P R E F A C E.

THE volume now offered to the public is designed to be at once a Reader and an Exercise Book. It is in its plan and arrangement especially adapted to follow, in the course of classical study, the author's edition of Arnold's First Latin Book, and accordingly presupposes that the pupil has, by the use of that or some similar work, or at least by the study of Latin grammar, become familiar with the common forms and inflections of the language. Starting from this point, it aims to introduce the learner to a true knowledge and appreciation of the structure and spirit of the Latin tongue; and thus to prepare him to enter with success and pleasure upon the consecutive study of some Latin author.

It is a matter of regret that classes are often put upon the study of Cæsar or Virgil, before they have acquired sufficient knowledge of the structure and idioms of the language to prepare them for any just appreciation of those authors. Nothing tends more to lower the standard of true and accurate classical scholarship.

To explain more fully the plan of the present work, the author begs leave to specify the following points which are believed to be among its leading characteristics:

1. The Latin, which comprises the reading lessons, presents a brief epitome of Roman and Grecian history, and will furnish the pupil with a multitude of facts and incidents at once interesting and instructive.

2. The lessons and exercises, which are carefully adapted to the Latin text and are designed to be studied in connection with it, aim both to develop a complete analytical Syntax and to present a distinct picture of the Latin sentence in all the marked varieties of its form.

3. The analysis of the structure of the Latin sentence, is designed to be at once simple and symmetrical. While it aims to follow closely the growth of the simple sentence from its essential elements to its more expanded forms, while it marks the various ways in which these forms combine with each other, giving rise to a variety of complex and compound sentences, and yet further as it traces the combinations of these again with still others of any of the varieties just mentioned, it recognizes only a few well-defined and leading principles pervading and controlling all these changes—principles which the youngest pupil will readily understand and successfully apply.

4. The exercises consist of three distinct parts; viz.,

1st. A selection of Latin sentences, illustrative of the particular subject of the lesson. These are taken principally from the Latin text, and are designed to be carefully analyzed.

2d. An exercise in changing and reconstructing Latin sentences; in answering historical questions in Latin; or in forming new sentences on given models,—an exercise which the author has found eminently successful both in awakening interest and in giving the learner power and facility in the use of the language.

3d. Translations of English into Latin. The sentences here used are, as far as practicable, conversational, and relate to the historical facts and incidents learned from the reading lessons, thus securing to the pupil a degree of interest and profit which could scarcely be expected from any set exercises on miscellaneous subjects.

5. Rules designed to aid the pupil in recognizing the idioms of the language and in rendering them into good English are inserted in the volume, and constantly used by means of reference in the notes. This, it is hoped, will not only save the teacher much labor, but will afford him the pleasure of listening to translations comparatively free from those foreign idioms which too often mar the beauty and correctness even of the early efforts of the young student in translating Latin and Greek.

In the preparation of the present work, the author has resorted freely to whatever sources of information were within his reach. He has had before him numerous Grammars of the Latin, Greek, and English languages, editions of Latin authors, works on the structure of language, and on the general subject of Philology. Among the Latin Grammars which have come under his notice, the German of Kritz and Berger deserves special mention, as having furnished important aid in the development of the structure and analysis of the Latin sentence.

The Latin has been selected from Arnold's Historiae Antiquae Epitome, founded on the Lateinisches Elementarbuch of Professors Jacobs and Döring. It consists, with a few unimportant exceptions, of selections from the Latin historians, Eutropius, Justin, and Cornelius Nepos. The work of Eutropius was really an abridgment, founded on "the best authorities, and is, in style, plain, concise, and simple." Justin's history is made up mainly of selections from Trogus Pompeius, who lived and wrote in the Augustan age; while Nepos belongs to the same period, and was at once the contemporary and friend of Cicero.

In the arrangement of the volume, the Roman history is placed before the Grecian, not only because the former is more simple in style, but also because, in the study of Latin, the history of Rome justly claims an earlier attention than that of Greece.

The present volume is designed to be used in connection with some Latin grammar; for the purposes of those, however, who do not intend to pursue the study to any considerable extent, the summary of Grammar contained in the author's edition of ~~Arnold's First Latin Book~~ may be found sufficient. Accordingly in the preparation of the notes, such grammatical points as seemed to require notice have been explained mainly by appropriate references to the First Latin Book, to the Latin Grammar of Andrews and Stoddard, and to that of Zumpt; thus adapting the notes to the convenience of all who use either of the above works.

The author is happy in this connection to acknowledge his obligations to his friends who have aided him in this work; especially to Professors J. L. LINCOLN and S. S. GREENE of Brown University, for their generous interest in his efforts, and for the valuable suggestions with which they have kindly favored him.

With the above statement of the design and plan of the work, the author now commits it to classical teachers, and to the public generally, in the hope that it may not be found unworthy of a share, at least, of the marked favor with which they have been pleased to receive his former work.

SECOND LATIN BOOK.

ROMAN HISTORY.

PERIOD I.—Italian and Roman Kings.

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE BANISHMENT OF TARQUIN,
510 B. C.

Early Italian Kings.—Aeneas in Italy.

1. ANTIQUISSIMIS temporibus Saturnus in Italiam venisse dicitur. Ibi haud procul a Janiculo arcem condidit, eamque Saturniam appellavit. Hic Italos primus agriculturam docuit.

2. Postea Latinus in illis regionibus imperavit. Sub hoc rege Troja in Asia eversa est. Hinc Aenæas, Anchisae filius, cum multis Trojānis, quibus ferrum Graecorum pepercérat, aufugit, et in Italiam pervenit. Ibi Latinus rex ei benigne recepto filiam Laviniam in matrimonium dedit. Aenæas urbem condidit, quam in honorem conjugis Lavinium appellavit.

Ascanius and the Kings of Alba.

3. Post Aenæae mortem Ascanius, Aenæae filius, regnum accépit. Hic sedem regni in alium locum transstulit, urbemque condidit in monte Albano, eamque Albam Longam nuncupavit. Eum secutus est Silvius, qui post Aenæae mortem a Lavinia genitus erat.

Ejus postéri omnes, usque ad Romam conditam, Albae regnavērunt.

4. Unus horum regum, Romulus Silvius, se Jove majōrem esse dicebat, et, quum tonāret, militib⁹ impe-rāvit, ut clypeos hastis percutērent, dicebatque hunc sonum multo clariōrem esse quam ton̄tru. Fulmīne ictus, et in Albānum lacum praecipitātus est.

5. Silvius Procas, rex Albanōrum, duos filios reli-quit, Numitōrem et Amulium. Horum minor natu, Amulius, fratri optiōnem dedit, utrum regnum habēre vellet, an bona, quae pater reliquisset. Numitor paterna bona praetūlit; Amulius regnum obtinuit.

Birth of Romulus and Remus.

6. Amulius, ut regnum firmissime possidēret, Nu-mitōris filium per insidias interēmit, et filiam fratris, Rheam Silviam, Vestālem virginem fecit. Nam his Vestae sacerdotib⁹ non licet viro nubēre. Sed haec a Marte geminos filios, Romūlum et Remum, pepērit. Hoc quum Amulius comperisset, matrem in vincula conjēcit, pueros autem in Tibērim abjici jussit.

7. Forte Tibēris aqua ultra ripam se effudērat, et, quum puēri in vado essent positi, aqua refluens eos in sicco reliquit. Ad eōrum vagitum lupa accurrit, eosque uberibus suis aluit. Quod videns Faustūlus quidam, pastor illius regiōnis, pueros sustūlit, et uxori Accae Laurentiae nutriendos dedit.

Rome founded, 753 B. C.

8. Sic Romulus et Remus pueritiam inter pastores transegērunt. Quum adolevissent, et forte comperissent, quis ipsōrum avus, quae mater fuisset, Amulium inter-fecerunt, et Numitōri avo regnum restituērunt. Tuin urbem condidērunt in monte Aventīno, quam Romūlus a suo nomīne Romam vocāvit. Haec quum moenībus circumdarētur, Remus occisus est, dum fratrem irrīdens moenia transiliēbat.

Seizure of the Sabine Women.

9. Romūlus, ut civium numērum augēret, asylum patefēcit, ad quod multi ex civitatībus suis pulsi accurērunt. Sed novae urbis civībus conjūges deērant. Festum itāque Neptūni et ludos instituit. Ad hos quum multi ex finitīmis popūlis cum mulierībus et libēris venissent, Romāni inter ipsos ludos spectantes virgīnes rapuērunt.

10. Popūli illi, quorum virgīnes raptae erant, bellum adversus raptōres suscepērunt. Quum Romae appropinquārent, forte in Tarpēiam virgīnem incidērunt, quae in arce sacra procurābat. Hanc rogābant, ut viam in arcem monstrāret, eīque permisērunt, ut munus sibi poscēret. Illa petiit, ut sibi darent, quod in sinistris manībus gerērent, annūlos aureos et armillas significans. At hostes in arcem ab ea perducti scutis Tarpēiam obruērunt; nam et ea in sinistris manībus gerēbant.

The Sabines are received into the City.—Death of Romulus.

11. Tum Romūlus cum hoste, qui montem Tarpēium tenēbat, pugnam conseruit in eo loco, ubi nunc forum Romānum est. In media caede raptae processē-runt, et hinc patres, hinc conjūges et socēros complec-tebantur, et rogābant, ut caedis finem facērent. Utri-que his precībus commōti sunt. Romūlus foedus icit, et Sabīnos in urbem recēpit.

12. Postea civitatem descriptis. Centum senatores legit, eosque cum ob aetatem, tum ob reverentiam iis debitam, Patres appellavit. Plebem in triginta curias distribuit, easque raptarum nominibus nuncupavit. Anno regni tricesimo septimo, quum exercitum lustraret, inter tempestatem ortam repente oculis hominum subductus est. Hinc alii eum a senatoribus interfectum, alii ad deos sublatum esse existimavérunt.

Numa Pompilius.

13. Post Romuli mortem unius anni interregnum fuit. Quo exacto, Numa Pompilius Curibus, urbe in agro Sabinorum, natus rex creatus est. Hic vir bellum quidem nullum gessit; sed non minus civitati profuit. Nam et leges dedit, et sacra plurima instituit, ut populi barbari et bellicosi mores molliret. Omnia autem, quae faciebat, se nymphae Egeriae, conjugis suae, monitu facere dicēbat. Morbo decessit, quadragesimo tertio imperii anno.

Tullus Hostilius.

14. Numae successit Tullus Hostilius, cuius avus se in bello adversus Sabinos fortē et strenuum virum praestitērat. Rex creatus bellum Albānis indixit, idque trigeminorum, Horatiōrum et Curiatiōrum, certamine finivit. Albam propter perfidiam Metii Suffetii diruit. Quum triginta duobus annis reguasset, fulmine ictus cum domo sua arsit.

Ancus Marcius.

15. Post hunc Ancus Marcius, Numae ex filia nepos, suscepit imperium. Hic vir aequitatem et religione avo simīlis, Latīnos bello domuit, urbem ampliāvit, et nova ei moenia circumdēdit. Carcērem primus aedificāvit. Ad Tibēris ostia urbem condīdit, Ostiamque vocāvit. Vicesimo quarto anno imperii morbo obiit.

Lucius Tarquinius Priscus

16. Deinde regnum Lucius Tarquinius Priscus accēpit, Demarāti filius, qui tyranos patriae Corinthi fugiens in Etruriam venērat. Ipse Tarquinius, qui nomen ab urbe Tarquinīis accēpit, aliquando Romam profectus erat. Advenienti aquila pileum abstūlit, et, postquam alte evolavērat, reposuit. Hinc Tanāquil conjux, mulier auguriōrum perīta, regnum ei portendi intellexit.

17. Quum Romae commorarētur, Anci regis familiaritātem consecūtus est, qui eum filiōrum suōrum tutōrem relīquit. Sed is pupillis regnum intercēpit. Senatoribus, quos Romūlus creavērat, centum alias addidit, qui minōrum gentium sunt appellāti. Plura bella feličiter gessit, nec paucos agros, hostībus ademptos, urbis territorio adjunxit. Primus triumphans urbem intrāvit. Cloācas fecit; Capitolium inchoāvit. Tricesimo octāvo imperii anno per Anci filios, quibus regnum eripuērat, occīsus est.

Servius Tullius.

18. Post hunc Servius Tullius suscēpit imperium, genītus ex nobīli femīna, captīva tamen et famūla. Quum in domo Tarquinii Prisci educarētur, flamma in ejus capite visa est. Hoc prodigio Tanāquil ei summam dignitātem portendi intellexit, et conjūgi persuāsit, ut eum sicūti libēros suos educāret. Quum adolevisset, rex ei filiam in matrimonium dedit.

19. Quum Priscus Tarquinius occīsus esset, Tanāquil de superiōre parte domus popūlum allocūta est, dicens: regem grave quidem, sed non letāle vulnus accepisse; eum petēre, ut popūlus, dum convaluisset, Servio Tullio obedīret. Sic Servius regnāre coepit, sed bene imperium administrāvit. Montes tres urbi adjunxit. Primus omnium censum ordināvit. Sub eo Roma habuit capītum octoginta tria millia civium Romanōrum cum his, qui in agris erant.

20. Hic rex interfectus est scelēre filiae Tulliae et Tarquinii Superbi, filii ejus regis, cui Servius successērat. Nam ab ipso Tarquinio de gradībus curiae dejec-tus, quum domum fugēret, interfectus est. Tullia in forum properāvit, et prima conjūgem regem salutāvit. Quum domum redīret, aurīgam super patris corpus, in via jacens, carpentum agēre jussit.

Banishment of Tarquinius Superbus, 510 B. C.

21. Tarquinius Superbus cognōmen morībus meruit. Bello tamen strenuus plures finitimōrum populōrum vicit. Templum Jovis in Capitolio aedificāvit. Postea, dum Ardeam oppugnābat, urbem Latii, imperium perdīdit. Nam quum filius ejus Lucretiae, nobilissimae femīnae, conjūgi Tarquinii Collatīni, vim fecisset, haec se ipsa occīdit in conspectu marīti, patris et amicōrum, postquam eos obtestāta fuērat, ut hanc injuriam ulciserentur.

22. Hanc ob causam L. Brutus, Collatīnus, aliīque nonnulli in exitium regis conjurārunt, populōque persuasērunt, ut ei portas urbis claudēret. Exercitus quoque, qui civitātem Ardeam cum rege oppugnābat, eum relīquit. Fugit itāque cum uxōre et libēris suis. Ita Romae regnātum est per septem reges annos ducentos quadraginta tres.

PERIOD II.—Roman Struggles and Conquests.

FROM THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE COMMONWEALTH TO THE FIRST PUNIC WAR, 244 B. C.

Consuls at Rome, 509 B. C.—War with Tarquin.

23. Tarquinio expulso, consūles coepēre pro uno rege duo creāri, ut, si unus malus esset, alter eum coērēret. Annuum iis imperium tribūtum est, ne per diutinūtatem potestātis insolentiōres redderentur. Fuērunt igitur anno primo, expulsis regībus, consūles L. Junius Brutus, acerrimus libertatis vindex, et Tarquinius Collatīnus, marītus Lucretiae. Sed Collatīno paulo post dignitas sublāta est. Placuērat enim, ne quis ex Tarquiniōrum familia Romae manēret. Ergo cum omni patrimonio suo ex urbe migrāvit, et in ejus locum Valerius Publicōla consul factus est.

24. Commōvit bellum urbi rex Tarquinius. In prima pugna Brutus cōsul, et Aruns, Tarquinii filius, sese invīcem occidērunt. Romāni tamen ex ea pugna victōres recessērunt. Brutum Romānae matrōnae, quasi communē patrem, per annum luxērunt. Valerius Publicōla Sp. Lucretium, Lucretiae patrem, collēgam sibi fecit; qui quum morbo extinctus esset, Horatium Pulvillum sibi collēgam sumpsit. Ita primus annus quinque consūles habuit.

War with Porsena, 508 B. C.

25. Secundo quoque anno itērum Tarquinius bel-lum Romānis intūlit, Porsēna, rege Etruscōrum, auxi-lium ei ferente. In illo bello Horatius Cocles solus pontem ligneum defendit, et hostes cohibuit, donec pons a tergo ruptus esset. Tum se cum armis in Tibērim conjēcit, et ad suos transnāvit.

26. Dum Porsēna urbem obsidēbat, Qu. Mucius Scaevōla, juvēnis fortis anīmi, in castra hostium se contūlit eo consilio, ut regem occidēret. At ibi scribam regis pro ipso rege interfēcit. Tum a regiis satellitib⁹ comprehensus et ad regem deductus, quum Porsēna eum ignībus allātis terrēret, dextram arae accensae imposuit, donec flammis consumpta esset. Hoc facīnus rex mirātus juvēnem dimīsit incolūmem. Tum hic, quasi beneficium refērens, ait, trecentos alios juvēnes in eum conjurasse. Hac re terrītus Porsēna pacem cum Romānis fecit, Tarquinius autem Tuscūlum se contūlit, ib̄que privātus cum uxōre consenuit.

Secession to the Mons Sacer, 494 B. C.

27. Sexto decīmo anno post reges exactos, popūlus Rōmae seditiōnem fecit, questus quod tribūtis et militia a senātu exhaūrirētur. Magna pars plebis urbem relīquit, et in montem trans Aniēnem amnem secessit. Tum patres turbāti Menenium Agrippam misērunt ad plebem, qui eam senatui conciliāret. Hic iis inter alia fabūlam narrāvit de ventre et membris humāni corpōris; qua popūlus commōtus est, ut in urbem redīret. Tum primum tribūni plebis crēati sunt, qui plebem adversum nobilitatis superbiam defendērent.

Banishment of Coriolanus, 491 B. C.

28. Octāvo decīmo anno post exactos reges, Qu. Marcius, Coriolānus dictus ab urbe Volscōrum Coriōlis, quam bello cepērat, plebi invīsus fieri coepit. Quare urbe expulsus ad Volscos, acerrimos Romanōrum hostes, contendit, et ab iis dux exercitus factus Romānos saepe vicit. ~~Jam usque ad quintum milliarium urbis accesserat, nec ullis civium suōrum legationibus flecti poterat, ut patriae parcēret.~~ Denique Veturia mater et Volumnia uxor ex urbe ad eum venērunt; quarum fletu et precibus commōtus est, ut exercitum removēret. Quo facto a Volscis ut proditor occīsus esse diciatur.

The Fabii cut off at the Cremēra, 477 B. C.

29. Romāni quum adversum Veientes bellum gerērent, familia Fabiōrum sola hoc bellum suscēpit. Profecti sunt trecenti sex nobilissimi homīnes, duce Fabio consūle. Quum saepe hostes vicissent, apud Cremēram fluvium castra posuērunt. Ibi Veientes dolo usi eos in insidias pellexērunt. In proelio ibi exorto omnes perīrunt. Unus superfuit ex tanta familia, qui propter aetātem puerilem duci non potuērat ad pugnam. Hic genus propagāvit ad Qu. Fabium Maxīmum illum, qui Hannibalem prudenti cunctatiōne debilitāvit.

The Decemviri.—Laws of the Twelve Tables, 451 B. C.

30. Anno trecentesimo et altēro ab urbe condīta decemvīri creāti sunt, qui civitati leges scribērent. Hi primo anno bene egērunt; secundo autem dominatiōnem exercēre coepērunt. Sed quum unus eōrum Appius Claudius virginem ingenuam, Virginiam, Virginii centuriōnis filiam, corrupēre vellet, pater eam occīdit. Tum ad milites profūgit, eosque ad seditiōnem commōvit. Sublata est decemvīris potestas, ipsīque omnes aut morte aut exilio punīti sunt.

Election of Military Tribunes, 444 B. C.

31. Anno trecentesimo decimo ab urbe condita dignitates mutatae sunt, et prouibus consulibus facti tribuni militares consulari potestate. Hinc jam coepit Romana res crescere. Nam Camillus eo anno Volscorum civitatem, quae per septuaginta annos bellum gessera, vicit; et Aequorum urbem et Sutrinorum, omnibus delatis exercitibus, occupavit, et tres simul triumphos egit.

Camillus and the Schoolmaster of Falerii.

32. In bello contra Veientanos Furius Camillus urbem Falerios obsidet. In qua obsidiōne quum ludi literarii magister principum filios ex urbe in castra hostium duxisset, Camillus scelestum munus non accēpit, sed hominem denudatum, manib⁹ post tergum illigatis, reducendum Falerios puēris tradidit; virgasque iis dedit, quibus proditorem in urbem agerent.

Veii taken, 396 B. C.—Rome taken and burnt by the Gauls, 390 B. C.

33. Hac tanta animi nobilitate commoti Falisci urbem Romānis tradidērunt. Camillo autem apud Romānos crimini datum est, quod albis equis triumphasset, et praedam inīque divisisset; damnatusque ob eam causam, et civitatem expulsus est. Paulo post Galli Senones ad urbem venērunt, Romānos apud flumen Alliam vicērunt, et urbem etiam occuparunt. Jam nihil praeter Capitolium defendi potuit. Et jam praesidium fame laborabat, et in eo erant, ut pacem a Gallis auro emerent, quum Camillus cum manu milītum superveniens hostes magno proelio superaret.

Valor of Titus Manlius Torquatus, 361 B. C.

34. Anno trecentesimo nonagesimo quarto post urbem conditam Galli iterum ad urbem accesserant, et quarto millario trans Anienem fluvium consederant. Contra eos missus est T. Quinctius. Ibi Gallus quidam eximia corporis magnitudine fortissimum Romanorum ad certamen singulare provocavit. T. Manlius, nobilis simus juvénis, provocatiōnem accepit, Gallum occidit, eumque torque aureo spoliavit, quo ornatus erat. Hinc et ipse et postéri ejus Torquati appellati sunt. Galli fugam capessivérunt.

Valor of Valerius Corvus, 348 B. C.—The Gauls cease to trouble Rome.

35. Novo bello cum Gallis exorto, anno urbis quadringentesimo sexto, iterum Gallus processit robore atque armis insignis, et provocavit unum ex Romanis, ut secum armis decernēret. Tum se M. Valerius, tribunus militum, obtulit; et, quum processisset armatus, corvus ei supra dextrum brachium sedit. Mox, commissa pugna, hic corvus alis et unguibus Galli oculos verberavit. Ita factum est, ut Gallus facili negotiō a Valerio interficeretur, qui hinc Corvini nomeū accēpit.

Beginning of Samnite Wars, 343 B. C.

36. Postea Romani bellum gessérunt cum Samnitibus, ad quod L. Papirius Cursor cum honore dictatōris profectus est. Qui quum negotii ejusdam causa Romanum rediret, praecēpit Q. Fabio Rulliano, magistro equitum, quem apud exercitum reliquit, ne pugnam cum hoste committēret. Sed ille occasiōnem nactus felicissime dimicavit, Samnites delēvit. Ob hanc rem a dictatōre capītis damnātus est. At ille in urbem con-fūgit, et ingenti favōre milītum et popūli liberātus est; in Papirium autem tanta exorta est seditio, ut paene ipse interficeretur.

The Roman Army is made to pass under the yoke, 821 B. C.—The Samnites are conquered, 290 B. C.

