throughout all Europe.

This Building, (the great School-Room only excepted) is very antient, and the Chappel is truly Gothic: Within these few Years, however, the Whole has been repair'd and beautify'd, at a very large Expence, out of the College-Stock, and a noble Library for the Reception of a vast Number of Books, has been added to it.

There is a fine Statue likewise erected in the great Court, in Commemoration of the Founder, by one Dr. Godolphin, who had been Dean of St. Paul's, and Provost of this College.

This College was founded by King Henry the VIth, who was a very munificent Prince, and a great Encourager of Learning in general, as is evident from his Founding King's - College in Cambridge, as well as This, to which those, who are brought up at Eton School, are yearly remov'd.
who

There is an annual Revenue, or Income, of about five thousand Pounds, settled upon this College, which maintains a Provost, a Vice-Provost, six Fellows, seventy Scholars, several Choristers, and other inferior Officers and Servants.

There are two Schools here, the Upper and the Lower. and each of them is divided into three distinct Classes.

There is one Master, and four Assistants, to each School.

In the latter, the Children are admitted very Young, and are there initiated into all School-Learning.

Whenever a Scholar is taken into the former, he must be able to make Latin Verses, and have likewise some Idea of the Greek Language.

There are a great Number of Children, for the most Part, of the best Families in England, and of Persons of the highest Rank and Distinction, who board with the Masters, and reside within the College, besides the seventy, who are upon the Foundation.

The

201 ~~The~~ ROYAL PALACE.

The Number of Scholars instructed here, are for the Generality, between four and five Hundred.

www.libtool.com.cn

The first Tuesday in August, is Annually set a-part for electing of Scholars, in order for their Removal to the University.

At this Time, the Provost of King's-College, one senior, and one junior Poser, who are Fellows, together with the Provost, the Vice-Provost, and the Head Master of Eton College, call the Scholars of the upper Class before them, and after a due Examination of them in the several Branches of their Learning, select Twelve, such as they judge best qualify'd, and enter their Names into a Roll, according to their Standing.

Notwithstanding such Inrollment, they are not directly remov'd from the School, but are oblig'd to wait till there are Vacancies fall in King's-College; and whenever any such happen, they are gradually remov'd.

A Scholar. thus elected, is receiv'd on the Foundation of King's-College, at his first Arrival there; where he pursues his Studies for three Years successively; after which he is entitl'd to a Fellowship, unless he forfeits his Right and Interest therein, either by Marriage,
Ex-

Ecclesiastical Preferment, &c. either of which is a sufficient Bar by the Statutes.

The Provost has a noble House and Garden for his own private Use, besides the free Use at Pleasure of the College-Gardens, which extend almost to the Thames Side, are well planted, and strike the Eye in a very agreeable Manner.

F I N I S.

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn

www.libtool.com.cn