37. Duōbus annis post T. Veturius et Spurius Postumius consūles bellum adversum Samnītes gerēbant. Hi a Pontio Thelesīno, duce hostium, in insidias inducti sunt. Nam ad Furcūlas Caudīnas Romānos pellexit in angustias, unde sese expedīre non potērant. Ibi Pontius patrem suum Herennium rogāvit, quid faciēndum putāret. Ille respondit, aut omnes occidendos esse, ut Romanōrum vires frangerentur, aut omnes dimittendos, ut beneficio obligarentur. Pontius utrumque consilium improbāvit, omnesque sub jugum misit. Samnītes denīque post bellum undequinquaginta annōrum superāti sunt.

War with Pyrrhus, 281 B. C.

38. Devictis Samnitībus, Tarentīnis bellum indicatum est, quia legātis Romanōrum injuriam fecissent. Hi Pyrrhum, Epīri regem, contra Romānos auxilium poposcērunt. Is mox in Italiam venit, tumque primum Romāni cum transmarīno hoste pugnavērunt. Missus est contra eum consul P. Valerius Laevīnus. Hic, quum exploratōres Pyrrhi cepisset, jussit eos per castra duci, tumque dimitti, ut renuntiārent Pyrrho, quaecunque a Romānis agerentur.

39. Pugna commissa, Pyrrhus auxilio elephantōrum vicit. Nox proelio finem dedit. Laevīnus tamen per noctem fugit. Pyrrhus Romānos mille octingentos cepit, eosque summo honōre tractāvit. Quum eos, qui in proelio interficti fuērant, omnes adversis vulneribus et truci vultu etiam ~~mortuos jacēre vidēret~~, tulisse ad coelum manus dicitur cum hac voce: "Ego cum talib⁹ viris brevi orbem terrārum subigērem."

40. Postea Pyrrhus Romam perrexit; omnia ferro ignēque vastāvit; Campaniam depopulātus est, atque ad Praeneste venit milliario ab urbe octāvo decīmo. Mox terrōre exercitus, qui cum consūle sequebātur, in Campaniam se recēpit. Legāti ad Pyrrhum de captīvis redimendis missi honorifice ab eo suscepti sunt; captīvos sine pretio reddidit. Unum ex legātis, Fabricium, sic admirātus est, ut ei quartam partem regni sui promittēret, si ad se transīret; sed a Fabricio contemptus est.

41. Quum jam Pyrrhus ingenti Romanōrum admiratiōne tenerētur, legātum misit Cineam, praestantissimum virum, qui pacem petēret ea conditiōne, ut Pyrrhus eam partem Italiae, quam armis occupavērat, obtinēret. Romāni respondērunt, eum cum Romānis pacem habēre non posse, nisi ex Italia recessisset. Cineas quum rediisset, Pyrrho eum interroganti, qualis ipsi Roma visa esset; respondit, se regum patriam vidisse.

42. In altēro proelio cum rege Epīri commisso Pyrrhus vulnerātus est, elephanti interficti, viginti millia hostium caesa sunt. Pyrrhus Tarentum fugit. Interjecto anno, Fabricius contra eum missus est. Ad hunc medīcus Pyrrhi nocte venit promittens, se Pyrrhum venēno occisūrum, si munus sibi darētur. Hunc Fabricius vincētum redūci jussit ad domīnum. Tunc rex admirātus illum dixisse fertur: "Ille est Fabricius, qui difficilius ab honestate, quam sola cursu suo averti potest." Paulo post Pyrrhus, tertio etiam proelio fusus, a Tarento recessit, et quum in Graeciam rediisset, apud Argos, Peloponnesi urbem, interfectus est.

PERIOD III.—Roman Triumphs.

FROM THE FIRST PUNIC WAR TO THE CONQUEST OF GREECE
146 B. C.

First Punic (Carthaginian) War, 264 B. C.

43. Anno quadringentesimo nonagesimo post urbem conditam Romanorum exercitus primum in Siciliam trajecerunt, regemque Syracusarum Hieronem, Poenosque, qui multas civitates in ea insula occupaverant, superaverunt. Quinto anno hujus belli, quod contra Poenos gerebatur, primum Romani, C. Duillio et Cn. Cornelio Asina consulibus, in mari dimicavérunt. Duillius Carthaginienses vicit, triginta naves occupavit, quatuordécim mersit, septem millia hostium cepit, tria millia occidit. Nulla victoria Románis gratior fuit. Duillio concessum est, ut, quum a coena rediret, puéri funalia gestantes et tibicen eum comitarentur.

First Punic War, continued.—Invasion of Africa, 256 B. C.

44. Paucis annis interjectis, bellum in Africam translatum est. Hamilcar, Carthaginiensium dux, pugna navali superatur; nam perditis sexaginta quatuor navibus se recépit; Romani viginti duas amisérunt. Quum in Africam venissent, Poenos in pluribus proeliis vicérunt, magnam vim hominum cepérunt, septuaginta quatuor civitātes in fidem accepērunt. Tum victi Carthaginienses pacem a Romānis petiērunt. Quam quum M. Atilius Regūlus, Romanōrum dux, dare nolle^{www.lib.utexas.edu}t nisi durissimis conditionib^s, Carthaginienses auxiliū petiērunt a Lacedaemoniis. Hi Xanthippum misērunt, qui Romānum exercītum magno proelio vicit. Regūlus ipse captus et in vincula conjectus est.

45. Non tamen ubique fortūna Carthaginiensibus favit. Quum aliquot proeliis victi essent, Regūlum rogavērunt, ut Romam proficiscerētur, et pacem captivorumque permutatiōnem a Romānis obtinēret. Ille quum Romam venisset, inductus in senātū dixit, se desiisse Romānum esse ex illa die, qua in potestātem Poenōrum venisset. Tum Romānis suasit, ne pacem cum Carthaginiensibus facerent: illos enim tot casib^s fractos spem nullam nisi in pace habēre: tanti non esse, ut tot millia captivōrum propter se unum et paucos, qui ex Romānis capti essent, redderentur. Haec sententia obtinuit. Regressus igitur in Africam crudelissimis suppliciis extinctus est.

End of the First Punic War, 241 B. C.

46. Tandem, C. Lutatio Catūlo, A. Postumio consulibus, anno belli Punici vicesimo tertio magnum proelium navāle commissum est contra Lilybaeum, promontorium Siciliae. In eo proelio septuaginta tres Carthaginiensium naves captae, certum viginti quinque demersae, triginta duo millia hostium capta, tredēcim millia occīsa sunt. Statim Carthaginienses pacem petiērunt, eisque pax tribūta est. Captīvi Romanōrum, qui tenebantur a Carthaginiensibus, redditi sunt. Poeni Sicilia, Sardinia, et ceteris insūlis, quae inter Italiam Africamque jacent, decesserunt, omnemque Hispaniam, quae citra Ibērum est, Romānis permisérunt.

Siege of Saguntum.—The Second Punic War, 218 B. C.

47. Paulo post Punicum bellum renovatum est per Hannibalem, Carthaginiensium ducem, quem pater Hamilcar novem annos natum aris admovērat, ut odium perenne in Romānos jurāret. Hic annum agens vicesimum aetatis Saguntum, Hispaniae civitatem, Romānis amicam, oppugnare aggressus est. Huic Romāni per legatos denuntiavērunt, ut bello abstinēret. Qui quum legatos admittere nollet, Romāni Carthaginem misērunt, ut mandarētur Hannibali, ne bellum contra socios populi Romani gerēret. Dura responsa a Carthaginiensibus reddita. Saguntinis interea fame victis, Romāni Carthaginiensibus bellum indixērunt.

Hannibal crosses the Alps, 218 B. C.—Battles of the Ticinus, Trebia, and Lake Trasimēnus.—Battle of Cannae, 216 B. C.

48. Hannibal, fratre Hasdrubale in Hispania relicto, Pyrenaeum et Alpes transiit. Traditur in Italiam octoginta millia peditum, et viginti millia equitum, septem et triginta elephantes abduxisse. Interea multi Ligures et Galli Hannibali se conjunxērunt. Primus ei occurrit P. Cornelius Scipio, qui, proelio ad Ticinum commisso, superatus est, et, vulnere accepto, in castra rediit. Tum Sempronius Gracchus confixit ad Trebiām amnem. Is quoque vincitur. Multi populi se Hannibali dedidērunt. Inde in Tusciā progressus Flaminium consulem ad Trasimēnum lacum supērat. Ipse Flaminius interemptus, Romanōrum viginti quinque millia caesa sunt.

49. Quingentesimo et quadragesimo anno post urbem conditam L. Aemilius Paullus et P. Terentius Varro contra Hannibalem mittuntur. Quamquam intellectum erat, Hannibalem non aliter vinci posse quam mora, Varro tamen, morae impatiens, apud vicum, qui Cannae appellatur, in Apulia pugnavit; ambo consules victi, Paullus interemptus est. In ea pugna consulares aut praetorii viginti, senatores triginta capti aut occisi; milium quadraginta millia, equitum tria millia et quingenti periérunt. In his tantis malis nemo tamen pacis mentiōnem facere dignatus est. Servi, quod nunquam ante factum, manumissi et milites facti sunt.

50. Post eam pugnam multae Italiae civitates, quae Romānis paruerant, se ad Hannibalem transtulerunt. Hannibal Romānis obtulit, ut captivos redimarent; responsumque est a senatu, eos cives non esse necessarios, qui armati capi potuissent. Hos omnes ille postea variis suppliciis interfecit, et tres modios aureorum annulorum Carthaginem misit, quos manibus equitum Romanorum, senatorum, et milium detraxerat. Interea in Hispania frater Hannibalis, Hasdrubal, qui ibi remanserat cum magno exercitu, a duobus Scipionibus vincitur, perditque in pugna triginta quinque millia hominum.

51. Anno quarto postquam Hannibal in Italiam venierat, M. Claudius Marcellus consul apud Nolam, civitatem Campaniae, contra Hannibalem bene pugnavit. Illo tempore Philippus, Demetrii filius, rex Macedoniae, ad Hannibalem legatos mittit, eique auxilia contra Romanos pollicetur. Qui legati quum a Romānis capti essent, M. Valerius Laevinus cum navibus missus est, qui regem impediret, quo minus copias in Italiā trajicēret. Idem in Macedoniam penētrans regem Philippum vicit.

52. In Sicilia quoque res prospēre gesta est. Marcellus magnam hujus insūlæ partem cepit, quam Poeni occupaverant; Syracūsas, nobilissimam urbem, expugnāvit, et ingentem inde praedam Romam misit. Laevinus in Macedonia cum Philippo et multis Graeciae popūlis amicitiam fecit; et in Siciliam profectus Hannōnem, Poenōrum ducem, apud Agrigentum cepit; quadraginta civitātes in deditiōnem accēpit, viginti sex expugnāvit. Ita omni Sicilia recepta, cum ingenti gloria Romam regressus est.

53. Interea in Hispaniam, ubi duo Scipiōnes ab Hasdrubale interficti erant, missus est P. Cornelius Scipio, vir Romanōrum omnium fere primus. Hic, puer duodeviginti annōrum, in pugna ad Ticīnum, patrem singulāri virtūte servāvit. Deinde post cladem Cannensem multos nobilissimōrum juvēnum Italiam deserēre cupientium, auctoritatē sua ab hoc consilio deterruit. Viginti quatuor annōrum juvēnis in Hispaniam missus, die, qua venit, Carthaginem Novam cepit, in qua omne aurum et argentum et belli apparātum Poeni habēbant, nobilissimos quoque obsides, quos ab Hispānis accepērant. Hos obsides parentib⁹ suis reddidit. Quare omnes fere Hispaniae civitātes ad eum uno animo transiērunt.

54. Ab eo·inde temp̄e res Romanōrum in dies laetiōres factae sunt. Hasdrūbal a fratre ex Hispania in Italiam evocātus, apud Senam, Picēni civitātem, in insidas incidit, et strenue pugnans occīsus est. Plurīmae autem civitātes, quae in Bruttiiis ab Hannibale tenebantur, Romānis se tradidērunt.

55. Anno decimo quarto postquam in Italiam Hannibal venērat, Scipio consul creātus, et in Africam missus est. Ibi contra Hannōnem, ducem Carthaginien-sium, prospēre pugnat, totumque ejus exercitū delet. Secundo proelio undēcim millia homīnum occīdit, et castra cepit cum quatuor millībus et quingentis militībus. Syphācem, Numidiae regem, qui se cum Poenis conjunxērat, cepit, eumque cum nobilissīmis Numīdis et infinitis spoliis Romam misit. Qua re audīta, omnis fere Italia Hannibalem desērit. Ipse a Carthaginiensibus in Africam redīre jubētur. Ita anno decimo septi-mo Italia ab Hannibale liberāta est.

Battle of Zama, 202 B. C.

56. Post plures pugnas et pacem plus semel frustra tentātam, pugna ad Zamam committitur, in qua peri-tissimi duces copias suas ad bellum educēbant. Scipio victor recēdit; Hannibal cum paucis equitībus evādit. Post hoc proelium pax cum Carthaginiensibus facta est. Scipio, quum Romam rediisset, ingenti gloria tri-umphāvit, atque Africānus appellātus est. Sic finem accēpit secundum Puničum bellum post annum unde-vicesimum quam coepērat.

War with Philip.—Cynocephalae, 197 B. C.

57. Finīto Punīco bello, secūtum est Macedonīcum contra Philippum regem. Superātus est rex a T. Quintio Flaminio apud Cynocephālas, paxque ei data est his legībus: ne Graeciae civitatībus, quas Romāni contra eum defendērant, bellum inferret; ut captīvos et transfugas reddēret; quinquaginta solum naves ha-bēret; reliquas Romānis daret; mille talenta praestāret, et obsidem daret filium Demetrium. T. Quinctius etiam Lacedaemoniis intulit bellum, et ducem eorum Nabidem vicit.

War with Antiochus, 192 B. C.

58. Finito bello Macedonico, secutum est bellum Syriacum contra Antiocum regem, cum quo Hannibal se junxerat. Missus est contra eum L. Cornelius Scipio consul, cui frater ejus Scipio Africanus legatus est additus. Hannibal navaliter proelio victus, Antiocus autem ad Magnesiam, Asiae civitatem, a Cornelio Scipione consule ingenti proelio fusus est. Tum rex Antiocus pacem petit. Data est ei hac lege, ut ex Europa et Asia recedaret, atque intra Taurum se contineret, decem millia talentorum et viginti obsides praebaret, Hannibalem, concitorem belli, dederet. Scipio Romam rediit, et ingenti gloria triumphavit. Nomen et ipse, ad imitacionem fratris, Asiatici accepit.

War with Perseus.—Pydna, 168 B. C.

59. Philippo, rege Macedoniae, mortuo, filius ejus Perseus rebellavit, ingentibus copiis paratis. Dux Romanorum, P. Licinius consul, contra eum missus, gravi proelio a rege victus est. Rex tamen pacem petebat. Cui Romani eam praestare noluérunt, nisi his conditionibus, ut se et suos Romanis dederet. Mox Aemilius Paullus consul-regem ad Pydnam superavit, et viginti millia peditum ejus occidit. Equitatus cum rege fugit. Urbes Macedoniae omnes, quas rex tenuerat, Romanis se dedidérunt. Ipse Perseus ab amicis desertus in Pauli potestatem venit. Hic, multis etiam aliis rebus gestis, cum ingenti pompa Romam rediit in nave Per-sei, inusitatae magnitudinis; nam sedecim remorum ordines habuisse dicitur. Triumphavit magnificentissime in curru aureo, duobus filiis utroque latere adstantibus. Ante ^{www.libtool.com.cn} currum inter captivos duo regis filii et ipse Perseus ducti sunt.

Third Punic War, 149–6 B. C.

60. Tertium deinde bellum contra Carthaginem susceptum est sexcentesimo et altero anno ab urbe condita, anno quinquagesimo primo postquam secundum bellum Punicum transactum erat. L. Marcius Censorinus et M. Manlius consules in Africam trajecerunt, et oppugnaverunt Carthaginem. Multa ibi praeclare gesta sunt per Scipionem, Scipionis Africani nepotem, qui tribunus in Africa militabat. Hujus apud omnes ingens metus et reverentia erat, neque quidquam magis Carthaginiensium duces vitabant, quam contra eum proelium committere.

61. Quum jam magnum esset Scipionis nomen, tertio anno postquam Romani in Africam trajecerant, consul est creatus, et contra Carthaginem missus. Is hanc urbem a civibus acerrime defensam cepit ac diruit. Ingens ibi praeda facta, plurimaque inventa sunt, quae multarum civitatum excidiis Carthago collegerat. Haec omnia Scipio civitatibus Italiae, Siciliae, Africæ reddidit, quae sua recognoscabant. Ita Carthago scingtonesimo anno, postquam condita erat, deleta est. Scipio nomen Africani junioris accepit.

Corinth taken, 146 B. C.

62. Intervim in Macedonia quidam Pseudophilippus arma movit, et P. Juvencium, Romanorum ducem, ad internecionem vicit. Post eum Q. Caecilius Metellus dux a Românis contra Pseudophilippum missus est, et, viginti quinque millibus ex militibus ejus occisis, Macedoniae recepit; ipsum etiam Pseudophilippum in potestatem suam redigebit. Corinthiis quoque bellum indictum est, nobilissimae Graeciae civitati, propter injuriam Românis legatis illatam. Hanc Mummius consul cepit ac diruit. Tres igitur Romae simul celeberrimi triumphi fuerunt; Scipionis ex Africâ, ante cujus currum ductus est Hasdrubal; Metelli ex Macedonia, cujus currum praecessit Andriseus, qui et Pseudophilippus dicitur; Mummi ex Corintho, ante quem signa aenea et pictae tabulae et alia urbis clarissimae ornamenta praelata sunt PERIOD IV.—Civil Dissensions.

FROM THE CONQUEST OF GREECE TO THE DISSOLUTION OF THE ROMAN COMMONWEALTH, 31 B. C.

War with the Lusitanians.—Viriathus, 149 B. C.

63. Anno sexcentesimo decimo post urbem conditam Viriathus in Lusitania bellum contra Romanos exercitavit. Pastor primo fuit, mox latronum dux; postremo tantos ad bellum populos concitatavit, ut vindicta libertatis Hispaniae existimatetur. Denique a suis interfectus est. Quum interfectorum ejus praemium a Caepione consule petarent, responsum est, nunquam Românis placuisse, imperatorem a militibus suis interfici.

Numantia taken, 183 B. C.

64. Deinde bellum exortum est cum Numantīnis, civitāte Hispaniae. Victus ab his Qu. Pompēius, et post eum C. Hostilius Mancīnus consul, qui pacem cum iis fecit infāmem, quam popūlus et senātus jussit infringi, atque ipsum Mancīnum hostībus tradi. Tum P. Scipio Africānus in Hispaniam missus est. Is primum milītem ignāvum et corruptum correxit; tum multas Hispaniae civitātes partim bello cepit, partim in deditiōnem accēpit. Postrēmo ipsam Numantium fame ad deditiōnem coēgit, urbemque evertit; reliquam provinciam in fidem accēpit.

War with Jugurtha, 112 B. C.

65. P. Scipiōne Nasīca et L. Calpurnio Bestia consulibus, Jugurthae, Numidārum regi, bellum illātum est, quod Adherbālem et Hiempśalem, Mīcipse filios, patruēles suos, interemisset. Missus adversus eum consul Calpurnius Bestia corruptus regis pecunia pacem cum eo flagitiosissimam fecit, quae a senātu improbāta est. Denīque Qu. Caecilius Metellus consul Jugurtham variis proeliis vicit, elephantes ejus occīdit vel cepit, multas civitātes ipsius in deditiōnem accēpit. Ei succēssit C. Marius, qui bello termīnum posuit, ipsumque Jugurtham cepit. Ante currum triumphantis Marii Jugurtha cum duōbus filiis ductus est vinctus, et mox jussu consūlis in carcere strangulātus.

Social or Marsian War, 91 B. C.

66. Sexcentesimo quinquagesimo nono anno ab urbe condīta in Italia gravissimum bellum exarsit. Nam

Picentes, Marsi, Pelignīque, qui multos annos popūlo Romāno obediērant, aequa cum illis jura sibi dari pos-tulābant. Perniciōsum admōdum hoc bellum fuit. P. Rutilius ~~www.libtool.com.cn~~ consul in eo occisus est; plures exercitus fusi fugatīque. Tandem L. Cornelius Sulla cum alia egre-gie gessit, tum Cluentium, hostium ducem, cum magnis copiis, fudit. Per quadriennium cum gravi utriusque partis calamitāte hoc bellum tractum est. Quinto de-mum anno L. Cornelius Sulla ei imposuit finem. Ro-māni tamen, id quod prius negavērānt, jus civitātis, bello finīto, sociis tribuērunt.

Mithridatic War.—First Civil War.—Marius, Sulla, 88 B. C.

67. Anno urbis condītae sexcentesimo sexagesimo sexto primum Romae bellum civile exortum est; eō-dem anno etiam Mithridatīcum. Causam bello civili C. Marius dedit. Nam quum Sullae bellum adversus Mithridātem, regem Ponti, decrētum esset, Marius ei hunc honōrem eripēre conātus est. Sed Sulla, qui ad-huc cum legionib⁹ suis in Italia morabātur, cum exer-citu Romam venit, et adversarios cum interfēcit, tum fugāvit. Tum rebus Romae utcunque compōsit⁹, in Asiam profectus est, pluribusque proeliis Mithridātem coēgit, ut pacem a Romānis petēret, et Asia, quam invasērat, relicta, regni sui finībus contentus esset.

68. Sed dum Sulla in Graecia et Asia Mithridātem vincit, Marius, qui fugātus fuērat, et Cornelius Cinna, unus ex consulib⁹, bellum in Italia reparārunt, et in-gressi Romam nobilissimos ex senatu et consulāres vi-ros interfecērunt; multos proscriptisērunt; ipsīus Sullae domo eversa, filios et uxorem ad fugam compulērunt. Universus reliquo senātus ex urbe fugiens ad Sullam in Graeciam venit, orans ut patriae subvenīret. Sulla in Italiam trajēcit, hostium exercitus vicit, mox etiam urbem ingressus est, quam caede et sanguine civium replēvit. Quatuor millia inermium, qui se dedidērant, interfici jussit; duo millia equitum et senatōrum proscriptis. Tum de Mithridāte triumphāvit. Duo haec bella funestissima, Italicum, quod et sociāle dictum est, et civile, consumpsērunt ultra centum et quinquaginta millia hominum, viros consulāres viginti quatuor, praetorios septem, aedilios sexaginta, senatōres fere ducentos.

69. Anno urbis condītae sexcentesimo septuagesimo sexto, L. Licinio Lucullo et M. Aurelio Cotta consulibus, mortuus est Nicomēdes, rex Bithyniae, et testamento popūlum Romānum fecit herēdem. Mithridātes, pace rupta, Asiam rursus voluit invadēre. Adversus eum ambo consules missi variam habuēre fortūnam. Cotta apud Chalcedōnem victus proelio, a rege etiam intra oppidum obsessus est. Sed quum se inde Mithridātes Cyzicūm transtulisset, ut, hac urbe capta, totam Asiam invadēret, Lucullus ei, alter consul, occurrit, ac dum Mithridātes in obsidiōne Cyzici commorātur, ipse eum a tergo obsēdit, famēque consumptum multis proeliis vicit. Postrēmo Byzantium fugāvit; navāli quoque proelio ejus duces oppressit. Ita una hiēme et aestāte a Lucullo centum fere millia militum regis extincta sunt,

War of the Gladiators.—Spartacus, 73 B. C. JV

70. Anno urbis sexcentesimo septuagesimo octavo novum in Italia bellum commotum est. Septuaginta enim quatuor gladiatores, ducibus Spartaco, Crixo, et Oenomao, e ludo gladiatorio, qui Capuae erat, effugērunt, et per Italiam vagantes paene non levius bellum, quam Hannibal, movērunt. Nam contraxerunt exercitum fere sexaginta millium armatōrum, multosque duces et duos Romānos consules vicērunt. Ipsi vici sunt in Apulia a M. Licinio Crasso proconsule, et, post multas calamitātes Italiae, tertio anno huic bello finis est impositus.

Successes of Lucullus against Mithridates.

71. Intērim L. Lucullus bellum Mithridaticum persecūtus regnum Mithridātis invāsit, ipsumque regem apud Cabīra civitatem, quo ingentes copias ex omni regno adduxerat Mithridātes, ingenti proelio superātum fugāvit, et castra ejus diripuit. Armenia quoque Minor, quam tenēbat, eīdem erepta est. Susceptus est Mithridātes a Tigrāne, Armeniae rege, qui tum ingenti gloria imperābat; sed hujus quoque regnum Lucullus est ingressus. Tigranocerta, nobilissimam Armeniae civitatem, cepit; ipsum regem, cum magno exercitu venientem, ita vicit, ut robur milītum Armeniōrum delēret. Sed quum Lucullus finem bello imponēre parāret, successor ei missus est.

Pompey puts down the Pirates, 67 B. C.—Is appointed successor to Lucullus.—Death of Mithridates, 63 B. C.

72. Per illa tempora pirātae omnia maria infestābant ita, ut Romānis, toto orbe terrārum victoribus, sola navigatio tuta non esset. Quare id bellum Cn. Pompēio decretū est, quod intra paucos menses incredibili felicitate et celeritate confecit. Mox ei delatum bellum contra regem Mithridātem et Tigrānem. Quo suscepto, Mithridātem in Armenia Minōre nocturno proelio vicit, castra diripuit, et quadraginta millibus ejus occisis, vi-ginti tantum de exercitu suo perdidit et duos centuriōnes. Mithridātes fugit cum uxore et duobus comitiis, neque multo post, Pharnācis filii sui seditione coactus, venēnum hausit. Hunc vitae finem habuit Mithridātes, vir ingentis industriae atque consilii. Regnāvit annis sexaginta, vixit septuaginta duobus: contra Rōmānos bellum habuit annis quadraginta.

Victories of Pompey over Tigranes: he takes Jerusalem, 63 B. C.

73. Tigrāni deinde Pompēius bellum intulit. Ille se ei dedidit, et in castra Pompēii venit, ac diadēma suum in ejus manibus collocavit, quod ei Pompēius reposuit. Parte regni eum multāvit et grandi pecunia. Tum alios etiam reges et populos superavit. Armeniam Minōrem Deiotāro, Galatiae regi, donavit, quia auxiliū contra Mithridātem tulērat. Seleuciam, vicinam Antiochiae civitatem, libertate donavit, quod regem Tigrānem non receperisset. Inde in Judaeam transgressus, Hierosolymam, caput gentis, tertio mense cepit, duodecim millibus Judaeorum occisis, cetēris in fidem receptis. His gestis finem antiquissimo bello imposuit. Ante triumphantis currum ducti sunt filii Mithridātis, filius Tigrānis, et Aristobulus, rex Judaeorum. Praelata ingens pecunia, auri atque argenti infinitum. Hoc tempore nullum per orbem terrarum grave bellum erat.

Catiline's Conspiracy, 63 B. C.

74. M. Tullio Cicerōne oratōre et C. Antonio consulibus, anno ab urbe condīta sexcentesimo undenonagesimo L. Sergius Catilīna, nobilissimi genēris vir, sed ingenii pravissimi, ad delendam patriam conjurāvit cum quibusdam claris quidem sed audacibus viris. A Cicerōne urbe expulsus est, socii ejus deprehensi et in car-cere strangulati sunt. Ab Antonio, altēro consūle, Catilīna ipse proelio victus est et interfectus.

75. Anno urbis condītae sexcentesimo nonagesimo tertio C. Julius Caesar cum L. Bibūlo consul est factus.
Quum ei Gallia decretā esset, semper vincendo usque ad Oceānum Britannīcum processit. Domuit autem annis novem fere omnem Galliam, quae inter Alpes, flumen Rhodānum, Rhenum et Oceānum est. Britantrans Rhenum aggressus, ingentibus proeliis vicit.

Crassus slain by the Parthians, 53 B. C.

76. Circa eādem tempora M. Līcinius Crassus contra Parthos missus est. Et quum circa Carras contra omīna et auspicia proelium commisisset, a Surēna, Orōdis regis duce, victus et interfectus est cum filio, claris-simo et praestantissimo juvēne. Reliquiae exercītus per C. Cassium quaestōrem servātae sunt.

Civil War of Pompey and Caesar, 49 B. C.

77. Hinc jam bellum civīle successit, quo Romāni nomīnis fortūna mutāta est. Caesar enim victor e Gal-lia rediens, absens coepit poscere altērum consulātūm ; quem quum aliqui sine dubitatiōne deferrent, contradictum est a Pompēio et aliis, jussusque est, dimissis exercitībus, in urbem ~~līkerēd. coll.~~ Propter hanc injuriam ab Arimīno, ubi milītes congregātos habēbat, infesto exercītu Romam contendit. Consūles cum Pompēio, senatusque omnis atque universa nobilitas ex urbe fugit, et in Graeciam transiit ; et, dum senātus bellum contra Caesārem parābat, hic vacuam urbem ingressus dictatōrem se fecit.

*Defeat of Pompey's party in Spain.—Battle of Pharsalia. 48
B. C.—Death of Pompey.*

78. Inde Hispanias petit, ib̄que Pompēii legiōnes superāvit ; tum in Graecia adversum Pompēium ipsum dimicāvit. Primo proelio victus est et fugātus ; evāsit tamen, quia nocte interveniente Pompēius sequi noluit ; dixitque Caesar, nec Pompēium scire vincere, et illo tantum die se potuisse superāri. Deinde in Thessalia apud Pharsālum ingentībus utrinque copiis commissis dimicavērunt. Nunquam adhuc Romānae copiae mājores neque meliorībus ducībus convenērant. Pugnātum est ingenti contentiōne, victusque ad postrēmum Pompēius, et castra ejus direpta sunt. Ipse fugātus Alexandrīam petiit, ut a rege Aegypti, cui tutor a senātu datus fuērat, accipēret auxilia. At hic fortūnam magis quam amicitiam secūtus, occīdit Pompēium, caput ejus et annūlum Caesāri misit. Quo conspecto, Caesar lacrȳmas fudisse dic̄tur, tanti viri intuens caput, et genēri quondam sui.

Caesar assassinated in the Senate-House, 44 B. C.

79. Quum ad Alexandriam venisset Caesar, Ptolemaeus ei ~~in~~ insidias parare voluit, qua de causa regi bellum illatum est. Rex victus in Nilo perit, inventumque est corpus ejus cum lorica aurea. Caesar, Alexandria potitus, regnum Cleopatrae dedit. Tum inde profectus Pompeianarum partium reliquias est persecutus, bellisque civilibus toto terrarum orbe compositis, Romanam rediit. Ubi quum insolentius agere coepisset, conjuratum est in eum a sexaginta vel amplius senatoribus, equitibusque Romanis. Praecipui fuérunt inter conjuratos Bruti duo ex genere illius Bruti, qui, regibus expulsis, primus Romae consul fuérat, C. Cassius et Servilius Casca. Ergo Caesar, quum in curiam venisset, viginti tribus vulneribus confossus est.

*The Second Triumvirate, Octavius, Antony, and Lepidus, 43 B. C.
—Death of Cicero.*

80. Interfecto Caesare, anno urbis septingentesimo nono bella civilia reparata sunt. Senatus favebat Caesaris percussoribus, Antonius consul a Caesaris partibus stabat. Ergo turbata republika, Antonius, multis sceleribus commissis, a senatu hostis judicatus est. Fusus fugatusque Antonius, amissso exercitu, configit ad Lepidum, qui Caesari magister equitum fuérat, et tum grandes copias militum habebat; a quo susceptus est. Mox Octavianus cum Antonio pacem fecit, et quasi vindicaturus patris sui mortem, a quo per testamentum fuérat adoptatus, Romanum cum exercitu profectus extorsit, ut sibi juvēni viginti annorum consulatus daretur. Tum junctus cum Antonio et Lepido rempublicam ar-

w Battle of Philippi, 42 B. C.

81. Interea Brutus et Cassius, interfectorēs Caesāris, ingens bellum movērunt. Profecti contra eos Caesar Octaviānus, qui postea Augustus est appellātus, et M. Antonius, apud Philippos, Macedoniae urbem, contra eos pugnavērunt. Primo proelio victi sunt Antonius et Caesar; perīit tamen dux nobilitatis Cassius; secundo Brutum et infinitam nobilitatem, quae cum illis bellum suscepērat, victam interfecērunt. Tum victores rempublicam ita inter se divisērunt, ut Octaviānus Caesar Hispanias, Gallias, Italiam tenēret; Antonius Orientem, Lepidus Africam accipēret.

Battle of Actium, 31 B. C.

82. Paulo post Antonius, repudiāta sorore Caesāris Octaviāni, Cleopātram, reginam Aegypti, uxorem duxit. Ab hac incitātus ingens bellum commōvit, dum Cleopātra cupiditatē muliebri optat Romae regnare. Victor est ab Augusto navāli pugna clara et illustri apud Actium, qui locus in Epīro est. Hinc fugit in Aegyptum, et, desperatis rebus, quum omnes ad Augustum transīrent, se ipse interēmit. Cleopātra quoque aspīdem sibi admīsit, et venēo ejus exstincta est. Ita bellis toto orbe confectis, Octaviānus Augustus Romam rediit anno duodecimo quam consul fuērat. Ex eo inde tempore rempublicam per quadraginta et quatuor annos solus obtinuit. Ante enim duodēcim annis cum Antonio et Lepido tenuērat. Ita ab initio principātus ejus usque ad finem quinquaginta sex anni fuēre.

PERIOD V.—Roman Empire.

~~FROM THE DISSOLUTION OF THE COMMONWEALTH TO THE DEATH OF DOMITIAN, THE LAST OF THE CAESARS, 96 A. D.~~

Tiberius, 14 A. D.

83. Tiberius Nero, privignus idem ac gener heresque Augusti, totus ab illo diversus fuit; ingenio non solum arroganti trucique, sed etiam occulto, fingendisque virtutibus subdolo. Principia ejus imperii moderata, Germanici Caesaris metu. Quo extinto, metu solutus, mores solvit. Sed ejus petulantiae a Livia matre, quam reverebatur, non nihil obstitum. Rege Cappadociae, per speciem amicitiae, evocato retentoque, ejus regnum in provinciam rededit. Herodem Agrippam, in custodiam tradidit, quia publice precatus erat, ut Caium, Germanici filium, videlicet Augustum. Inter haec, Livia matre demortua, in omne ruit crudelitatis genus. Drusum Caesarem, ex se genitum, affectati regni suspectum, veneno sustulit. Neronom ac Drusum, Germanici filios, nepotes suos, fame necavit. Sejani praefecti praetorii instinctu, Romam primorum civitatis caedibus polluit. Sed tandem ira Principis in ipsum vertit crudelitatis auctorem. In Capream insulam quum secessisset, eam infamem reddidit sua nequitia luxuque. Ad ultimum, deliciis confectus, ad Misenum extinguitur, principatus sui anno vicesimo tertio.

Caligula, 37 A. D.

84. Caius Caligula, Germanico et Agrippina gentus, in castris militari habitu educatus, ex eoque Caligula dictus est. Is primo quidem haud indignum se Germanico patre, ac populi Romani favore, praebuit. Sed brevi tyrannus existit, Tiberio immanior. Quum plurima vesanae mentis deliria edidisset, et adversum cunctos ingenti avaritia, libidine, crudelitate saeviret, interfactus in palatio est anno imperii tertio.

Claudius, 41 A. D.

85. Claudius Nero, Caligulae patruus, ab eo ad ludibrium reservatus, imperii successor fuit; bonus princeps magis, quam sapiens. Britanniam et Orcadas insulas, sine proelio ac sanguine, subegit. In amicos adeo effusus, ut A. Plautium, ob res in Britannia prospera gestas triumphantem, Caesar ipse prosequeretur, eique Capitolium concendentem laevum tegerebat latus. Illud dementer, quod, praeterito Britannico filio, Nerōnem privignum herēdem imperii fecit. Itaque privigni fraude pater cum filio extinguitur. Tenet fama, venenum Claudio ab Agrippina conjugē in bolēto datum. Annos imperavit quatuordēcim.

Nero, 54 A. D.

86. Nero, Germanici ex filia nepos, Caligulae avuncio magis, quam avo, se similem praebuit. Agrippinam matrem, Octaviam conjugem, Antoniam amītam, aliosque cognatiōne proximos, Senēcam quoque praeceptorem, Lucāni poētae patrūm, ipsumque Lucānum, necāvit. Ad haec magnam urbis partem, obscuris aedibus informem, per ludum incendit, ut Troiae repraesentaret incendium: culpam poenamque in Christianos transtulit. In re militari nihil omnino ausus, Britanniam paene amīsit. A senātu hostis judicātus, e palatio fugit, et in suburbāno se liberti sui interfecit, trigesimo et altero aetatis anno, imperii quarto decimo; atque in eo omnis familia Augusti consumpta est.

Galba, 68 A. D., Otho and Vitellius, 69 A. D.

87. Sergius Galba, Caesar ab exercitu creatus, Neroni successit. Sed nimia severitas breve ejus imperium fecit. Othonis insidiis mense septimo jugulatus.

88. Otho Silvius, invaso imperio, haud diurnior eo, quem sustulerat, Caesar fuit. Quippe, a Vitellio, qui a Germanicis legionibus imperium accepérat, ad Cremōnam levi proelio victus, voluntariam mortem operiit mense imperii quarto.

89. Vitellius, a Vespasiāni ducibus multo cum dedecore captus, per urbem raptatur nudus. Tandem jugulatus, praecipitatur in Tibērim mense imperii octavo.

Vespasian, 70 A. D.

90. Vespasiānus huic successit, factus apud Palaestinam imperator; princeps obscure quidem natus, sed optimis comparandus. A Claudio in Germaniam, deinde in Britanniam missus, tricies et bis cum hoste conflixit, duas validissimas gentes, viginti oppida, insulam Vectam, Britanniae proximam, imperio Romano adjecit. Romae se in imperio moderatissime gessit: pecuniae tantum avidior fuit, ita ut eam nulli injuste auferret; quam quum omni diligentia colligere, tamen studiosissime largiebatur, praecipue indigentibus. Placidissimae lenitatis, ut qui majestatis quoque contra se reos non facile puniret ultra exsilii poenam. Sub hoc Iudea Romano accessit imperio, et Hierosolyma, quae fuit urbs nobilissima Palaestinae. Achaiam, Lyciam, Rhodum, Byzantium, Samum, quae liberae ante hoc tempus fuērant, item Thraciam, Ciliciam, Commagēnen, quae sub regībus amīcis egērant, in provinciārum formam redēgit.

91. Offensarum et inimicitiārum immēmor fuit : convicia, a causidīcīs et philosōphis in se dicta, lenīter tulit : dilīgens tamen coercītor disciplīnae militāris. Hic cum Tito filio de Hierosolymis triumphāvit. Per haec quum senatui et popūlo, postrēmo cunctis amabīlis ac jucundus esset, extinctus est in villa propria, circa Sabīnos, annum aetatis agens sexagesimum nonum, imperii nonum et diem septūmum : atque inter Divos relātus est.

Titus, 79 A. D.

92. Huic Titus filius successit, qui et ipse Vespasiānus est dictus ; vir omnium virtūtum genēre mirabilis adeo, ut amor et deliciae humāni genēris dicerētur. Romae tantae civilitatis in imperio fuit, ut nullum omnīno punīret, convictos adversum sese conjuratiōnis ita dimisērit, ut in eādem familiaritatē, qua antea, habuērit. Facilitatis et liberalitatis tantae fuit, ut negāret quemquam oportēre tristem a principe discedere ; præterea quum quodam die in coena recordātus fuisse, nihil se illo die cuiquam praestitisse, dixērit : “ Amīci, hodie diem perdīdi.” Hic Romae amphitheātrum aedificāvit, et quinque millia ferārum in dedicatiōne ejus occīdit.

93. Per haec inusitāto favōre dilectus, morbo perit in ea, qua pater, villa, post biennium, menses octo, dies viginti, quam imperātor erat factus, aetatis anno altēro et quadragesimo. Tantus luctus eo mortuo publicus fuit, ut omnes tanquam in propria doluērint orbitāte.

Senātus, obītu ipsīus circa vespēram nunciāto, nocte irrūpit in curiam, et tantas ei mortuo laudes gratiasque congessit, quantas nec vivo unquam egērat, nec praesenti. Inter Divos relātus est.

Domitian, 81 A. D.

94. Domitiānus mox accēpit imperium, frater ipsius junior; Nerōni, aut Caligulae, aut Tiberio similior, quam patri, vel fratri suo. Primis tamen annis moderātus in imperio fuit, mox ad ingentia vitia progressus, libidinis, iracundiae, crudelitatis, avaritiae, tantum in se odii concitāvit, ut merita et patris et fratris abolēret. Interfēcit nobilissimos ex senātu: domīnum se et deum primus appellāri jussit: nullam sibi nisi auream et argenteam statuam in Capitolio poni passus est: consobrīnos suos interfēcit: superbia quoque in eo exsecrabilis fuit. Expeditiōnes quatuor habuit: unam adversum Sarmātas; altēram adversum Cattos; duas adversum Dacos. De Dacis Cattisque duplīcem triumphum egit: de Sarmātis solam lauream usurpāvit. Multas tamen calamitātes iisdem bellis passus est. Quum obsclēra universis exōsus esse coepisset, interfectus est suōrum conjuratiōne in palatio, anno aetatis quadragēsimō quinto, imperii quinto decimō. Funus ejus cum ingenti dedecōre per vespillōnes exportātum, et ignobiliter est sepultum.

Is eos ludos mercatumque instituit ante annos quam Roma conderētur septuaginta. Hoc sacrum eodem loco instituisse fertur Atreus, quum Pelōpi patri funēbres ludos faceret. Quo quidem in ludicro, omnisque genēris certamīnum Hercules victor exstītit. Tum Athēnis perpetui Archontes esse desiērunt, quum fuissest ultimus Alcmaeon : coeperuntque in denos annos creāri ; quae consuetudo in annos septuaginta mansit : ac deinde annuis commissa est magistratībus respublīca. Legislation of Solon, 594 B. C.

100. Quum Dracōnis leges crudeliōres essent, quam ut possent observāri, legitur Solon, vir justitia insignis, qui velut novam civitatem novis legibus condoret. Quo munere ita functus est, ut et apud plebem et optimates, diuturnis antea dissidiis agitatos, parem iniret gratiam. Hujus viri, inter multa egregia, illud quoque memorabile fuit. Inter Athenienses et Megarenses de Salamine insula, quam sibi uterque populus vindicabat, prope usque ad interitum dimicatum fueroat. Post multas clades acceptas, Athenienses legem tulerount, ne quis illud bellum reparandum proponeret. Solon igitur quum opportunitatem quandam vidisset insulae vindicandae, dementiam simulat; habituque deformis, more vecordium, in publicum evolat; factaque concursu hominum, versibus suadere populo coepit, quod vetabatur; omniumque animos ita inflammavit, ut extemplo bellum adversus Megarenses decerneretur, et, devictis hostibus, insula Atheniensium fieret.

PERIOD II.—Grecian Triumphs.

481 B. C.

Darius invades Scythia: prepares to invade Greece.

101. Multis in Asia feliciter gestis, Darius Scythiam ingressus, quum hostes ei pugnae potestatem non facerent, metuens, ne interrupto ponte Istri, reditus sibi intercluderetur, amissis octoginta milibus hominum, trepidus refugit. Inde Macedoriam domuit: et quum ex Eurōpa in Asiam rediisset, hortantibus amicis ut Graeciam redigere in suam potestatem, clas-sem quingentārum navium comparāvit, eīque Datim praefēcit et Artaphernen; hisque ducenta pedītum milia, et decem equitū dedit, causam intersērens, se hostem esse Atheniēnsib[us] ~~libertate~~, quod eōrum auxilio Iōnes Sar des expugnassent, suāque praesidia interfecissent.

Battle of Marathon, 490 B. C.

102. Praefecti regii, classe ad Euboeam appulsa, celeriter Eretriam cepērunt, omnesque ejus gentis cives abreptos in Asiam ad regem misērunt. Inde ad Atticām accessērunt, ac suas copias in Campum Marathōna deduxērunt. Is abest ab oppido circiter millia passuum decem. Hoc in tempore nulla civitas Atheniēnsibus auxilio fuit, praeter Plataeenses; ea mille misit militum. Itaque horum adventu decem millia armatōrum complēta sunt: quae manus mirabili flagrābat pugnandi cupiditāte: quo factum est, ut plus, quam collēgæ, Miltiādes valuerit, qui unus maxime nitebātur, ut primo quoque tempore dimicārent. Ejus auctoritāte impulsi, Athenienses copias ex urbe eduxērunt, locōque idoneo castra fecērunt; deinde postero die, sub montis radicibus, vi summa proelium commisērunt. Datis et si non aequum locum vidēbat suis, tamen, fretus numerō copiārum suārum, configēre cupiēbat; eōque magis, quod, priusquam Lacedaemonii subsidio venirent, dimicāre utile arbitrabātur. Itaque in aciem pedītum centum, equitū decem millia produxit, proeliūque commisit. In quo tanto plus virtūte valuerunt Athenienses, ut decemplūcēm numērum hostium profigārint; adeoque perterruērunt, ut Persae non castra, sed naves petierint. Qua pugna nihil est nobilius; nulla enim unquam tam exigua manus tantas opes prostrāvit.

Xerxes invades Greece, 480 B. C.

103. Quum Darīus, bellum instauratūrus, in ipso apparātu decessisset, filius ejus Xerxes Eurōpam cum tantis copiis invāsit, quantas neque antea neque postea habuit quisquam: hujus enim classis mille et ducentārum navium longārum fuit, quam duo millia onerariārum sequebantur: terrestres autem exercitus septingentōrum millium pedītum, equitum quadringentōrum millium fuērunt. Cujus de adventu quum fama in Graeciam esset perlāta, et maxime Athenienses peti dicerentur, propter pugnam Marathoniam, misērunt Delphos consultum, quidnam facērent de rebus suis. Deliberantibus Pythia respondit, ut moenībus ligneis se munīrent. Id responsum quo valēret, quum intelligēret nemo, Themistōcles persuāsit, consilium esse Apollinis, ut in naves se suāque conferrent: eum enim a deo significāri murum ligneum. Tali consilio probāto, addunt ad superiōres totidem naves trirēmes: suāque omnia, quae movēri potērant, partim Salamīna, partim Troezēna, asportant; arcem sacerdotib⁹ paucisque majorib⁹ natu, ac sacra procuranda tradunt; reliquum oppidum relinquunt.

Actions at Thermopylae and Artemisium, 480 B. C.

104. Hujus consilium plerisque civitātibus displicēbat, et in terra dimicāri magis placēbat. Itāque missi sunt delecti cum Leonīda, Lacedaemoniōrum rege, qui Thermopylas occupārent, longiusque barbāros progrēdi non paterentur. Hi vim hostium non sustinuērunt, eōque loco omnes interiērunt. At classis commūnis Graeciae trecentārum navium, in qua ducentae erant Atheniensium, primum apud Artemisium, inter Euboeam continentemque terram, cum classiariis regiis conflixit: angustias enim Themistocles quaerēbat, ne multitūdine circum*mirēbili*~~to~~ Hino et cī pari proelio discesserant, tamen eōdem loco non sunt ausi manēre, quod erat periculum, ne, si pars navium adversariorum Euboeam superasset, ancipiti premerentur periculo. Quo factum est, ut ab Artemisio discederent, et exadversum Athēnas, apud Salamīna, classem suam constituērent.

Battle of Salamis, 480 B. C.

105. At Xerxes, Thermopylis expugnatis, protinus accessit astu, idque, nullis defendantibus, interfectis sacerdotibus, quos in arce invenērat, incendio delēvit. Cujus fama perterriti classiarii quum manēre non audērent, et plurimi hortarentur, ut domos suas quisque discederent, moenibusque se defendērent; Themistocles unus restītit, et, universos esse pares posse aiēbat, dispersos testabātur peritūros. Idque Eurybiādi, regi Lacedaemoniōrum, qui tum summae imperii praeērat, fore affirmābat. Quem quum minus, quam vellet, movēret, noctu de servis suis, quem habuit fidelissimum, ad regem misit, ut ei nuntiaret suis verbis: adversarios ejus in fuga esse, qui si discessissent, majore cum labore, et longinquiōre tempore bellum confectūrum, quum singulos consecrāri cogerētur; quos si statim aggredērētur, brevi universos oppressūrum. Hoc eo valēbat, ut ingratiis ad depugnandum omnes cogerentur. Hac re audīta, barbārus, nihil doli subesse credens, postridie alienissimo sibi loco, contra opportunissimo hostiis, adeo angusto mari conflixit, ut ejus multitudo navium

ww Xerxes flies back into Asia.

106. Hic etsi male rem gess̄rat, tamen tantas habēbat reliquias copiārum, ut etiam cum his opprimēre posset hostes. Itērum ab eōdem gradu depulsus est. Nam Themistōcles, verens ne bellāre perseverāret, certiōrem eum fecit, id agi, ut pons, quem ille in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolverētur, ac redītu in Asiam excluderētur; idque ei persuāsit. Itāque, qua sex mensib⁹ iter fecerat, eādem minus diēbus triginta in Asiam reversus est, seque a Themistōcle non superātum, sed conservātum judicāvit. Sic unūs viri prudentia Graecia liberāta est, Europaeque succubuit Asia. Haec al-tēra victoria, quae cum Marathonio possit comparāri tropaeo: nam pari modo apud Salamīna, parvo numēro navium, maxīma post homīnum memoriam classis est devicta.

Battles of Plataea and Mycale, 479 B. C.

107. Postēro anno quam Xerxes in Asiam refugērat, Graeci, duce Pausania, Mardonium, regis genērum, apud Plataeas fudērunt: quo proelio ipse dux cecidit, Barbarorumque exercitus interfectus est. Reprehensus Pausanias, quod ex praeda tripōdem aureum Delphis posuit, epigrammāte scripto, in quo erat haec sententia: suo ductu Barbāros apud Plataeas esse delētos, ejusque victoriae ergo Apollīni donum dedisse. Hos versus Lacedaemonii exculpserunt, neque aliud scripsērunt, quam nomīna eārum civitātum, quārum auxilio Persae erant victi. Eōdem forte die, quo Mardonii copiae delētae sunt, in Asia, ad montem Mycālen, Persae a Graecis navāli proelio superāti sunt. Jamque omnībus pacātis, Athenienses belli damna reparāre coepērunt. Quumque Phalerico portu neque magno neque bono uterentur, Themistōclis consilio triplex Piraei portus constitūtus est, isque moenībus circumdatus, ut ipsam urbem dignitāte aequiparāret, utilitāte superāret. Idem muros Athenārum restituit, non sine pericūlo suo, quum Lacedaemonii legātos Athēnas mississent, qui id fiēri vetārent.

PERIOD III.—Civil Wars in Greece.

FROM THE PELOPONNESIAN WAR TO THE ACCESSION OF PHILIP OF MACEDON, 360 B. C.

The Peloponnesian War, 431 B. C.—Pericles.

108. Quum Athenienses maris imperium non sine superbia sociorumque injuria exercērent, multique, gravi eōrum jugo fatigāti, alios, qui se tuerentur, circumspicērent; tota Graecia, ducibus Lacedaemoniis, aemulae urbi magnitudinem et incrementa invidentiis, in duas partes divisa, velut in viscēra sua arma convertit. Hoc bellum, quo nullum aliud florentes Graeciae res gravius afflxit, saepius susceptum et depositum est. Initio Spartāni fines Attīcae populabantur, hostesque ad proelium provocābant. Sed Athenienses, Perīclis consilio, ultiōnis tempus exspectantes intra moenia se continēbant. Deinde, paucis diēbus interjectis, naves condescendunt, et, nihil sentientibus Lacedaemoniis, totam Laconiam depraedantur. Clara quidem haec Perīclis expeditio est habita; sed multo clarior privati patrimoniī contemptus fuit. Nam in populatiōne ceterōrum agrōrum, Periclis agros hostes intactos reliquērant, ut aut invidiam ei apud cives concitarent, aut in prodictiōnis suspiciōnem adducērent. Quod intelligens, Pericles agros reipublīcae dono dedit. Post haec aliquot diēbus interjectis, navāli proelio dimicātum est. Victi Lacedaemonii fugērunt. Post plures annos, fessi malis, pacem in annos quinquaginta fecēre, quam non nisi sex annos servavērunt. Nam inducias, quas proprio nomine pepigērant, ex sociōrum persōna rumpēbant. Hinc bellum in Siciliam translātum est.

Expedition of the Athenians against Sicily, 415 B. C.

109. Quum enim jam antea, bello inter Catinienses et Syracusānos exorto, Athenienses Catiniensib[us] opem tulissent, tempore interjecto, quum pacis conditiōnes a Syracusānis non servarentur, illi denuo legātos Athēnas misērunt, qui sordida veste, capillo barbāque promissa, conciōnem adeunt, populumque lacrymis movent, ut, quamvis Peloponnesiāco bello districtus, auxilium illis mittendum censēret. Igūtur classis ingens decernītur; creantur duces Nicias, Alcibiādes et Lamāchus; tantaeque vires in Siciliam effūsae sunt, ut iis ipsis terrōri essent, quibus auxilio venērant.

110. Brevi post, quum Alcibiādes revocātus esset, Nicias et Lamāchus duo proelia pedestria secundo Marte pugnant; munitionibusque urbi Syracusārum circumdātis, incōlas etiam marīnis commeatībus interclūdunt. Quibus rebus fracti Syracusāni, auxilium a Lacedaemoniis petivērunt. Ab his mittitur Gyliппus, qui, quum in itinēre de belli jam inclināto statu audivisset, auxiliis partim in Graecia, partim in Sicilia contractis, opportūna bello loca occupat. Duōbus deinde proeliis victus, tertio hostes in fugam conjēcit, sociosque obsidiōne liberāvit. In eo proelio Lamāchus fortīter pugnans occīsus est.

Fatal termination of the Expedition, 413 B. C.

111. Sed quum Athenienses, terrestri bello superāti, portum Syracusārum tenērent, Gyliппus classem Lacedaemōne cum auxiliis arcessit. Quo cognīto et ipsi Athenienses in locum amissi ducis Demosthēnem et Eurymedonta cum supplemento copiārum mittunt; et, quasi Graeciae bellum in Siciliam translātum esset, ita ex utrāque parte summis virībus dimicabātur. Prima igitur congressiōne navālis certamīnis Athenienses vincuntur; castra quoque cum omni publica ac privāta pecunia amittunt. Inter haec mala quum etiam terrestri proelio vietī essent, Demosthēnes censēre coepit, ut abīrent Sicilia, dum res, quamvis afflictae, nondum ta-men perdītae essent. Nicias autem, seu pudōre male actae rei, seu impellente fato, manēre contendit. Reparātur igitur navāle bellum; sed inscītia ducum, qui Syracusānos, inter angustias maris facile se tuentes, temēre aggressi fuērant, Atheniensium copiae itērum vincuntur. Eurymēdon dux in prima acie fortissīme dimīcans, primus cadit: triginta naves, quibus praeſurat, incenduntur; Demosthēnes et Nicias autem cum reliquiis exercītus terrestri itinēre fugiunt. Ab his re-lictas centum triginta naves Gyliппus invāsit, ipsos deinde insequītur; fugientes partim capit, partim caedit.

Alcibiades negotiates with the Athenians at Samos.—The Four Hundred, 411 B. C.

112. Per idem tempus Alcibiādes cum duce exercitus Atheniensium, qui apud Samum morabātur, per internuntios colloquitur, polliceturque his amicitiam, si respublīca a popūlo ad senātum translāta foret. Itāque, permittente popūlo, imperium ad senātum transfertur. Qui quum crudeliter in plebem consulēret, ab exercitu Alcibiādes exsul revocātur, duxque classi constituītur. Statim igītur Athēnas scripsit, se cum exercitu ventūrum, recepturumque a quadringentis jura popūli, nisi ipsi reddērent. Hac denuntiatiōne territi senatōres, primo urbem prodēre Lacedaemoniis tentavēre; dein, quum id nequissent, in exsiliū profecti sunt. Itāque Alcibiādes, patria ab intestīno malo liberāta, summa cura classem instruit, atque ita in bellum adversus Lacedaemonios perrexit.

Successes of Alcibiades against the Lacedaemonians.

113. Hac expeditiōne tanta subīto rerum commutatio facta est, ut Lacedaemonii, qui paulo ante victōres viguerant, perterrīti pacem petērent; victi enim erant quinque terrestrībus proeliis, tribus navalībus, in quibus trecentas trirēmes amisērant, quae captae in hostium venērant potestātem. Alcibiādes simul cum collegis recepērat Ioniam, Hellespontum, multas praeterea urbes Graecas, quae in ora sitae sunt Asiae: quarum expugnavērant quam plurimas, in his Byzantium; neqne minus multas consilio ad amicitiam adjunxerant, quod in captos benevolentia fuerant usi. Inde praeda onusti, locupletato exercitu, maximis rebus gestis,

Athenas venērunt. www.libtool.com.cn

Cyrus (the Younger) favors Lysander and the Lacedaemonians,
407 B. C.

114. Dum haec geruntur, a Lacedaemoniis Lysander classi bellisque praeſicitur; et in locum Tissaphernis Darīus, rex Persarum, filium suum, Cyrum, Ioniae Lydiaeque praeſposuit, qui Lacedaemonios auxiliis opibusque ad spem fortūnae prioris erexit. Aucti igitur viribus Alcibiādem cum centum navibus in Asiam profectum, dum agros populatūr, repente adventu oppressere. Magnae et inopinatae cladi nuntius quum Athenas venisset, tanta Atheniensium desperatio fuit, ut statim Conōnem in Alcibiādis locum mittērent, ducis se fraude magis quam belli fortuna victos arbitrantes. Alcibiādes autem, impētum multitudinis veritus, in voluntarium exsilium proficisciatur.

Fatal defeat of the Athenians at Aegospotamos, 405 B. C.

115. Itaque Conon, Alcibiādi suffectus, classem maxima industria adornat; sed navibus exercitus deērat. Nam, ut numerus militum expleretur, senes et puéri arma capere coacti sunt. Pluribus itaque proeliis adverso Marte pugnatīs, tandem Lysander, Spartanoīrum dux, Atheniensium exercitum, qui, navibus relictis, in terram praedātum exierat, ad Aegos flumen oppressit, eoque impētu totum bellum delēvit. Hac enim clade res Atheniensium penitus inclinata est. Tributariae civitātes, quas metus in fide retinuerat, Lysandro se tradidērunt; qui, ejectis iis, qui Atheniensium rebus studērent, decem in unaquāque civitāte delēgit viros, quibus summum imperium potestatemque omnium rerum commisit.

Athens surrenders to Lysander, 404 B. C.

116. Lysander Athēnas navigāvit, miseramque civitātem, obsidiōne circumdātam, fame urget. Sciēbat enim, neque ex advectis copiis multum superesse, et, ne novae advēhi possent, providēbat. Quibus malis Athenienses fracti, multis fame et ferro amissis, pacem petivēre; quae an dari debēret, diu inter Spartānos sociosque deliberātum est. Quum nonnulli nomen Atheniensium delendum, urbemque incendio consummandam censērent, Spartāni negārunt, se passūros, ut ex duōbus Graeciae oculis alter eruerētur; pacemque Atheniēsbus sunt pollicīti, si longi muri brachia dejicērent, navesque, quae reliquae forent, tradērent; denique si respūblica triginta rectōres, ex civībus deligendos, accipēret.

Tyranny of the Thirty.

117. His legibus acceptis, tota civitas subito mutari coepit. Triginta rectōres reipublicae constituuntur, Lacedaemoniis et Lysandro dediti, qui brevi tyrannīdem in cives exercere coepērunt. Quippe a principio tria millia satellitum sibi statuunt; et, quasi hic numērus ad continendam civitātem non sufficēret, septingenitos milites a victoribus accipiunt. His copiis instructi exhaustam urbem caedibus et rapinis fatigant: quumque hoc uni ex numēro suo Theramēni displicēre didicissent, ipsum quoque ad terrōrem omnium interficiunt.

Thrasylbus occupies Phyle, 404 B. C.

118. Quum triginta tyranni, praepositi a Lacedae-moniis, servitūte oppressas tenērent Athēnas, Thrasybūlus (cui nemo fere praeferendus fide, constantia, magnitudine animi, in patriam amōre) Phylen confūgit, quod est castellum in Attica munitissimum, quum non plus secum habēret, quam triginta de suis. Contemptus est primo a tyrannis, ignorantibus, nihil in bello debēre contemni. Hinc, viribus paulatim auctis, in Piraeum transiit, Munychiamque munivit. Hanc bis tyranni oppugnāre sunt adorti, ab eaque turpiter repulsi protinus in urbem, armis impedimentisque amis- sis, refugērunt. Usus est Thrasybūlus non minus prudētia, quam fortitudine, nam cedentes violāri vetuit: cives enim civib⁹ parcere aequum censēbat; neque quisquam est vulnerātus, nisi qui prior impugnāre voluit; neminem jacentem veste spoliāvit; nihil attigit praeter arma, quorum indigēbat, et quae ad victimum pertinēbant. In secundo proelio cecidit Critias, trigin-ta tyrannōrum acerrimus.

The Expedition of Cyrus the Younger.—Retreat of the Ten Thousand, 401 B. C.

119. Eōdem fere tempore Darius, rex Persarum, moritur, Artaxerxe et Cyro filiis relictis. Regnum Artaxerxi, Cyro urbes Lydiae, quibus praefectus fuit, testamento legāvit. Sed Cyro judicium patris injuria videbātur; itaque occulite adversus fratrem bellum parāvit. Quod quum nuntiatum esset Artaxerxi, Cyrum ad se arcessitum compedibus aureis vinxit, interfecissetque, nisi mater prohibuisset. Quod periculum quum effugisset, Cyrus jam non occulte bellum, sed palam parare coepit; auxilium undique contrahit. Sed quum in proelio commisso fratrem imprudentius aggreditur, hunc quidem equi fuga periculo subtraxit, Cyrus autem a cohorte regia circumventus interficitur. In eo proelio decem millia Graecorum in auxilio Cyri fuere; quae et in cornu, in quo stetabant, vicerunt, et post mortem Cyri neque armis a tanto exercitu vinci, neque dolo capi potuerunt, sed per indomitas nationes et gentes barbaras, virtute sua confisi, in patriam revertuntur.

Peace of Antalcidas, 387 B. C.—Phoebidas seizes the Cadmea, 382 B. C.

120. Dum haec geruntur, Artaxerxes, rex Persarum, legatos in Graeciam mittit, per quos jubet omnes ab armis discedere; qui aliter fecisset, eum se pro hoste habiturum: civitatibus libertatem suaque omnia restituit. Fessi tot bellis Graeci cupide paruerunt. Paucis annis interjectis, Phoebidas Lacedaemonius, quum exercitum Olynthum duceret, itaque per Thebas faceret, Cadmeam occupavit impulsu perpaucorum Thebanorum, qui, adversariae factioi quo facilius resistarent, Laconum rebus studebant. Quo facto, eum Lacedaemonii ab exercitu removērunt, pecuniāque multārunt; neque eo magis arcem Thebanis reddidērunt. Liberandae patriae propria laus est Pelopidae, qui, exilio multatus, Athenas se contulerat. Ille, quum tempus est visum rei gerendae, communiter cum his, qui Thebis idem sentiebant, diem delēgit, ad inimicos op-primendos civitatemque liberandam, eum, quo maximi magistratus simul consuevabant epulari. Quum, vesperascente coelo, duodecim adolescentuli Thebas pervenissent, magistratum statim ad aures pervenit, exsules in urbem devenisse. Id illi, vino epulisque dediti, usque eo despexerunt, ut ne quaerere quidem de tanta re laborarent: qui omnes, quum jam nox processisset, vinolenti ab exsulibus, duce Pepolida, sunt interfici. Quibus rebus confectis, vulgo ad arma libertatemque vocato, non solum qui in urbe erant, sed etiam undique ex agris concurrerunt; praesidium Lacedaemoniorum ex arce pepulérunt; patriam obsidiōne liberavérunt.

Epaminondas.—Battle of Leuctra, 371 B. C.: of Mantinea, 362 B. C.

121. Paucis post annis, Epaminondas, dux Thebanus, apud Leuctra superavit Lacedaemonios, eoque res utrorumque perduxit, ut Thebani Spartam oppugnarent, Lacedaemonii satis haberent, si salvi esse possent. Idem imperator apud Mantinēam, quum universi in unum hostes impētum fecissent, graviter vulneratus concidit. Hujus casu aliquantum retardati sunt Boeotii, neque tamen prius pugna excesserunt, quam repugnantes profligarunt. At Epaminondas quum animadvertiseret, mortiferum se vulnus accepisse, simulque, si ferrum, quod ex hastili in corpore remanserat, extraxisset, animam statim emissūrum, usque eo retinuit, quoad renuntiatum est, vicisse Boeotios. Id postquam audivit, "Satis," inquit, "vixi; invictus enim morior." Tum, ferro extracto, confestim exanimatus est.

PERIOD IV.—Graeco-Macedonian Empire.

~~356 B. C.~~

Decline of the Grecian States.—Rise of the Macedonian Power.

122. Sine dubio post Leuctricam pugnam Lacedaemonii se nunquam refecērunt; et Thebae, quod, quamdiu Epaminondas praefuit reipublicae, caput fuit totius Graeciae, et ante eum natum, et post ejus interitum, perpetuo alieno paruerunt imperio. Athenienses, non ut olim in classem et exercitum, sed in dies festos apparatusque ludorum reditus publicos effundēbant, frequenter in theatris quam in castris versabantur. Quibus rebus effectum est, ut obscurum antea Macedōnum nomen emergēret; et Philippus, obses triennio Thebis habitus in Epaminondae domo, hujus praestantissimi viri et Pelopidae virtutibus eruditus, Graeciae servitūtis jugum imponeret.

Philip takes Amphipolis, 358 B. C.

123. Huic regi primum cum Atheniensibus certamen ad Amphipolin fuit; quibus per insidias victis, quum interficere omnes posset, incolumes sine pretio dimisit. Post hacc, bello in Illyrios translato, multa millia hostium caedit. Urbem nobilissimam Larissam capit in Thessalia, non praedae cupiditate, sed quod exercitui suo robur Thessalorum equitum adjungere gestiebat.

Extension of Philip's power.

124. Philippus, quum magnam gloriam apud omnes nationes adeptus esset, Olynthios aggreditur. Recepérant enim per misericordiam, post caedem unius, duos fratres ejus, quos Philippus ex noverca genitos, velut aemulos regni, interficere gestiēbat. Ob hanc igitur causam urbem antiquam et nobilem exscindit, et fratres olim destinato suppicio tradit, simulque praeda ingenti fruītur. Inde auraria in Thessalia, argenti metalla in Thracia occūpat. His ita gestis, forte evēnit, ut eum fratres duo, reges Thraciae, disceptatiōnum suārum judīcem eligērent. Sed Philippus ad judicium, velut ad bellum, instructo exercitu supervēnit, et regno utrumque spoliāvit.

Battle of Chaeronea, 338 B. C.

125. Quum, in Scythiam praedandi causa profectus, virtūte et numēro praestantes Scythes dolo viciisset, diu dissimulātum bellum Atheniensibus infert, quorum causae Thebāni se junxērunt. Facta igitur inter duas antea infestissimas civitātes societāte, legationibus Graeciam fatīgant. Commūnem hostem putant communibus virībus summovendum; neque enim cessatūrum Philippum, nisi omnem Graeciam domuērit. Motae quaedam civitātes Atheniensibus se jungunt; quasdam autem ad Philippum belli metus traxit. Proelio ad Chaeronēam commisso, quum Athenienses longe majōre milītum numēro praestārent, tamen assiduis bellis indurāta Macedōnum virtūte vincuntur. Non tamen immemōres pristīnae virtūtis cecidērunt; quippe adversis vulnerib⁹ omnes loca, quae tuenda a ducib⁹ accepérant, morientes corporib⁹ texērunt. Hic dies universae Graeciae et gloriam dominatiōnis et vetustissimam libertātem finīvit.

Philip prepares to invade Persia.

126. Hujus victoriae callide dissimulata laetitia est. Non solita sacra Philippus illa die fecit; non in convivio risit; non coronas aut unguenta sumpsit; et, quantum in illo fuit, ita vicit, ut victorem nemo sentiret. Atheniensibus, quos passus infestissimos fuera, et captivos gratis remisit, et bello consumptorum corpora sepulturae reddidit. Compositis in Graecia rebus, omnium civitatum legatos ad formandum rerum praesentium statum evocari Corinthum jubet. Ibi pacis leges universae Graeciae pro meritis singularem civitatum statuit, conciliumque omnium, veluti unum senatum, ex omnibus legit. Auxilia deinde singularem civitatum describuntur; nec dubium erat, eum Persarum imperium et suis et Graeciae viribus impugnatrum esse.

Death of Philip, 336 B. C.

127. Interea dum auxilia a Graecia coeunt, nuptias Cleopatrae filiae, et Alexandri, quem regem Epiri fecerat, magno apparatu celebret. Ubi quum Philippus ad ludos spectandos, medius inter duos Alexandros, et filium et genерum, contendere, Pausanias, nobilis ex Macedonibus adolescens, occupatis angustiis, Philippum in transitu obtruncat. Hic ab Attalo indigno modo tractatus, quum saepe querelam ad Philippum frustra detulisset, et honoratum insuper adversarium videlicet, iram in ipsum Philippum vertit, ultionemque, quam ab adversario non poterat, ab iniquo judice exegit.

Alexander the Great succeeds to the Macedonian Throne, 336 B. C.

128. Philippo Alexander filius successit, et virtute et vitiis patre major. Vincendi ratio utriusque diversa.

Hic aperte, ille artibus bella tractābat. Deceptis ille gaudēre hostībus, hic palam fusis. Prudentior ille consilio, hic animo magnificentior. Iram pater dissimulare, plerumque etiam vincere; hic ubi exarsisset, nec dilatio ultiōnis, nec modus erat. Vini uterque nimis avidus; sed ebrietatis diversa ratio. Pater de convivio in hostem procurrēre, manum conserere, periculis se temere offerre; Alexander non in hostem, sed in suos saevire. Regnare ille cum amīcis volēbat; hic in amīcos regna exercēbat. Amāri pater malle, hic metui. Literārum cultus utrīque simīlis. Solertiae pater majōris, hic fidēi. Verbis atque oratiōne Philippus, hic rebus moderatior. Parcendi victis filio animus promptior; ille nec sociis abstinentebat. Frugalitati pater, luxuriae filius magis deditus erat. Quibus artibus orbis imperii fundamenta pater jecit, opēris totius gloriam filius consummāvit.

Beginning of Alexander's Reign.

129. Imperio suscepto, prima Alexandro cura paternarum exsequiārum fuit; in quibus ante omnia caedis conscientes ad tumulum patris occidi jussit. Inter initia regni multas gentes rebellantes compescuit; orientes nonnullas seditiones extinxit. Deinde ad Persicum bellum proficiscens, patrimonium omne suum, quod in Macedonia et Eurōpa habēbat, amīcis divīsit; sibi Asiam sufficere praefatus. Nec exercitui aliis quam regi animus fuit. Quippe omnes obliti conjūgum liberorumque, et longinquae a domo militiae, nihil nisi Orientis opes cogitabant. Quum delāti in Asiam essent, primus Alexander jacūlum velut in hostilem terram jecit; armatusque de navi tripudianti simīlis prosiluit, atque ita hostias caedit, precatus, ne se regem illae terrae invitiae accipient. In Ilio quoque ad tumulos herōum, qui Trojāno bello cecidérant, parentāvit.

Battle of the Granicus, 334 B. C.

180. Inde hostem petens milites a populatiōne Asiae prohibuit parcendum suis rebus praefatus, nec perdenda ea, quae possessūri venērint. In exercitu ejus fuēre pedītum trīginta duo millia, equītum quatuor millia quingenti, naves centum octoginta duae. Hac tam parva manu universum terrārum orbem vincere est aggressus. Quum ad tam periculōsum bellum exercitum legēret, non juvēnes robustos, sed veterānos, qui cum patre patruisque militavērant, elēgit: ut non tam milites, quam magistros militiae electos putāres. Prima cum hoste congressio in campis Adrastiae fuit. In acie Persārum sexcenta millia milītum fuērunt, quae non minus arte quam virtute Macedōnum superāta, terga vertērunt. Magna itāque caedes Persārum fuit. De exercitu Alexandri novem pedītes, centum viginti equites cecidēre; quos rex magnifice humātos statuis equestrībus donāvit; cognātis eōrum autem immunitātes a publicis munerībus dedit. Post victoriam major pars Asiae ad eum defēcit. Habuit et plura proelia cum praefectis Darīi, quos jam non tam armis, quam terrōre nomīnis sui vicit.

Battle of Issus, 333 B. C.

181. Interea Darīus cum quadringentis millībus pedītum ac centum millībus equītum in aciem procēdit. Commisso proelio, Alexander non ducis magis quam milītis munia exsequebātur, opīmum decus caeso rege expētens. Quippe Dariū curru sublīmis eminēbat, et suis ad se tuendum, et hostib⁹ ad incessendum, ingens incitamentum. Macedōnes cum rege ipso in equītū agmen irrumpunt. ^{www.littool.com.cn} Tum vero similiſ ruīnae strages erat. Circa currum Darii jacebant nobilissimi duces, ante oculos regis egregia morte defuncti. Macedōnum quoque, non quidem multi, sed promptissimi tamen caesi sunt: inter quos Alexandri dextrum femur leviter mūcrōne perstrictum est. Jamque qui Darium vēhēbant equi, confossi hastis et dolōre efferāti, jugum quatēre et regem curru excutēre coepērānt: quum ille, veritus ne vivus venīret in hostium potestātem, desiliit, et in equum, qui ad hoc ipsum sequebātur, imponit, insignibus quoque imperii, ne fugam prodērent, indecōre abjectis. Tum vero cetēri dissipantur metu, et, qua cūique patēbat via, erumpunt. Inter captīvos castrōrum mater et uxor et filiae duae Darī fuērē: in quas Alexander ita se gessit, ut omnes ante eum reges et continentia et clementia vīnōeret.

Tyre besieged and taken, 332 B. C.

132. Jam tota Syria, jam Phoenīce quoque Mace-dōnum erat, excepta Tyro, cuius urbis incōlæ, fiducia loci, obsidiōnem ferre decrevērānt. Alexander, quum et classem procul habēret, et longam obsidiōnem magno sibi ad cetera impedimento vidēret fore, caduceatōres, qui ad pacem eos compellērent, misit: quos Tyrii contra jus gentium occīsos praecepitavērunt in altum. Atque ille, tam indigna morte commōtus, urbem obsidēre statuit. Sed ante jacienda moles erat, quae conti-nenti urbem committēret: magna vis saxōrum ad manuā erat, Tyro vetēre praebente: materies ex Libāno monte ratibus et turribus faciendis advehebatur. Incepto opere et fretum ipsum, Africo maxime objectum, obstabat; et Tyrii, quicquid ad impediendam molem excogitari poterat, non segniter exsequebantur. Septimo demum mense capta est urbs et vetustate originis et crebra fortunae varietate ad memoriam posteritatis insignis. Alexander, exceptis qui in templo confugērant, omnes interfici, ignemque tectis injici jubet. His per praecōnem nuntiatis, nemo tamen armatus opem a diis petere sustinuit: puéri virginesque templo compleverant; viri in vestibulo suarum quisque aedium stabant, parata saevientibus turba: quantumque sanguinis fusum sit, vel ex hoc aestimari potest, quod intra munimenta urbis sex millia armatōrum trucidati sunt. Triste deinde spectaculum victoribus ira praebuit regis. Duo millia, in quibus occidendis defecērat rabies, erucibus affixi per ingens litoris spatium pependērunt.

Alexander in Egypt, 332 B. C.—He visits the Temple of Jupiter Hammon.

133. Aegyptii, olim Persarum opibus infensi, Alexandrum laeti receperunt: nec sustinuere adventum ejus Persae, defectiōne quoque perterriti. A Memphi, Nilo amne vectus rex in interiora penetrat; compositisque rebus ita, ut nihil ex patrio Aegyptiorum more mutaret, adire Jovis Hammonis oraculum statuit. Quatri-duo per vastas solitudines absumpto, tandem ad sedem consecrātam deo ventum est, undique ambientibus ramis cinctam. Regem propius adeuntem maximus natu e sacerdotibus FILIUM appellat, hoc nomen illi parentem Jovem reddere affirmans. Ille se vero et accipere ait et agnoscere, humanae sortis oblitus. Con-sūlit deinde, an totūs orbis imperium sibi destināret PATER. Aequē in adulatiōnem compositus, terrārum omnium rectōrem fore ostendit. Post haec instītit quae-

Sacrificio deinde facto, dona et sacerdotib⁹ et deo da-

Jovem. Nihil amplius quaesivērunt, quam an auctor esset sibi divīnis honorib⁹ colendi suum regem. Hoc quoque acceptum fore Jovi vates respondit. Vera et salūbri aestimatiōne fides oracūli vana profecto ei vidēri potuisset: sed fortūna, quos uni sibi credere coēgit, magna ex parte avīdos gloriae magis quam capāces faeit. Rex ex Hammōne rediens elēgit urbi locum, ubi nunc est Alexandrīa, appellatiōnem trahens ex nomīne auctōris.

Darius makes his last proposals of Peace.

134. Jam Darīus pervenērat Arbēla vicum, nobilem sua clade factūrus. Hic, quum fides ei facta esset, regīnam suam quae captīva in Alexandri castris paulo ante decessērat, caste sanctēque habītam esse, victus conti-nentia hostis, ad novas pacis conditiōnes ferendas decem legātos, cognatōrum principes, misit. Neque jam imperio Alexandri finem destinat Halym amnem, qui Lydiām termīnat: quicquid inter Hellespontum et Eu-phrātem est, in dotēm filiae offert. Quum Parmenio ingrāta regi oratiōne suasisset, ut opīnum regnum con-ditiōne occupāret, non bello: "Et ego," inquit, "pecuniām quam gloriam mallem, si Parmenio essem." Dimissi legāti nuntiant, adesse certāmen.

Darius conquered near Arbela, 331 B. C.

135. Alexander, non alias magis territus, sacrificio rite perpetrato, reliquum noctis acquieturus in tabernaculum rediit. Sed nec somnum capere nec quietum pati poterat: tandem gravatum animi anxietate corpus altior somnus oppressit. Jamque luce orta, quum duces ad accipienda imperia convenissent, Parmenio, regem saepius nomine compellatum, quum voce non posset, tactu excitavit. Raro admordum, admonitu magis amicorum quam metu discriminis adeundi, thorace uti solebat: tunc quoque munimento corporis sumpto processit ad milites. Haud alias tam alacrem vidabant regem, et vultu ejus interrito spem victoriae augurabantur. Raro in ullo proelio tantum sanguinis fusum est. Tandem Darii auriga, qui ante ipsum sedens equos regebat, hasta transfixus est; nec aut Persae aut Macedones dubitavere, quin ipse rex esset occisus. Cedere Persae, et laxare ordines; jamque non pugna sed caedes erat, quum Darius quoque currum suum in fugam vertit; victori Alexandro Asiae imperium obtulit.

Disturbances in Greece.

136. Dum haec in Asia gerebantur, Graecia fere omnis, spe recuperandae libertatis, ad arma concurrebat, auctoritatem Lacedaemoniorum secuta. Dux hujus belli Agis, rex Lacedaemoniorum, fuit. Quem motum Antipater, dux ab Alexandro in Macedonia relictus, in ipso ortu oppressit. Magna tamen utrimque caedes fuit. Agis rex, quum suos terga dantes vidaret, dimissis satellitibus ut Alejandro felicitate, non virtute inferior videretur, tantam stragem hostium edidit, ut agmīna interdum fugāret. Ad postrēnum, etsi a multitudine victus, gloria tamen omnes vicit.

Alexander invades India.

187. Post haec Indiam petit, ut Oceāno finiret imperium. Cui gloriae ut etiam exercitus ornamenta convenirent, phaleras equōrum et arma milītum argento indūcit; exercitumque suum, ab argenteis clypeis, Argyraspidas appellāvit. Quum ad Nysam urbem venisset, oppidānis non repugnantibus, fiducia Libéri patria, a quo condīta urbs erat, parci jussit. Tunc ad sacrū montem duxit exercitū, vite hederāque non alīter vestītum, quam si manu cultus exornatusque esset. Ubi ad montem accessit, exercitū, repentinō mentis impētu correptus, ululāre coepit, et Bacchantium more discurrit.

The limit of Alexander's Conquests.

188. Quum ad Hyphāsim venisset, ubi eum cum ducentis millībus equītum hostes opperiebantur, exercitus omnis laborībus fessus, lacrȳmis eum precātur, finem tandem belli faceret; aliquando patriae redditusque meminisset, militumque annos respiceret. Ostendere aliis canitiem, alias vulnēra, alias aetāte consumptum corpus et cicatricib⁹ obductum. Motus eōrum precībus, veluti finem victoriis factūrus, castra solīto magnificentiōra fiēri jussit, quorum molitionib⁹ et hostis ternerētur, et postēris sui admiratio relinquerētur. Nullum opus laetius milītes fecerunt. Itaque caesis hostib⁹ cum gratulatiōne in haec castra revertērunt.

Alexander returns to Babylon, 324 B. C.

139. Ab ultimis oris Oceāni Babyloniam revertenti nuntiātur, non solum legationes Carthaginiensium ceterarumque Africæ civitatum, sed et Hispaniarum, Siciliae, Galliae, Sardiniae, nonnullas quoque ex Italia ejus adventum Babyloniae opperiri. Hac igitur ex causa Babyloniam festinanti quidam ex Magis praedixit, ne urbem introīret, testatus, hunc locum ei fatalem fore. Sed ab Anaxarcho philosōpho compulsus, ut Magōrum predicta contemnēret, Babyloniam reversus, convivium solemniter instituit. Ibi quum totus in laetitiam effūsus esset, recedentem jam e convivio Medius Thessālus, instaurāta comissatiōne invītat. Accepto pocūlo, inter bibendum veluti telo confixus ingemuit, elatusque e convivio semianīmis, tanto dolore cruciātus est, ut ferrum in remedia poscēret.

Death of Alexander, 323 B. C.

140. Quarta die Alexander indubitātam mortem sentiens, agnoscere se fatum domus majōrum suōrum, ait; namque plerosque Aeacidārum intra tricesimum annum defunctos. Tumultuantes deinde milites, insidiis periisse regem suspicantes, ipse sedāvit, eosque omnes ad conspectum suum admīsit, osculandamque dextram porrexit. Quum lacrymārent omnes, ipse non sine lacrȳmis tantum, verum etiam sine ullo tristiōris mentis argumento fuit. Ad postrēnum corpus suum in Hammōnis templo condi jubet. Quum deficere eum amīci vidērent, quaerunt, quem imperii faciat herēdem; respondit, dignissimum. Hac voce omnes amīcos suos ad aemūlam regni cupiditatem accendit. Sexta die, praeclūsa voce, exemptum diḡto annūlum Perdiccas tradidit, quae res gliscentem amicōrum discordiam se-dāvit. Nam etsi non voce nuncupātus heres, judicio tamen electus esse videbātur.

Remarks on the character of Alexander.

141. Decessit Alexander mensem unum tres et tri-ginta annos natus, vir supra humānum modum vi animi praeditus. Om̄na quaedam magnitudinem ejus in ipso ortu portendisse existimabantur. Quo die natus est, pater ejus nuntium duārum victoriārum accēpit; alterius belli Illyriči, alterius certamīnis Olympiāci, in quod quadrīgas misērat. Puer acerrīmis literārum stu-diis erudītus fuit. Exacta pueritia, per quinquennium Aristotèle, philosōpho praestantissimo, usus est magistro. Accepto tandem imperio tantam militib⁹ suis fiduciam fecit, ut, illo praesente, nullius hostis arma timērent. Itāque cum nullo hoste unquam congressus est, quem non vicērit; nullam urbem obsēdit, quam non expugnavērit. Victor denīque est non virtūte hostili, sed insidiis suōrum et fraude.

PERIOD V.—Decline of Grecian Power.

FROM THE DEATH OF ALEXANDER TO THE SUBJUGATION OF GREECE BY THE ROMANS, 146 B. C.

Aridaeus, the son of Philip, is proclaimed King.

142. Pedītes Aridaeum, Alexandri fratrem, regēm appellant, satellitesque illi ex turbā sua legunt, et no-mīne Philippi patris vocāri jubent. Magna hinc in castris seditiōne orta, tandem ab equitib⁹ quoque Ari-daeus rex agnoscitur. His ita compositis, Macedoniae et Graeciae Antip̄ter praeponitur: regiae pecuniae custodia Crat̄ro tradit⁹: castrōrum et exercit⁹ cura Meleāgro et Perdiccae assignātur; jubeturque Aridaeus rex corpus Alexandri in Hammōnis templum deducere. Tunc Perdicca, lustratiōne castrōrum indicta, seditiōsos supplicio occulte tradi jubet. Reversus inde, provincias inter princ̄pes divīsit.

Disputes between Alexander's Generals.

143. Post haec bellum inter Perdiccam et Antigōnum oritur, quod, velut incendium, mox latius serpsit. Macedonia, in duas partes discurrentib⁹ ducib⁹, in sua viscera armatur, ferrumque a barbāris in civilem sanguinem vertit. In hoc bello Perdicca occisus est: pluresque ejusdem partis duces periērunt. Et jam finitum certāmen inter successōres Alexandri Magni videbātur, quum repente inter ipsos victōres nata est discordia. Ptolemaeus et Cassander, Antip̄tri filius, inita cum Lysimācho et Seleuco societāte, contra Antigōnum bellum terra marīque enixe instruunt. Tenēbat Ptolemaeus Aegyptum cum Africæ parte minōre et Cypro et Phoenīce. Cassandro parēbat Macedonia cum Graecia. Asiam et partes Orientis occupavērat Antigōnus, cuius filius Demetrius, prima belli congressiōne, a Ptolemaeo apud Gamālam vincitur. In quo proelio major Ptolemaei moderatiōnis gloria, quam ipsius victoriae fuit. Siquidem et amīcos Demetrii non solum cum suis rebus, verum etiam addītis insūper munerib⁹, dimisit; et ipsius Demetrii privātum omne instrumentum ac familiam reddidit, dicens: non se propter praedam, sed propter dignitatem inisse bellum, indignatum, quod Antigonus, devictis diversae factio[n]is ducibus, solus communis victoriae praemia corripuisset.

The Generals assume the title of Kings.

144. Interea Ptolemaeus cum Demetrio navali proelio iterato congreditur, et, amissa classe, in Aegyptum refugit. Hac Victoria elatus Antigonus regem se cum Demetrio filio appellari jubet. Ptolemaeus quoque, ne minoris apud suos auctoritatis esset, rex ab exercitu cognominatur. Quibus auditis, Cassander et Lysimachus et ipsi regiam sibi majestatem vindicarunt.

War in Greece.

145. Omnes ferme Graeciae civitates, ducibus Spartani, ad spem libertatis erectae, in bellum prorumpunt; et, ne cum Antigono, sub cuius regno erant, bellum cepisse viderentur, socios ejus Aetolos aggrediuntur,— causam belli praetendentes, quod sacratum Apollini campum Cirraeum per vim occupassent. Conjunctoro exercitu, Aetolorumque finibus devastatis, magnam cladem passi sunt. Deinde, Spartani bellum reparatis, auxilium multae gentes negaverunt, existimantes, dominacionem eos, non libertatem Graeciae querere.

Irruption of the Gauls into Greece, 279 B. C.

146. Galli, abundante multitudine, quum eos non caperent terrae, quae genuerant, trecenta millia hominum ad sedes novas quaerendas miserunt. Ex his portio in Italia consedit, quae et Roman incendit; alia portio in Illyricos sinus penetravit, et in Pannonia consēdit, ubi per multos annos bella cum finitīmis gessērunt. Hortante deinde successu, divīsis agminībus, alii Graeciam, aliī Macedoniam petivēre. Tantusque terror Gallīci nomīnis fuit, ut etiam reges non lācessīt ultro pacem ingenti pecunia mercarentur.

147. Paulo post Brennus, quo duce portio Gallōrum in Graeciam se effudērat, cum centum et quinquaginta millībus pedītū et quīndēcim millībus equītū in Macedoniam irrumpit. Victo exercītu, totīus regiōnis agros depraedātur. Tum Delphos iter vertit ad Apollīnis templum spoliandum. Hoc templum posītū est in monte Parnasso, in rupe undīque impendente, cuius praecipitiis, ut naturāli praeſidio, defendītur. Multa ibi et opulenta regum popolorumque visuntur munēra, quaeque magnificētia sua et gratam homīnum voluntātem, et Apollīnis responsa manifestant.

The Gauls are repulsed.

148. Brennus quum in conspectu habēret templum, ad acuendos suōrum anīmōs, praeſdae ubertātem militībus ostendēbat, statuasque cum quadrīgis, quarum ingens copia procul visebātur, solīdo auro fusas esse affirmābat. Qua asseveratiōne incitāti Galli, simul et mero saucii, sine respectu periculōrum in bellum ruēbant. Habēbat Brennus lecta ex omni exercītu pedītū sexaginta quinque millia; Delphōrum sociōrumque nonnīsi quatuor millia militū erant. Hi plus in Deo, quam in virībus spei ponentes, cum contemptu hostium resistēbant, Gallosque scandentes e summo montis vertīce, partim saxo, partim armis obruebant. Inter haec templōrum antistītes, sparsis crinībus, cum insignībus et infūlis, in primam pugnantium aciem procurrunt, eos hortantes, ne cunctarentur diis antesignānis hostem caedēre. Quibus vocib⁹ incensi omnes certātim in proelium prosiliunt. Praesentiam Dei statim sensēre. Nam et terrae ~~move dilatō locū~~ motu portio montis abrupta Gallōrum stravit exercitum, et tempestas insecūta grandīne ei frigōre saucios absumpsit. Dux ipse Brennus, quum dolōrem vulnērum ferre non posset, pugiōne vitam finīvit. Alter ex ducib⁹ cum decem millib⁹ sauciōrum citāto agmīne Graecia excēdit. Sed nec fugientib⁹ fortūna aequior fuit; nullus sine labōre et pericūlo dies; assidui imbr̄es et gelu, nix, famēs, lassitūdo, et pervigiliae misēras infelīcis belli reliquias obterēbant. Quo pacto evēnit, ut brevi ex tanto exercitu nemo superesset.

Pyrrhus, King of Epirus, invades Macedonia, 274 B. C.

149. Interea Pyrrhus ex Sicilia in Epīrum reversus fines Macedoniae invādit; cui Antigōnus cum exercitu occurrit, victusque proelio in fugam vertitur. Atque ita Pyrrhus Macedoniam in deditiōnem accipit; Antigōnus autem cum paucis equitib⁹ Thessalonīcam se recēpit, ut inde cum conducta Gallōrum manu bellum reparāret. Rursus a Ptolemaeo, Pyrrhi filio, funditus victus, cum septem comitib⁹ fugiens salūtis latēbras in solitudīne quaerit.

A general change of Rulers.

150. Iisdem ferme temporib⁹ prope universi orbis imperia novā regum successiōne mutāta sunt. Nam et in Macedonia Philippus, mortuo Antigōno, regnum suscēpit; et in Asia, interfecto Seleuco, impūbes adhuc rex Antiōchus constitūtus est. Aegyptum, patre ac matre interfectis, occupavērat Ptolemaeus, cui ex crimīne facinōris cognōmen Philopātor fuit. Etiam Spar-tāni in locum Cleomēnis suffecēre Lycurgum; et apud Carthaginienses aetāte immatūra dux Hannibal consti-tuitur, non penuria seniorum, sed odio Romanōrum, quo eum a pueritia sciēbant imbūtum. In his regībus puēris magna indōles virtūtis enituit. Solus Ptolemae-us, sicut scelestus in occupando regno, ita et segnis in administrando fuit.

The Romans declare War against Philip, 200 B. C.: Battle of Cynoscephalae, 197 B. C.

151. Nec multo post tempōre tota Graecia, fiducia Romanōrum ad spem pristīnae libertatis erecta, bellum Philippo intūlit; atque ita quum rex undīque urgerētur, pacem petēre compellītur. Repudiāta a Senātu pace, proelium commissum est apud Cynoscephālas in Thessalia inter Philippum et Flaminīnum, Romanōrum ducem. Macedōnas Romāna fortūna vicit. Frac-tus itāque bello Philippus, pace accepta, nomen quidem regium retinuit; sed, omnībus Graeciae urbībus extra terminos antiquae possessiōnis amissis, solam Macedo-niam retinuit.

Perseus plots successfully against his brother's life.

152. Intērim regis Macedōnum domus intestīnis malis agitatātur. Nam quum Demetrius, Philippi filius, a patre Romam missus, ob insīgnem pudōrem mul-ta favōris documenta a senātu accepisset, patri invīsus esse coepit, indignanti, plus momenti apud senātum persōnam filii, quam auctoritātem patris habuisse. Ig-ritur Perseus, major filiōrum regis, perspecta patris aegri-tudine, quotidie absentem Demetrium apud eum crimi-nāri, et primo invīsum, mox etiam suspectum reddēre; nunc amicitiam Romanōrum, nunc proditionem ei patris objectare. Ad postremum insidias sibi ab eo paratas configit, ad cuius criminis probatiōnem immittit indices, testesque ^{new library 1.c} subornat. Quibus rebus patrem impūlit, ut supplicium de innocentē sumēret.

Death of Philip, 179 B. C.

153. Occiso Demetrio sublatōque aemulo, non negligenter tantum Perseus in patrem, verum etiam contumacior erat; nec herēdem regni, sed regem se gerēbat. His rebus offensus Philippus impatientius in dies mortem Demetrii dolēbat, et, denique fraude cognita, non minus scelere Persei, quam innoxii Demetrii morte cruciabātur. Brevi post tempore, morbo ex aegritudine animi contracto decessit, relicto magno belli apparātu adversus Romānos, quo postea Perseus usus est.

Perseus conquered.—Macedonia a Roman Province.

154. Jam Macedonicum bellum summa omnium virium contentiōne a Romānis geri coeptum est. Prima equitum congressio fuit, qua Perseus victor suspensam omnium exspectatiōnem in sui favorem traxit; misit tamen legatos ad consilium, qui pacem petarent, quam patri suo Romāni etiam victo dedissent, impensas belli lege victi susceptūrus. Sed consul Sulpicius non minus graves, quam victo, leges dixit. Dum haec aguntur, Romāni Aemilium Paulum consilium creant, eīque extra ordinem Macedonicum bellum decernunt; qui quum ad exercitum venisset, non magnam moram pugnae fecit. Pridie, quam proelium consererētur, luna nocte defecit; quod ostentum Perseo cladem finemque Macedonici regni portendere vaticinabantur.

Quod vaticinium non fefellit. Perseus rex ^{fuga} cum decem millibus talentum Samothraciam defertur; quem Cnaeus Octavius ad persequendum missus a consule, cum duobus filiis, Alexandro et Philippo, cepit, captumque ad consulem duxit. Macedonia Romanorum ditioni addita. Aetolorum, nova semper bella in Graecia excitantium, principes Romam missi; ibique, ne quid in patria novarent, diu detenti sunt. Tandem per multos annos legationibus civitatum senatu fatigato, in suam quisque patriam remissus est.

The Romans seek occasion to quarrel with the Achaeans.

155. Macedonibus subactis, Aetolorumque viribus debilitatis, soli adhuc ex universa Graecia Achaei nimis potentes tunc temporis Romani videbantur, non propter singularem civitatum nimias opes, sed propter conspiracionem universarum. Namque Achaei, licet per civitates divisi, unum tamen imperium habent, singularemque urbium pericula mutuis viribus propulsant. Quaerentibus igitur Romani causas belli, tempestive fortuna querelas Spartanorum obtulit, quorum agros Achaei propter mutuum odium populabantur. Spartanis a senatu responsum est, legatos se ad inspiciendas res sociorum in Graeciam missuros. Legatis clam mandatum est, ut corpus Achaeorum dissolvarent. Hi itaque, omnium civitatum principibus Corinthum evocatis, decreatum senatus recitant, dicentes, expedire omnibus, ut singulae civitates sua jura et suas leges habeant. Quod ubi omnibus innotuit, velut in furorem versi universum peregrinum populum trucidant: legatos quoque ipsos Romanorum violassent, nisi hi, auditio tumultu, trepidi fugissent.

156. Haec ubi Romae nuntiata sunt, statim senatus Mummio consuli bellum Achaicum decernit, qui, omnibus strenue provisis, pugnandi copiam hostibus fecit. Sed apud Achaeos omnia neglecta et soluta fuērunt. Itaque praedam, non proelium agitantes, vehicula ad spolia hostium reportanda, secum duxerunt, et conjuges liberosque suos ad spectaculum certaminis in montibus posuerunt. Sed proelio commisso ante oculos suorum caesi sunt. Conjuges quoque et liberi eorum praeda hostium fuere. Urbs Corinthus diruitur: populus omnis sub corona venditur; ut hoc exemplo cetiris civitatibus metus novarum rerum imponeretur.

EXERCISES IN SYNTAX.

INTRODUCTION.

157. In Latin, as in English, words are divided, according to their use, into various classes, called Parts of Speech.

158. Parts of speech, either singly or combined, form Propositions; e. g.,

Audis.

Thou hearest.

Puer ludit.

The boy plays.

159. Propositions, either singly or combined, form Sentences; e. g.,

Equus currit (one prop.).

The horse runs.

Puer ludit et equus currit
(two propositions).

The boy is playing and the horse is running.

160. Sentences, in their various forms and combinations, of course, comprise the Language.

161. The object of all language is the expression of thought.

162. A sentence may express thought,

1) In the form of an assertion, either affirmative or negative. It is then called a declarative sentence; e. g.,

Puer legit.

The boy is reading.

Puer non legit.

The boy is not reading.

2) In the form of a question. It is then called an interrogative sentence; e. g.,

Quis legit? | Who is reading?

3) In the form of a command, exhortation, or entreaty. It is then called an imperative sentence; e. g.,

Lege.	Read thou.
Legat.	Let him read.

163. In each of the above forms, sentences sometimes imply passion or emotion on the part of the speaker, and may then be called exclamatory declarative if of the declarative form, exclamatory interrogative if of the interrogative form, and exclamatory imperative if of the imperative form. The emotion, however, does not affect the structure of the sentence, though it often renders it elliptical.

164. A sentence may express,

1) A single thought; i. e., may make but one assertion, ask but one question, or give but one command. It may then be called a simple sentence; e. g.,

Balbus a nullo videbātur. | Balbus was seen by no one.

2) Two or more thoughts so related to each other that one or more of them are made dependent upon the others. It may then be called a complex sentence; e. g.,

Quod ubi Caesar compērit, | When Caesar learned this,
se in Galliam recēpit. | he retired into Gaul.

Rm.—The two simple sentences, which compose the above complex, are, (1) Caesar learned this, and (2) Caesar retired into Gaul.

These are, however, so combined that the first does little more than specify the time of the action denoted by the second.
Caesar retired into Gaul (when !) when he learned this.

- 3) Two or more ~~www.lib.utexas.edu~~ independent thoughts. It may then be called a compound sentence; e. g.,

Balbus a nullo videbātur, | Balbus was seen by no one,
ipse autem omnia vidē- | but he himself saw every
bat. | thing.

SIMPLE SENTENCES.

LESSON I.

Principal Elements of Sentences ; Subject and Predicate.— Declarative Sentences.

[1 & 2.]

165. EVERY sentence, however simple, consists of two distinct parts ; viz.,

- 1) The Subject, or that of which it speaks, as puer in the sentence, puer ludit.
- 2) The Predicate, or that which is said of the subject, as ludit in the above sentence.

166. In Latin the subject is often omitted, because the form of the predicate shows what subject is meant ; thus, the single word rides, thou art laughing, is in itself a complete proposition, because the ending es shows that the subject in English cannot be I, he, or they, but must be thou.

167. When a proposition is thus expressed by a single word, that word is always a verb, and the omitted subject, implied in the ending of the verb, is always a pronoun of the same number and person as the verb itself ; as, Amat, He loves.

168. The analysis of a proposition, or sentence, consists in separating it into its elements or parts.

MODELS.

1. Proposition : Puer ludit, The boy is playing.

This is a simple sentence, because it expresses a single thought.

Puer is the subject, because it is that of which the proposition speaks. Ridit is the predicate, because it is that which is said of the subject puer.

2. Proposition : Rides, Thou art laughing.

This is a simple sentence.

Rides is the predicate, because it is that which is said of the omitted subject. The subject is a pronoun of the second person singular (tu, thou), implied in the ending es of the predicate.

LESSON II.

Subordinate Elements ; Modifiers.—Declarative Sentences.
[1 & 2]

171. Both subject and predicate may have qualifying words and clauses connected with them, to limit or modify their meaning ; e. g.,

1. Latinus rex regnāvit. | Latinus the king reigned.

Rem.—In this example, rex limits Latinus; i. e., it shows that the predicate regnavit is not affirmed of every one who may have borne the name Latinus, but only of Latinus the king.

2. Milites fortiter pugnant. | The soldiers fight bravely.

Rem. 1.—Here the predicate is modified by fortiter, showing how the soldiers fight.

RULE 2.—Qualifying words and clauses, whether belonging to the subject or predicate, may be called modifiers.

172. Any modifier, whether in the subject or predicate, may be itself modified; e. g.,

Latinus, bonus rex, regnāvit. | Latinus, the good king, reigned.

173. The subject (expressed or implied) and the predicate are essential to the structure of every sentence, and may, therefore, be called the essential or principal elements of sentences.

174. All modifiers are subordinate to the subject and predicate, and may, therefore, be called the subordinate elements of sentences.

175. VOCABULARY.

LESSON III.

www.libtool.com.cn

Elements of Sentences, continued.—Interrogative and Imperative Sentences.

[3 & 4.]

177. Interrogative sentences are used in asking questions, and may be introduced,

- 1) By an interrogative pronoun, adjective, or adverb ; e. g.,

Quis venit ?

Who has come ?

Quot sunt ?

How many are there ?

Unde venis ?

Whence do you come ?

- 2) By one of the interrogative particles, ne, non-ne, num ; e. g.,

Scribitne Caius ?

Is Caius writing ?

Nonne scribit ?

Is he not writing ?

Num scribit ?

Is he writing ?

REM. 1.—If ne is used, it must follow some other word, and be joined to it, as in the first example.

REM. 2.—A question with ne asks for information (Ex. 1), with nonne expects the answer yes (Ex. 2), and with num expects the answer no (Ex. 3).

REM. 3.—Ne, nonne,* and num, are not modifiers of the predicate, but mere particles showing the interrogative character of the sentence.

178. Imperative sentences are used in commands, exhortations, and entreaties, and take the verb either in

* Nonne, strictly speaking, is compounded of the modal adverb non and the particle ne; but we are now regarding it merely as an interrogative particle.

the imperative or in the subjunctive mood, and usually in the present tense; e. g.,

Perge in exsilium.	Go into exile.
Conservāte vos.	Preserve yourselves.
Veniat servus.	Let the slave come.
Veniāmus.	Let us come.

179. VOCABULARY.

Alba, Alba, ae, f.	Longa, Longa, ae, f.
Ascanius, Ascanius, i.	Reign, regno, āre, āvi, dūm.
He, is, ea, id; ille, illa, illud; or, when subject, it may be implied by the ending of the verb.	Silvius, Silvius, i. Succeed, sequor, sequi, secūtus sum. Who? Quis, quae, quid?

180. EXERCISES.

I. Translate and analyze the following sentences, stating whether declarative, interrogative, or imperative:

LESSON IV.Simple Subject.

[5 & 6.]

181. Every simple sentence must have for its subject either

- 1) A noun; e. g., Puer ludit, or
- 2) A pronoun; e. g., Ille ludit.

182. RULE.—Case of Subject.

The subject of a finite verb is put in the nominative.
(See examples above.)

[F. B. 609; A. & S. § 209; Z. § 379.]*

183. In the arrangement of the Latin sentence, the subject is put,

* These references relate respectively to the First Latin Book, to the Latin Grammar of Andrews & Stoddard, and to that of Zumpt, American edition.

NOTE.—The author indulges the hope that all who may use this book will constantly bear in mind that the writing of Latin cannot, in any way, supersede the necessity of thorough grammatical drills. Both exercises are indispensable to high scholarship, and should go, hand in hand, throughout the entire course of classical instruction. For this reason the Rules of Syntax, as we have occasion to use them in our Exercises, are inserted in this work, with references to the corresponding rules in the First Latin Book, in Andrews & Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and in that of Zumpt.

- 1) When not emphatic, at or near the beginning; e. g.,

Superbus cognōmen meruit. | Superbus merited his name.

- 2) When emphatic, at or near the end; e. g.,
Commōvit bellum rex. | The king excited a war.

184. VOCABULARY.

Boy, puer, ēri.

Girl, puella, ae.

Play, ludo, ēre, lusi, lusum.

Praise, laudo, āre, dvi, ātum.

Shield, clypeus or clipeus, i, m.

Spear, hasta, ae, f.

Strike, percūtio, ēre, cussi, cussum.

Walk, ambūlo, āre, dvi, ātum.

185. EXERCISES.

I. Translate and analyze.

1. Roma condīta est. 2. Urbs condīta est. 3. Quis veniet? 4. Venient. 5. Troja eversa est. 6. Roma eversa est. 7. Urbes eversae sunt. 8. Aenēas aufūgit. 9. Trojāni aufugērunt. 10. Aufugīmus. 11. Silvius regnāvit. 12. Quis regnābat? 13. Rex regnābat. 14. Hic regnāvit. 15. Ille regnābat.

II. 1. Explain position of elements in the above sentences. (See 183.)

2. Construct six Latin sentences: two declarative, two interrogative, and two imperative; two with substantives as subjects, two with pronouns, and two with subjects omitted.

III. Translate into Latin.

1. The pupil was praised. 2. The boys will be praised. 3. Have not the girls been praised? 4. They have been praised. 5. The shields were struck. 6.

LESSON V.

Complex Subject.—Modifier; Simple.

[7 & 8.]

186. The elements of a sentence may be either simple or complex:

- 1) Simple, when not modified by other words;
e. g.,

Rex regnāvit. | The king reigned.

- 2) Complex, when thus modified; e. g.,

Bonus rex bene regnāvit. | The good king reigned well.

Rem.—In the first example (Rex regnāvit), both subject and predicate are simple, while, in the second, they are both complex.

187. Modifiers are of two kinds; viz.,

- 1) Such as limit other words by completing their meaning. These may be called objective modifiers; e. g.,

Mater filiam amat. | The mother loves her daughter.

Amor auri. | The love of gold.

Rem.—In the first example, filiam not only qualifies amat, but also completes its meaning by showing the object loved. In the second example, too, auri both qualifies and completes the meaning of amor, by showing the object of that love: the love of (what?) gold.

- 2) Such as restrict the meaning of other words by specifying some quality or attribute. These may be called attributive modifiers; e. g.,

Bonus rex bene regnāvit. | The good king reigned well.

REM. 1.—Bonus expresses the attribute of rex (good king), and bene of regnāvit (reigned well).

REM. 2.—It will be observed that the adverb bene sustains the same relation to the verb regnāvit as the adjective bonus does to the noun rex; both are attributive, but, for distinction's sake, the latter may be called the adjective attribute; and the former, the adverbial attribute.

188. The subject of a sentence may be limited,

1) By an objective modifier; e. g.,

Amor gloriae nos impūlit. | The love of glory actuated us.

REM.—This modifier has been very properly called the objective genitive; though some grammarians regard it as merely attributive. It will be readily seen that gloriae, in the above example, expresses no attribute of amor (love); it says nothing of the character or qualities of that love; but simply specifies the object on which it is exercised.

2) By an attributive modifier; e. g.,

Bonus rex regnat. | A good king reigns.

Regis filius regnābit. | The king's son will reign.

REM.—It will be observed from the above examples that the attribute of the subject is expressed sometimes by an adjective, and sometimes by a noun used with the force of an adjective.

189. RULE.—Agreement of Adjectives.

Adjectives and adjective pronouns (whether in the subject or the predicate) agree in gender, number, and case with the nouns which they qualify; e. g.,

Bonus rex. | The good king.

[F. B. 614; A. & S. § 205.]

190. RULE.—Limiting Nouns.

A noun limiting the meaning of another noun denoting a different* person or thing, is put in the genitive, unless it denotes character or quality, in which case it is accompanied by an adjective, and is put either in the genitive or ablative; e. g.,

Regis filius.

The king's son.

Puer eximiae pulchritudinis, or Puer eximia pulchritudine.

A boy of remarkable beauty.

[F. B. 624; A. & S. § 211 and R. 6; Z. § 426.]

REM.—Instead of the genitive of the limiting noun, we sometimes find the dative, or the accusative or ablative with a preposition; e. g., Troja in Asia eversa est, Troy in Asia was destroyed.—Transmissus ex Gallia in Britanniam, The passage from Gaul into Britain.

191. In the arrangement of the parts of the complex subject,

- 1) The adjective precedes or follows its substantive, according as it is or is not emphatic; e. g.,

Bonus rex regnat.

Rex bonus regnat.

A good king is reigning.

- 2) The attributive genitive generally precedes its substantive when the latter is not emphatic; e. g.,

Aenēae filius regnāvit.

The son of Aeneas reigned.

- 3) The objective genitive generally follows its substantive; e. g.,

Amor gloriae nos impūlit. | The love of glory actuated us.

192. In analyzing a sentence which contains modifi-

* See 441.

ers, the pupil is expected to show both the influence of the several modifiers upon the thought, and their grammatical relation to the elements which they limit.

www.libtool.com.cn

MODELS.

1. Regis filius regnabit. | The king's son will reign.

This is a simple sentence.

Filius is the subject, and regnabit the predicate.

The subject filius is modified by regis, showing whose son, viz. the king's. Regis is in the genitive, according to Rule, 190.

Regis filius is the complex subject.

2. Rex bonus regnat. | A good king is reigning.

This is a simple sentence.

Rex is the subject, and regnat is the predicate.

The subject rex is modified by the adjective bonus, showing the character of the king (a good king). Bonus agrees with the subject rex, according to Rule, 189.

Rex bonus is the complex subject.

LESSON VII.

Simple Predicate.

[11—13.]

199. The predicate of a sentence consists of two parts, an attribute of the subject and a copula, by which that attribute is predicated or asserted of the subject.

200. The attribute and copula, which form the predicate, sometimes appear separately, as when the former is expressed by a noun or adjective, and the latter by the verb esse, and sometimes united in one word, in which case they must be expressed by a verb.*

201. The predicate of a simple sentence may, therefore, be,

1) A verb; e. g.,

Puer ludit. | The boy is playing.

2) The verb esse (or sometimes a passive verb) with an attributive† noun or adjective; e. g.,

Cicero fuit consul. | Cicero was consul.

Terra est rotunda. | The earth is round.

Rem.—In the first example, the predicate is not simply fuit, but fuit consul; for the assertion is not that Cicero was (i. e. existed), but was consul; so in the second example, the predicate is est rotunda, the assertion being that the earth is round.

* Even in the verb, the attribute and copula are sometimes represented by distinct words, as in the compound tenses; e. g., Rex occidens est. Here occidens is the attribute and est the copula.

† By an attributive noun is meant one which is used to qualify or describe another noun.

202. RULE.—Finite Verbs.

A finite verb must agree with its subject in number and person; e. g., www.libtool.com.cn

Latīnus regnābat. | Latinus was reigning.

[F. B. 612; A. & S. § 209; Z. § 365.]

203. RULE.—Predicate Nouns.

An attributive noun in the predicate after esse and a few passive verbs, is put in the same case as the subject, when it denotes the same* person or thing; e. g.,

Latīnus fuit rex. | Latinus was king.

[F. B. 613; A. & S. § 210; Z. § 365.]

135 For agreement of attributive adjective, see 189.

LESSON VIII.

Complex Predicate.—Direct Object ; Simple.

[14 & 15.]

206. The predicate, like the subject, may be limited,
- I. By Objective Modifiers.
 - II. By Attributive Modifiers.

207. The objective modifiers of the verb-predicate may be divided into three classes ; viz.,

- 1) Direct Objects.
- 2) Indirect Objects.
- 3) Remote Objects.

Rem.—These objects appear both singly and combined.

208. In the arrangement of the Latin sentence, the object, of whatever kind, generally precedes its verb ; e. g.,

Rex bellum gerit.

Legibus paret.

The king is waging war.

He obeys the laws.

REM.—Any word is rendered emphatic by being placed in an unusual position, especially if that position is near the beginning or end of the sentence or clause.

209. The direct object of the predicate may represent,

- 1) The person or thing on which the action of the verb is directly exerted; e. g.,

Caius pueram laudat.	Caius praises (what?) the girl.
----------------------	--

- 2) The direct effect of the action, i. e. the object produced by it; e. g.,

Caius epistolam scribit.	Caius is writing (what?) a letter.
--------------------------	---

210. RULE.—Direct Object.

[F. B. 641; A. & S. § 229; Z. § 382.]

211. Any thought, which may be expressed by a transitive verb with a direct object, may also be expressed by the passive voice of the same verb, having for its subject the noun used as the direct object of the active; e. g.,

(Act.) Balbum accusant.	They accuse Balbus.
-------------------------	----------------------------

(Pass.) Balbus accusatur.	Balbus is accused.
---------------------------	---------------------------

REM.—The agent of the action with passive verbs, when expressed, is generally put in the ablative with a or ab, but as it then becomes an attributive modifier, showing by whom the action is performed, we shall have occasion to examine it in another place.

LESSON X.

Complex Predicate.—Indirect Object; Simple or Complex.
[18—20.]

217. The verb of the predicate may be modified by a noun denoting the person or thing to or for which any thing is, or is done. This modifier is called an indirect object.

218. RULE.—Indirect Object.

The indirect object is put in the dative, and is used,

1) After esse in expressions denoting possession;

e. g.,

Puer est liber.

The boy has a book. (Lit.

2) After the compounds of esse, except posse;

e. g.,

REM.—The indirect object is sometimes expressed by the accusative with a preposition, as ad or in ; e. g., Culpam in multitudinem contulerunt, They charged the blame upon the multitude.

LESSON XI.

Complex Predicate.—Remote Object; Genitive.

[21 & 22.]

221. The verb of the predicate may be modified by a genitive appearing in the English translation as the object of an action, though in the Latin the distinction between the direct object and this genitive is clearly marked. To indicate this distinction, we will call the latter a remote object; e. g.,

Miseremini sociorum. | Pity the allies.

REM.—The accusative as object denotes that on which the action is directly exerted, while the genitive denotes that in regard to which the action or feeling is exercised, and sometimes seems really to express its cause. This genitive might perhaps, therefore, be not improperly treated, in some instances at least, as an adverbial attributive; but, as we uniformly render it by the object, it seems to present a more simple classification of the facts of the language to regard it as a remote object.

222. RULE.—Genitive of Remote Object.

The genitive is used,

- 1) After verbs of pitying; e. g.,

Miseretur sociorum. | He pities the allies.

- 2) After verbs of remembering and forgetting; e. g.,

Memini vivorum. | I remember the living.

- 3) After refert and interest; e. g.,

Interest omnium. | It interests all, or It is the interest of all.

[F. B. 642; A. & S. §§ 215, 216, 219; Z. §§ 439, 442, 449.]

REM. 1.—Verbs of remembering and forgetting sometimes take the accusative; e. g., Memini Cinnam, I remember Cinna.

REM. 2.—According to Key's Latin Grammar, verbs of memory take the accusative of the object actually remembered, or the genitive of that about which the memory is concerned.

LESSON XII.

Complex Predicate.—Remote Object; Ablative.

[23 & 24.]

225. After a few verbs, the ablative is used as a remote object, though it could probably be easily explained, at least in most instances, as an adverbial attributive; e. g.,

Lacte vescuntur.

| They live upon milk, or are nourished by means of milk.

REM.—The ablative lacte in this example may be explained as an adverbial attributive of means.

226. RULE.—Ablative of Remote Object.

The ablative is used,

- 1) After the deponent verbs utor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, and their compounds; e. g.,

Lacte vescuntur.

| They live upon milk.

- 2) After verbs signifying to abound or be destitute of; e. g.,

Nemo aliōrum ope carēre potest.

| No one can be (do) without the assistance of others.

LESSON XIII.

Complex Predicate.—Direct Object with Attributive Accusative.

[25—27.]

229. RULE.—Direct Object with Attributive Accusative.
Verbs of making, choosing, electing, calling, showing, and the like, are followed by two accusatives denoting the same person or thing ; e. g.,

Saturnus arcem	Saturniam		Saturn called the citadel Sa-appellāvit.			turnia.

[A. & S. § 230; Z. § 394.]

REM.—One of these accusatives is the direct object: the other is not a modifier, but an essential part of the predicate, and may be called the attributive accusative: thus, Saturniam is an essential part of the predicate, for the assertion is not that Saturn called the citadel, but that he called it Saturnia. Sentences of this class should be analyzed according to the following

MODEL.

Saturnus arcem Saturniam appellāvit.

Saturn called the citadel Saturnia.

This is a simple sentence.

Saturnus is the subject, and Saturniam appellāvit is the predicate.

Saturniam appellāvit, the predicate, is modified by the direct object, arcem.

Arcem Saturniam appellāvit is the complex predicate.

REM.—The attributive accusative is sometimes a noun, and sometimes an adjective.

230. When verbs of this class assume the passive form, the direct object becomes the subject, and the attributive accusative becomes the nominative, and still continues a part of the predicate; e. g.,

(Act.) Numam regem crea-	They appointed Numa king.
vērunt.

(Pass.) Numa rex creātus	Numa was appointed king.
est.

LESSON XIV.

Complex Predicate.—Combined Objects; two Accusatives.
[28—31.]

233. The objects already considered are not only used singly as modifiers of verbs, but are variously combined with each other. These combinations we will now notice in order.

234. A few verbs take two direct objects, the one of a person and the other of a thing.

235. RULE.—Combined Objects; two Accusatives.

Verbs of asking, demanding, teaching, and concealing, may take two accusatives, the one of a person and the other of a thing; e. g.,

Caesar frumentum Aeduos flagitābat.	Caesar demanded corn of the Aedui.

[F. B. 645; A. & S. § 231; Z. §§ 391, 393.]

236. When verbs, which in the active voice take two accusatives, become passive, the direct object of the person generally becomes the subject, and the accusative of the thing is retained.

237. RULE.—Object after Passive Verbs.

Verbs in the passive voice are followed by the same cases as in the active, except the direct object, which becomes the subject of the passive; e. g.,

(Act.) Caesārem senten- tiam rogant.	They ask Caesar his op- inion.
---	---

(Pass.) Caesar sententiam rogātur.	Caesar is asked his opinion.
---------------------------------------	-------------------------------------

Rem.—This rule, it will be observed, applies to all verbs which take combined objects in any of their several forms.

sant.	chery.

[F. B. 646; A. & S. §§ 217, 229; Z. § 446.]

LESSON XXI.

Complex Predicate.—Adverbial Attribute; Adverbs.

[48—51.]

263. The verb of the predicate, as already stated (Lesson VIII.), may be limited or modified by attributives. These are,

I. Adverbs.

II. Adverbial Expressions.

264. Adverbs, as attributive modifiers of the predicate, may denote

- 1) The place of the action or event; e. g.,

Ibi scribam regis interfē-	 There he killed the secretary
cit.	of the king.

2) Its time; e. g.,

Tum se tribūnus obtulit. | Then the tribune presented www.libtool.yt himself.

3) Its manner, means, &c.; e. g.,

Plura bella feliciter gessit. | He waged many wars successfully.

4) Its cause; e. g.,

Quamobrem regem interfecit. | Wherefore he killed the king.

265. There is also a class of adverbs which do not express the attribute of the predicate, but show the manner or mode of the assertion. These are accordingly called modal adverbs, and strictly modify the copula (see 199). They denote either certainty or uncertainty, and are either affirmative or negative; e. g.,

Non veniet. | He will not come.

Fortasse veniet. | Perhaps he will come.

Certe veniet. | He will certainly come.

REM. 1.—Adverbs of manner, means, &c., are the most numerous, and present far the greatest variety, including quality, degree, quantity, &c.

REM. 2.—Cause is generally denoted by adverbial expressions; accordingly but few adverbs of this class occur.

REM. 3.—Nonne is compounded of ne and the adverb non, and may in future be thus treated in analyzing.

266. RULE.—Adverbs.

Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs; e. g.,

Haud difficilis. | Not difficult.

[F. B. 629; A. & S. § 277; Z. § 262.]

267. The attributive modifiers of the predicate, whether in the form of adverbs or adverbial expressions, generally stand immediately before the verb, between that and the object, if an object is used; e. g.,

Bellum feliciter gessit. | He waged war successfully.

REM. 1.—Interrogative adverbs are placed at the beginning of the sentence or clause; e. g., Quamdiu furor tuus nos eludet? How long shall your recklessness elude us?

REM. 2.—Emphasis often causes the adverbial attributive (187, R. 2) to stand at or near the beginning or end. (See examples, 264.)

LESSON XXII.

www.libtool.com.cn
Complex Predicate.—Adverbial Expressions of Manner Means, &c.

[52—56.]

270. The attribute of the verb-predicate may be expressed by the oblique cases of nouns or adjectives, with or without prepositions. These oblique cases, with or without prepositions, may be called adverbial expressions, and may be referred to the following classes, viz. :

- 1) Adverbial expressions of manner, means, &c.
- 2) Adverbial expressions of time.
- 3) Adverbial expressions of place.
- 4) Miscellaneous adverbial expressions.

271. RULE.—Manner, Means, &c.

The manner or cause of an action, and the means or instrument employed, are expressed by the ablative; e. g.,

Domīnum gladio occīdit. | He killed his master with a sword.

REM.—Manner is often expressed by the ablative with cum, especially if accompanied by an adjective; as, Cum ingenti pompa, With great pomp.

[F. B. 666; A. & S. § 247; Z. §§ 452, 455.]

272. RULE.—Price, Degree of Estimation, &c.

Price, degree of estimation, &c., when expressed by nouns, are usually put in the ablative, and, when expressed by adjectives, usually in the genitive; e. g.,

Avārus patriam auro vendet.	The avaricious man will sell his country for gold.
Avārus pecuniam magni aestimat.	The avaricious man values money highly.

[F. B. 667; A. & S. §§ 214, 252; Z. §§ 444, 456.]

REM. 1.—The genitive of a few nouns, and the ablative of a few adjectives, occur in expressions of price and value.

REM. 2.—To adverbial expressions of means must be referred the ablative of the agent after passive verbs.

273. RULE.—Agent of Passive Verbs.

The agent of the action after passive verbs is put,

1) In the ablative with a or ab; e. g.,

Puer a Caio docētur. | The boy is taught by Caius.

2) Except after the second periphrastic conjugation which requires the agent in the dative; e. g.,

Mihi scribendum est. | I must write.

[F. B. 659; A. & S. §§ 248, 225, III; Z. § 451.]

REM. 1.—The dative of the agent after the second periphrastic conjugation may be explained as an indirect object; thus, Mihi scribendum est, I must write, means there is writing for me to do.

REM. 2.—The accusative with per is sometimes used as agent; e. g., Per Anci filios occisus est, He was put to death by the sons of Ancus.

LESSON XXVI.

Complex Substantive-Predicate.—Modifier; Objective or Attributive.

[66—68.]

292. The substantive-predicate may be limited in the various ways already specified for the subject and for nouns generally (see Lessons V. and IX.); e. g.,

Aenēas fuit Anchīsae fili-	Aeneas was the son of An-
us.	chises.

Numa fuit bonus rex.	Numa was a good king.
----------------------	------------------------------

293. The copula (esse or some passive verb) which belongs to the predicate, may also be modified by a modal adverb (see Lesson XXI.); e. g.,

Tarquinius non fuit bonus rex.	Tarquin was not a good king.
--------------------------------	-------------------------------------

REM.—Here the modal adverb non limits fuit.

LESSON XXVII.

Complex Adjective-Predicate.—Modifier ; Objective or Attributive.

[69 & 70.]

296. The adjective-predicate may be limited,

- I. By Objective Modifiers.
- II. By Attributive Modifiers.

297. The objective or completing modifier of the adjective-predicate may be expressed,

- 1) By the Genitive.
- 2) By the Dative.

298. RULE.—Genitive after Adjectives.

Many adjectives signifying desire, knowledge, skill, participation, recollection, fulness, and the like, together with their contraries, take the genitive ; e. g.,

Cupidus laudis est. | He is desirous of praise.

299. RULE.—Dative after Adjectives.

Many adjectives are followed by the dative of the object to which the quality is directed, or for which it exists; e. g.,

Pax mihi gratissima erat. | Peace was very acceptable to me.

[F. B. 631, 632; A. & S. §§ 213, 222; Z §§ 409, 436.]

300. The attributive or limiting modifier of the adjective-predicate may be expressed,

- 1) By the Adverb.
- 2) By the Ablative Case.

~~☞~~ For the use of adverbs, see Rule, 266.

301. RULE.—Ablative after Adjectives.

The ablative is used,

- 1) After the adjectives dignus, indignus, contentus, praeditus, fretus, and liber; e. g.,

Virtus parvo contenta est. | Virtue is content with little.

- 2) After any adjective, to denote cause, manner, or means; e. g.,

Aeger avaritiae fuit. | He was diseased by avarice.

[F. B. 633, 634; A. & S. §§ 244, 247; Z §§ 452, 467.]

302. Adjectives in any situation, whether as predicate or attribute, are modified according to the above Rules.

REM.—In a few instances it will be found difficult to distinguish the object from the attribute; in most cases, however, the distinction is sufficiently obvious.

303. The modifiers of the adjective generally precede it, though the objective modifier not unfrequently follows it; e. g.,

Haud difficilis.	Not difficult.
Cupidus laudis.	Desirous of praise.

REM. 1.—The attributive modifier sometimes follows.

REM. 2.—For the effect of emphasis on position, see 208, R.

12. The proconsul conquered them in Apulia.
13. Who was this proconsul ?
14. M. L. Crassus was proconsul.

LESSON XXVIII.

Complex Adjective-Predicate.—Modifier ; Complex.

[71 & 72.]

306. The modifiers of the predicate, whether objective or attributive, may be themselves modified, and may thus become complex ; e. g.,

Servus multa laude dignus | The slave is worthy of much praise.

Rem. 1.—Here laude, which limits dignus, is itself limited by multa. Multa laude is, therefore, the complex modifier.

Rem. 2.—We have seen (300) that the attribute may be either an adverb or a noun. When an adverb, it may be limited by an-ther adverb; when a noun, by an adjective or by an attributive noun.

LESSON XXIX.

Elements of Sentences ; Recapitulation.

[73—75.]

309. We have seen that the elements of the simple sentence are,

I. Principal Elements ; viz.,

- 1) Subject.
- 2) Predicate.

II. Subordinate Elements ; viz.,

- 1) Objective Modifiers.
- 2) Attributive Modifiers.

310. We have also seen that these elements may stand either without limiting-words, in which case they are called simple, or with them, in which case they are called complex.

311. All subordinate elements stand as the modifiers of substantives (including pronouns), adjectives, verbs, and adverbs.

I. MODIFIERS OF SUBSTANTIVES.

312. The objective modifiers of substantives must be expressed either by substantives or by adjectives used substantively; e. g.,

Amor gloriae. | The love of glory.

313. The attributive modifiers of substantives may be expressed (1) by adjectives and (2) by substantives; e. g.,

Lingua Latīna. | The Latin language.

Ferrum Graecōrum. | The sword of the Greeks.

II. MODIFIERS OF ADJECTIVES.

314. The objective modifiers of adjectives must be expressed by substantives or by adjectives used substantively; e. g.,

Cupīdus laudis. | Desirous of praise.

315. The attributive modifiers of adjectives may be expressed (1) by adverbs and (2) by substantives; e. g.,

Haud difficilis. | Not difficult.

Aeger avaritiā. | Diseased by avarice.

III. MODIFIERS OF VERBS.

316. The objective modifiers of verbs must be expressed by substantives or by adjectives used substantively, and are of three kinds; viz., (1) direct objects, (2) indirect objects, and (3) remote objects; e. g.,

Caius puellam laudat. | Caius praises the girl.

Legibus paret. | He obeys the laws.

Memini vivōrum. | I remember the living.

317. The attributive modifiers of verbs may be expressed (1) by adverbs and (2) by adverbial expressions consisting of oblique cases either with or without prepositions; e. g.,

Miles fortiter pugnat. | The soldier fights bravely.

Hiēme ursus dormit. | The bear sleeps in winter.

IV. MODIFIERS OF ADVERBS.

318. The objective modifiers of adverbs, like those of other words, must be expressed by substantives or by adjectives used substantively; e. g.,

Congruenter natūrae. | Agreeably to nature.

319. The attributive modifiers of adverbs are generally expressed by other adverbs; e. g.,

Satis bene scripsit. | He has written sufficiently well.

320. Prepositions and conjunctions are properly connectives, and neither modify nor are modified, though they are used (the former always and the latter often) as elements in objective or attributive expressions.

321. Interjections are expressions of emotion, or mere marks of address, and have no grammatical influence upon the rest of the sentence.

322. The name of the person to whom a sentence is addressed is often introduced into it, but forms no part of the sentence itself.

323. RULE.—Vocative.

The name of the person or thing addressed is put in the vocative; e.g., www.libtool.com.cn

Quid est, Catilīna? | Why is this, Catiline?

[F. B. 617; A. & S. § 240; Z. § 492.]

ORDER OF ELEMENTS IN THE LATIN SENTENCE.

324. The Latin admits of great variety in the arrangement of the different parts of the sentence, thus affording peculiar facilities both for securing proper emphasis and for imparting to its periods that harmonious flow which characterizes the Latin classics. There are, however, certain general principles, by which we may be guided in determining the best position for the various elements in any sentence, whether with or without emphasis.

I. POSITION OF PRINCIPAL ELEMENTS.

325. The subject generally occupies the first place in the sentence, and the predicate the last; e. g.,

Tarquinus Superbus cog- nōmen morib⁹ meruit.	Tarquin the Proud merited his surname by his char- acter.
---	--

326. The subject may be rendered emphatic by being placed at or near the end, and the predicate by being placed at or near the beginning; e. g.,

Commōvit bellum rex Tar- quinius.	King Tarquin excited a war.
--	--

Rem.—If the predicate consists of a copula and a noun, adjective or participle, the copula sometimes precedes and sometimes follows the attribute.

II. POSITION OF SUBORDINATE ELEMENTS.

327. All subordinate elements appear as the modifiers of substantives, adjectives, verbs, or adverbs, and, in regard to position, may be treated in four divisions.

1. Position of the Modifiers of Substantives.

328. The adjective precedes or follows its substantive according as it is or is not emphatic; e. g.,

Primus annus quinque con-	The first year had five con-
sules habuit.	suls.

329. The attributive genitive usually precedes its substantive when the latter is not emphatic, and the objective genitive follows; e. g.,

Aenēae filius regnum ac-	The son of Aeneas received
cēpit.	the kingdom.

Amor gloriae nos impūlit.	The love of glory actuated us.
----------------------------------	---------------------------------------

330. When a substantive is limited by both an adjective and an attributive genitive, the order is adjective—genitive—substantive; e. g.,

Auream regis corōnam vi-	He saw the king's golden
dit.	crown.

2. Position of the Modifiers of Adjectives.

331. The modifiers of the adjective generally precede it, though the objective modifier not unfrequently follows it; e. g.,

Satis dives.	Sufficiently wealthy.
---------------------	------------------------------

Avīdus laudis.	Desirous of praise.
-----------------------	----------------------------

3. Position of the Modifiers of Verbs.

I. Objects.

332. The object generally precedes the verb; e. g.,

Caius filiam laudat.

Caius is praising his daughter.

333. When ~~two or more objects~~ are used with the verb, the direct object seems to prefer the place after the indirect, but before the remote; e. g.,

Fratri optiōnem dedit.

He gave the choice to his brother.

Caium furti accūsant.

They accuse Caius of theft.

II. Adverbial Attributives.

334. The adverbial attributive generally stands between the object and verb; e. g.,

Tarquinus Superbus cog-nōmen morībus meruit.Tarquin the Proud merited his surname by his character.

REM. 1.—The adverbial attribute, particularly that of time and place, not unfrequently stands at the beginning of the sentence; e. g., Hinc Aenēas aufūgit, Aeneas fled from this place.

REM. 2.—When the adverbial attribute is expressed by a preposition and an oblique case, the preposition (except tenuis and versus) precedes the substantive, and if the latter has an attribute, the preposition often stands between the attribute and substantive; e. g., Hanc ob causam nonnulli in exitium regis conjurārunt, For this reason some conspired for the destruction of the king.

4. Position of the Modifiers of Adverbs.

335. The attributive modifier generally precedes the adverb, and the objective sometimes precedes and sometimes follows it; e. g.,

Satis. bene.

Sufficiently well.

Congruenter natūrae.

Agreeably to nature.

REM.—Words are generally rendered emphatic by being placed in an unusual position, especially if that position is near the beginning or end of the sentence or clause.

CHAPTER II.

COMPLEX SENTENCES.

§ 1.—Complex Sentences; Unabridged.

LESSON XXX.

Sentence as Subject.

[76—78.]

338. ENTIRE sentences are often used as elements in the formation of other sentences.

339. Sentences thus formed are called complex. (See 164.)

340. A sentence thus used as an element may be introduced,

- 1) Without any changes of form or structure, as in direct quotation; e. g.,

(Simple Sentence.)

Caius est beātus. | Caius is happy.

(Complex—Direct Quotation.)

Dicunt, “Caius est beātus.” | They say, “Caius is happy.”

- 2) With certain changes to adapt it to the subordinate rank which it is to occupy in its new position, as in indirect quotation; e. g.,

Dicunt Caium esse beātum. | They say that Caius is happy.

REM.—It will be observed that the subordinate sentence in the above example, in the Latin, takes its subject and its predicate-adjective in the accusative, and its copula in the infinitive, but in the English assumes the connective that, and remains in other respects unchanged. Sometimes in Latin also the rank of the subordinate sentence is indicated by merely assuming a connective, and sometimes by both assuming a connective and changing its own form; e. g., Iter faciebam, quum Balbum vidēbam, I was making a journey, when I saw Balbus.—Quae quum ita sint, egredere ex urbe, Since these things are so, go forth from the city. Here it must be observed that, in the first example, the sentence, “Balbum vidēbam,” is united without change to the principal sentence by the connective quum, and thus is rendered subordinate to it as in the English; while in the second, the sentence, “Quae ita sunt” (these things are so), not only assumes the connective quum, but also changes its copula sunt to sint, thus becoming “Quae quum ita sint.”

841. A complex sentence may take an entire sentence in place of any one of its elements; i. e.,

- 1) As Subject.
- 2) As Predicate.
- 3) As Object.
- 4) As Attribute.

Sentence as Subject.

842. Any sentence, whether declarative, interrogative, or imperative, may be used in direct quotation as subject; e. g.,

“ Terra est rotunda, ” est sententia.	“The earth is round,” is a sentence.
“ Quid casūrum est? ” est quaestio.	“What will happen?” is the question.
“ Nemo in urbe sepelitor, ” erat lex.	“Let no one be buried in the city,” was the law.

843. Any sentence, whether declarative, interrogative, tive, or imperative, may be introduced as the subject of another sentence without being directly quoted; it then undergoes certain changes to adapt it to the place it is to hold ~~in the like old sentence~~ in the new sentence.

I. Changes in Declarative Sentences as Subject.

344. Declarative sentences used as subject, except in direct quotation (see 340, 1) change their own subjects to the accusative, their predicates to the infinitive, and any predicate-adjectives or nouns to the accusative; e. g.,

Terra est rotunda.	The earth is round.
Terram esse rotundam certum est.	That the earth is round, is certain.

REM.—Here the decl. sentence, Terra est rotunda, is used as subject; accordingly its own subject (terra) is changed to the accns. (terram), and its predicate (est rotunda) to the infinitive (esse) and the accusative (rotundam).

345. RULE.—Infinitive as Subject.

The infinitive mood, either alone or with other words connected with it, may be used as the subject of a verb.

[F. B. 608; A. & S. § 289; Z. § 597.]

346. RULE.—Subject of Infinitive.

The subject of the infinitive is put in the accusative (as terram in the above example).

[F. B. 655; A. & S. § 289; Z. § 599.]

347. With a few verbs we find quod with the indicative as the real subject; e. g.,

Accessit etiam quod pars equitatus se trans Rhenum receperat.	An additional reason was that a part of the cavalry had crossed the Rhine.
---	---

348. Instead of an infinitive sentence as subject, we find ut with the subjunctive with restat, sequitur, relīquum est, primum est, proximum est, and the like; e. g.,

Sequitur, ut haec enunciatio falsa sit. www.libtool.com.cn

Restat ut omnia doceam.

Mos est hominum, ut no-lint eundem pluribus excellere.

It follows that this statement is false.

It remains that I should teach all things.

It is a custom of men, that they are unwilling that the same one should excel in many things.

REM. 1.—In each of these examples, the clause beginning with ut is plainly the real subject, and the preceding part, as sequitur, restat, mos est, &c., the predicate. Thus, in the first example, we may ask, what follows (sequitur): plainly that this statement is false (ut haec enunciatio falsa sit).

REM. 2.—After non dubium est and the like, we sometimes find quin with the subjunctive; e. g., Non dubium est quin turpe sit, There is no doubt but that it is disgraceful. Here the clause, quin turpe sit, seems at first to be the subject, but if we observe closely the force of quin as compounded of qui (the old abl. of qui), by which, and ne, not, the sentence may be explained thus, non est dubium, there is no doubt, quin turpe sit, by which (i. e. in accordance with which) this is not disgraceful. Thus explained it assumes the nature of a relative clause.

II. Changes in Interrogative Sentences as Subject.

349. Interrogative sentences used as subject, except in direct quotation, change their predicates to the subjunctive mood; e. g.,

Quid casūrum est?

Quid casūrum sit incertum
est.

What will happen?

It is uncertain what will happen.

III. Changes in Imperative Sentences as Subject.

350. Imperative sentences used as subject, except in direct quotation, change their predicates to the subjunctive mood (if not already in that mood) with ut or ne; e. g.,

www.libtool.com.cn In urbe mane.	Remain in the city. That you remain in the city will be enjoined.
Ut in urbe maneas, prae- scribētur.	That you remain in the city will be enjoined.

351. The general rule for the position of subject and predicate is the same in complex as in simple sentences (325, 326), with this qualification, that the subject-sentence usually follows the predicates mentioned in articles 347, 348, and a few others.

352. VOCABULARY.

Caius, Caius , i. , m.	It is well known, is an admitted fact, constat .
Certain, sure, certus , a. , um .

It is ordered, the order is given, praescribitur .	Pharsalia, Pharsalia , ae , f.
It is usual, solet .	Pharsalus, Pharsalus , i. , f.
	Uncertain, incertus , a. , um .

6. Is it certain that Caesar made himself dictator ?
7. Where was Pompey conquered ?

III. Translate into Latin.

6. It is well known that Caesar conquered Pompey near Pharsalia.
7. Let the boys remain in the city.
8. The order has been given that the boys shall remain in the city.

LESSON XXXI.Sentence as Predicate.

[79 & 80.]

354. Any sentence, whether declarative, interrogative, or imperative, may be used in direct quotation as predicate ; e. g.,

Sententia fuit, "Terra est rotunda." | The sentence was, "The earth is round."

Quaestio est, "Quid casūrum est?" | The question is, "What will happen?"

Lex fuit, "Nemo in urbe sepelītur." | The law was, "Let no one be buried in the city."

355. Any sentence may be used as the predicate of another sentence without being directly quoted; it then undergoes certain changes to adapt it to the place which it is to hold in the new sentence.

I. Changes in Declarative Sentences as Predicate.

356. Declarative sentences used as predicate, except, of course, direct quotation, generally change the subject to the accusative, the verb-predicate to the infinitive, and any predicate noun or adjective to the accusative. This change, it will be observed, is the same as that of Subject-Sentences; e. g.,

Exītus fuit oratiōnis, sibi nullam cum his amici-tiam esse. | The conclusion of the oration was, that he had no friend-ship with them.

357. Sometimes the predicate-sentence takes ut or ne with the subjunctive; e. g.,

Consilium fuit, ut regem occidēret. | The design was to kill the king.

Rm.—This is usually the case when the idea of purpose is at all prominent in the sentence.

358. Sometimes the predicate-sentence takes quod with the indicative; e. g.,

Justissima causa fuit, quod Germāni timuerunt. | The truest reason was that the Germans feared.

II. Changes in Interrogative Sentences as Predicate.

359. Interrogative sentences used as predicate, except in direct quotation, take their own predicates in the subjunctive mood; e. g.,

Quaestio erat, num terra	The question was, whether
rotunda esset.	the earth is round.

III. Changes in Imperative Sentences as Predicate.

360. Imperative sentences used as predicate, except in direct quotation, change their own predicates to the subjunctive mood (if not already in that mood) with ut or ne; e. g.,

Praescriptum fuit, ut in	The order was that he should
urbe maneret.	remain in the city.

361. VOCABULARY.

Assassinator, percussor, ōris, m.

Design, consilium, i, n.

Favor, v., faveo, ēre, favi, fau-tum.

Question, quaestio, ōnis, f.

Report, fama, ae, f.

Return, v., redeo, īre, redii, re-ditum.

Violate, break, viōlo, āre, āvi, ātum.

Whether (in dependent questions), ne, num, nonne; num is more common than in direct questions, and here does not necessarily expect the answer no. (See 177, R. 2.) Your (in reference to one person), tūus, a, um; (in reference to more than one) ve-ter, tra, trum.

362. EXERCISES.

I. Translate and analyze.

1. Fama est, Caium urbem condidisse.
2. Fama fuit, Caesarem ad Alexandriam venisse.
3. Oratio fuit, Caesarem regnum Cleopatrae dedisse.
4. Haec fuit oratio, Romanos Germanis bellum inferre.
5. Haec

erat oratio, Germānos popūlo Romāno bellum intulisse.
 6. Consilium fuit, ut Caesārem occidēret. 7. Quaestio fuit, num Caesar occīsus esset. 8. Lex pacis fuit; ut Antiōchus sumptum omnem belli Romānis restituēret.
 9. Lex pacis fuit, ut rex naves universas tradēret.

II. 1. Change the subordinate predicate-clauses in the above exercises to distinct independent sentences.

MODEL.

Caius urbem condīdit.

2. Construct two or more Latin sentences with subordinate clauses as predicates.

III. Translate into Latin.

1. The report is, that your father is in the city. 2. The report was, that Cæsar had returned to the city.
3. The report is, that he returned to Rome. 4. The report is, that the citizens are violating the laws.
5. The design was to kill (that he should kill) his father.
6. The question is, whether he will kill his father.
7. The question is, whether the senate favored the assassins of Caesar.

LESSON XXXII.

Sentence as Modifier of Subject or other Noun.

[81 & 82.]

363. A sentence may be used as modifier of the subject of another sentence, or of some other noun in that sentence; e. g.,

Ad cetēras utilitātes haec quoque opportunitas adjungitur, ut habeat exercītum.

To the other qualifications this advantage also is added, that he has an army.

Poētae, qui res Romānas scribunt, solent praeterire nostras calamitātes.

www.libtool.com.cn

The poets, who write Roman history, are accustomed to pass over our misfortunes.

Audīvit famam, Caium regem occidisse.

He heard a report, that Caius had killed the king.

REM. 1.—The subordinate clause, in each of the first two of the above examples, modifies the subject, that in the first showing what poets, viz., those who write Roman history, and that in the second what advantage, viz., that he has an army. The subordinate clause in the third example modifies the object, and shows what report, viz., that Caius had killed the king.

REM. 2.—The last example may be regarded as a form abridged from the relative clause, the relative and copula being omitted. Filled out, it might stand thus: Audīvit famam (quae fuit), Caium regem occidisse. Abridged Complex Sentences will be noticed in another place. (See Lesson XLIII.)

364. The same general principles apply to the changes of sentences in these cases as in subject and predicate clauses, with the exception of relative sentences, which are very numerous.

365. Most declarative sentences, introduced to express the attribute of a substantive, are changed to relative clauses, and introduced by relative pronouns which always denote the same persons or things as the nouns which they limit; e. g.,

Aenēas fuit Anchīsae filius.

Aeneas was the son of Anchises.

Aenēas urbem condidit.

Aeneas founded the city.

Aenēas, qui urbem condidit, fuit Anchīsae filius.

Aeneas, who founded the city, was the son of Anchises.

Aenēas, qui fuit Anchīsae filius, urbem condidit. | Aeneas, who was the son of Anchises, founded the city.

REM.—It will be observed that the first and second of the above examples are simple sentences; that in the third, the second is made subordinate to the first by representing the subject Aeneas by the relative qui; and that in the fourth, the first is made subordinate to the second in the same way.

366. RULE.—Relative Pronoun.

The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender and number. (See examples above.)

[F. B. 625; A. & S. § 206.]

367. The predicate of a relative clause is sometimes in the indicative mood, and sometimes in the subjunctive. It may be observed, however, that the subjunctive is used,

- 1) To express purpose, result, or reason; e. g.,

Legātos misērunt qui dicērent. | They sent ambassadors to say (lit. who might say).

Neque enim tu is es qui nescias. | Nor indeed are you such an one as not to know (who may not know).

- 2) To define or explain an indefinite antecedent, either affirmative or negative; e. g.,

Sunt qui putent. | There are (some) who think.

Nemo est qui haud intelligat. | There is no one who does not understand.

REM. 1.—After negative expressions, we sometimes find quin with the subjunctive instead of the relative clause; e. g., Nemo est quin intelligat, &c., There is no one who does not understand, &c.

REM. 2.—It should be observed that the relative clause not only serves as attributive to the subject, but sometimes also expresses the relation of purpose, result, reason, &c. to the predicate, as in the above examples.

368. The common position for the relative clause in Latin is directly after the antecedent, though one or two words are not unfrequently allowed to intervene. (See examples, 365, 367.)

REM.—The same principle also applies to the position of any subordinate sentence used as modifier of a substantive or pronoun.

369. Instead of antecedent and relative, we sometimes find correlatives, as they are called, such as tot—quot; talis—qualis; tantus—quantus, &c.; e. g.,

Quanta vi civitātes libertātem expētunt, tantā regna reges defendunt.

With whatever violence states seek liberty, with so great, kings defend their kingdoms.

370. A relative adverb is sometimes used in place of the relative pronoun; e. g.,

Germāni Rhenum transiērunt non longe a mari, quo (= in quod) Rhenus influit.

The Germans crossed the Rhine not far from the sea into which the Rhine flows.

371. VOCABULARY.

Condition, terms, conditio, īnis, f.
Hold as one's own, obtain, obtineo, īre, obtinui, obtentum.

In, in (with abl.).

Mountain, mount, mons, tis, m.

Part, portion, pars, tis, f.

MODEL.

The ambassador asked peace with the condition that

Pyrrhus should (364) hold a portion of Italy. 8. The condition was that Pyrrhus should hold that part of Italy which he had taken by his arms.

www.libtoor.com.cn

LESSON XXXIII.

*Accusative with Infinitive, or Sentence with Quòd as Object.
[88—85.]*

373. A sentence, whether declarative, interrogative, or imperative, may be used, in direct quotation, as the object of the predicate of a new sentence. It is then introduced without change; e. g.,

Dixit, "Caius est beātus."	He said, "Caius is happy."
Dixit, "Quis est beātus?"	He said, "Who is happy?"
Dixit, "Sit beātus."	He said, "May he be happy."

374. Declarative sentences, when used as object of predicate, after verbs of declaring, perceiving, and the like (verba declarandi et sentiendi), except in direct quotation, change their subjects to the accusative, and their predicates to the infinitive; e. g.,

Dicit Caium esse beātum. | He says that Caius is happy.

375. After a few verbs, particularly those of adding, omitting, passing over, and the like, declarative sentences used as object are often introduced by quod; e. g.,

Praetereo, quod Sassia eam sibi domum delēgit.	I pass over (the fact), that Sassia chose this house for herself.
---	---

376. In the arrangement of the different parts of complex sentences,

- 1) The general principle is, that the subordinate clauses dependent upon the predicate should be inserted between the different portions of the leading sentence ; e. g.,

Romūlus, ut civium numē- rum augēret, asylum pa- tefēcit.	Romulus, that he might increase the number of citizens, opened an asy- lum.

- 2) It must be observed, however, that the subordinate clauses sometimes precede and sometimes follow the leading sentence, instead of being inserted within it ; e. g.,

Haec dum nostri collīgunt, rex ipse effūgit.	While our men collect these, the king himself escapes.

LESSON XXXIV.

www.libtool.com.cn
Dependent Question as Object.

[86—91.]

379. An interrogative sentence may be used as the object of the predicate ; and then, except in direct quotation, it takes its verb in the subjunctive ; e. g.,

Quid dixit ?	What did he say ?
Nescio quid dixerit.	I do not know what he said.

REM.—The tense of the subjunctive to be used in any case may be determined by the following 380. RULE.—Subjunctive Tenses in Dependent Sentences.

- 1) When dependent upon a present tense (pres., perf. def., or fut.), the subjunctive is put in the present tense to denote an incomplete action, and in the perfect to denote a completed action.
- 2) When dependent upon a past tense (imperf., perf. indef., or pluperf.), it is put in the imperfect to denote incomplete action, and in the pluperfect to denote completed action ; e. g.,

Nescio quid dicat.	I know not what he says.
Nescio quid dixerit.	I know not what he said.
Nescivi quid dicéret.	I knew not what he said.
Nescivi quid dixisset.	I knew not what he had said.

REM.—The present tense is sometimes used in narration for the perfect indef., and may then be followed by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive.

LESSON XXXV.

Sentence with ut or ne as Object.—Indirect Object.

[92—94.]

383. An imperative sentence used as object, except in direct quotation, is generally introduced by ut or ne, and takes its verb in the subjunctive; e. g.,

Clypeos hastis percutite.

Strike your shields with your spears.

Militibus imperavit, ut cly-peos hastis percuterent.

He commanded the soldiers to strike their shields with their spears.

Rem.—As an exception to the above principle, it must be observed that jubeo usually takes the accusative with the infinitive as the object-clause; e. g., Eos suum adventum exspectare jussit, He ordered them to await his arrival.

384. After verbs signifying to ask, advise, seek, and the like, the object-sentence usually takes the subjunctive with ut or ne; e. g.,

Fac ut sciam. | Cause me to know.

Illa petuit, ut sibi annulos aureos darent. | She asked that they would give her gold rings.

Rem.—In these examples the clauses beginning with ut are the objects of the transitive verbs fac and petuit.

Final Sentences; Indirect Object.

385. Final sentences, or such as express purpose, are introduced by ut, ne, quo, quom̄inus, and quin, and take the verb in the subjunctive. These correspond to the indirect object in the simple sentence.

386. Clauses expressing an affirmative purpose are introduced by ut, unless a comparative occurs in the sentence, in which case quo is used; e. g.,

Venit ut portas claudat. | He has come to shut the gates.

Medico aliquid dandum est, quo sit studiorior. | Something ought to be given to the physician that he may be more attentive.

387. Clauses expressing a negative purpose are generally introduced by ne; e. g.,

Rom̄lus, ne vana urbis magnitudo esset, asylum ap̄erit. | Romulus, that the large city might not be empty, opened an asylum.

388. Quom̄inus (quo and minus) is used after verbs of hindering; e. g.,

Quid obstat, quominus Caius sit beatus?

What prevents Caius from being happy? (Lit. by which [in order that] he may be less happy.)

www.libtool.com.cn

389. Quin (quî and ne), how not, why not, by which not, &c. is used after some verbs of doubting and hindering in negative sentences or questions implying a negative, and after facere non possum, fieri non potest, &c.; e. g.,

Non dubitant, quin dii il lud exaudiant.

They do not doubt (but) that the gods hear this.

acere non possum, quin ad te mittam literas.

I cannot but send letters to you.

REM. 1.—The clause in the first example appears to be the direct object of dubitant; it is such, however, only in appearance, and may be explained thus: They entertain no doubt (by which, in accordance with which, &c.), to the effect that, the gods do not hear.

REM. 2.—Relative clauses are sometimes used to express purpose (see Lesson XXXII.), e. g., Legatos miserunt qui dicerent, They sent ambassadors to say.

Ubi tyrannus est, ibi nulla | Where a tyrant is, there is no republic.

REM. 1.—The learner will observe that the assertion is, that there is no republic (where !) where there is a tyrant. The clause beginning with ubi is therefore in effect an adverb of place.

REM. 2.—For position of subordinate clause, see 376.

394. Instead of a correlative adverb in the principal sentence, we often find an adverbial expression of place; e. g.,

Latobrigos in fines suos, | *He ordered the Latobrigi to unde erant profecti, re-
verti jussit.* | return to their territories, whence they had come.

REM.—The subordinate clause in this sentence subserves a twofold purpose. With respect to fines, it sustains the relation of relative clause (see 370), and thus has the force of an adjective attributive; but with respect to the action expressed by the principal sentence, it denotes the adverbial attribute of place. In like manner, as already mentioned (367, R. 2), the relative clause not only serves as attributive to some noun, but sometimes also expresses the relation of purpose, result, reason, &c. to the predicate.

The country which he took was called from his name Thessaly.

LESSON XXXVII.

Adverbial Attributive-Sentences.—Time.

[98—100.]

397. Sentences used to denote the adverbial attribute of time are generally introduced by adverbs of time, as quum, when ; dum, until, &c. ; e. g.,

Haec dum nostri colligunt, rex ipse e manib⁹ effūgit.

While our soldiers are collecting these things, the king himself escapes from their hands.

REM.—It will be observed that the assertion in this sentence is contained in the part (rex ipse, &c.) the king himself escapes from their hands, and that the rest of it merely states the time of this action ; viz., while our soldiers are collecting these things.

398. Sometimes the adverb which introduces the temporal clause has a correlative in the principal clause ; e. g.,

Fructus omnis praestantiae tum maxime capitur, quum in proximum quemque confertur.

Tum, quum ex urbe Catilinam ejiciēbam, reliquam conjuratōrum manum simul exitūram putabam.

The fruit of all excellence is especially enjoyed, (then) when it is bestowed upon each nearest relative.

Then, when I banished Catiline from the city, I thought that the remaining band of conspirators would at once depart.

399. Sometimes in place of the correlative adverb in the principal clause, we find an adverbial expression of time ; e. g.,

Ligarius eo tempore paruit, quum parere senatui necesse erat. | Ligarius obeyed the senate at that time when it was necessary.

www.libtool.com.cn

400. Temporal clauses may represent the action of the principal verb as taking place,

1) At the time of some other action ; e. g.,

Dum senatus bellum contra Caesarem parabat, hic dictatorem se fecit. | While the senate was preparing war against Caesar, he made himself dictator.

2) Before some other action ; e. g.,

Priusquam lucet, adsunt. | They are present before it is light.

3) After some other action ; e. g.,

Scipio, tertio anno postquam Romani in Africam trajecerant, consul est creatus. | Scipio, in the third year after the Romans had passed into Africa, was made consul.

REM.—For position of subordinate clause, see 376.

Use of Moods in Temporal Clauses.

401. Subordinate clauses used to express time generally have their predicates in the indicative mood ; especially when they denote time merely. A few cases, however, require attention.

402. Subordinate sentences introduced by quum take,

1) The indicative when they mark merely the time of an action or event without any accessory notion of cause ; e. g.,

Is qui non propulsat injuriam a suis, quum potest, inuste facit. | He who does not ward off an injury from his friends, when he can, does wrong.

- 2) The subjunctive imperfect or pluperfect in historical narration, as the one event is here regarded in some sense as the cause or occasion of the other ; e. g.,

Zenōnem, quum Athēnis essent, audiēbant. | They heard Zeno when they were in Athens.

REM.—The clause, Quum Athēnis essent, indicates not only the time, but also the occasion of the action expressed by the principal clause, as their being in Athens was really the occasion of their hearing Zeno.

403. Subordinate sentences introduced by antēquam and priusquam take,

- 1) The indicative mood when they denote mere priority of time ; e. g.,

Priusquam lucet, adsunt. | They are present before it is light.

- 2) The subjunctive when they indicate a dependence of one event upon another ; e. g.,

Tempestas minātur antē quam surgat. | The tempest threatens before it rises.

404. The two parts of which antēquam and priusquam are compounded, are often separated, so that ante or prius appears in the principal clause, and quam in the subordinate part ; e. g.,

Ante triennium, quam Cartago delerētur, Cato mortem obiit. | Cato died three years before Carthage was destroyed.

Rm. 1.—The learner must observe that triennium does not depend upon ante (which is the adverb, and not the preposition), but is in the accusative to denote duration of time, in accordance with Rule, 277.www.libtool.com.cn

Rm. 2.—Postquam is generally followed by the indicative, and like antequam and priusquam, often has its parts separated.

Rm. 3.—Duration of time before or after any event may be expressed either by the accusative or ablative.

405. Subordinate sentences introduced by dum, donec, and quoad, take,

- 1) The indicative, (a) when these connectives signify while, or as long as, and (b) when they signify till or until, if the action or event spoken of is to be contemplated as a matter of fact; e. g.,

Dum senātus bellum contra Caesārem parābat, hic dictatōrem se fecit.

Epaminondas ferrum in corpore retinuit, quoad renuntiātum est viciisse Boeotios.

While the senate was preparing war against Caesar, he made himself dictator.

Epaminondas retained the sword in his body, until it was announced that the Boeotians had conquered.

- 2) The subjunctive, when they signify until, if the action or event spoken of is to be contemplated not as a fact, but as a merely conceived result for whose accomplishment an opportunity is presented; e. g.,

Differant, dum defervescat ira.

Let them delay until their anger may cool.

Rm.—Here the object of the delay is to allow anger time to cool.

LESSON XXXVIII.

Adverbial Attributive Sentences.—Cause.

[101—103.]

408. Sentences used to assign a cause or reason for the action or event denoted by the principal verb, are called causal clauses. They are usually introduced either by a pure causal conjunction, as quod, quia, or by quum, quoniam, or quando, which have reference both to cause and time; e. g.,

Quoniam supplicatio de- crēta est, celebrāte illos dies.	Since a thanksgiving has been decreed, celebrate those days.

Use of Moods in Causal Clauses.

409. Causal clauses take the subjunctive mood, when introduced by ~~quam~~, and the indicative, when introduced by other conjunctions, unless the cause or reason is assigned as the opinion of some other person than the narrator; e. g.

Quae quum ita sint, Catilina, perge.

Tardissime Lentulus venit, quod proxima nocte vigilaverat.

Praetores, quod eorum opera fideli usus essem, laudantur.

Since these things are so, Catiline, go on.

Lentulus came last, because he had watched the last night.

The praetors are praised, because I had employed their faithful assistance.

REM.—It will be observed that the subjunctive is used in the first example after quam, the indicative in the second after quod to denote that the reason is assigned by the narrator as his own, and the subjunctive in the third example after quod to denote that the reason is given on the authority, not of the narrator, but of those who bestowed the praise. The meaning is, the praetors were praised (by the senate), because I had employed their faithful assistance; i. e., this reason was assigned by the senate.

LESSON XXXIX.

Adverbial Attributive-Sentences.—Cause; Condition and Concession.

[104—107.]

412. Every conditional sentence consists of two parts—the condition and the consequence; e. g.,

Si quid habeat, dabit. | If he has any thing, he will give it.

REM.—Here si quid habeat is the condition, and dabit the consequence.

413. Conditional sentences are of four kinds :

- 1) Those which assume the condition as a fact,
i. e., as already true; e. g.,

Si quid habet, dat. | If he has any thing, he gives it, or is giving it.

Rem.—Here it is assumed that the condition is already realized.

- 2) Those which represent the condition as a present uncertainty, i. e., as one which may or may not be realized at the present moment; e. g.,

Si quid habeat, dabit. | If he has any thing, he will give it.

Rem.—Here the condition (if he has any thing) relates to the present time, and is represented as one which may or may not be true. It is not in itself dependent upon any contingencies, inasmuch as the fact, relating as it does to the present, is already determined, though we may not know what it is.

- 3) Those which represent the condition as a mere possibility, i. e., as one which has not yet been realized, but may or may not be so at some future time; e. g.,

Si quid habeat, det. | If he should have any thing,
Si quid habēret, daret. | he would give it.

Rem.—Here the condition is in itself dependent upon contingencies, as it relates to future time. It is to be determined by events which are yet to transpire.

- 4) Those which represent the condition as an impossibility, i. e., as one which has not been realized and never can be; e. g.,

Si quid habēret, daret. | If he had any thing, he would give it.

Si quid habuisset, dedisset. | If he had had any thing, he would have given it.

REM.—In both these examples, the condition relates to a definite time, and is represented as not then realized.

Use of Moods in Conditional Sentences.

414. In regard to the use of moods in conditional sentences, it may be observed,

- 1) That the condition is expressed in the first of the above forms by the indicative, in the second by the subjunctive present or perfect, in the third by the subjunctive present, perfect (or imperfect), and in the fourth by the subjunctive imperfect or pluperfect.
- 2) That the consequence is expressed in the first two of these forms by the indicative (or sometimes by the imperative), in the third by the subjunctive present, perfect (or imperfect), and in the fourth by the subjunctive imperfect or pluperfect.

REM. 1.—The conditional clause is sometimes omitted; e. g., Daret, He would give (if he had any thing, perhaps).

REM. 2.—The conditional clause of the 3d form is sometimes used in connection with the indicative; e. g., Spartani pacem iis sunt polliciti, si naves tradarent, The Spartans promised them peace, if they would give up their ships.

415. Conditional sentences are sometimes introduced by dum, modo, or dummōdo, provided, if only, &c. They then take the subjunctive; e. g.,

Multi omnia recta neglī- gunt, dummōdo poten- tiam consequantur.	Many disregard all right, provided they can acquire power.
---	---

416. The condition is, of course, often expressed negatively; it is then introduced sometimes by si with non, sometimes by nisi, and sometimes by ni; e. g.,

Aequitas tollitur omnis, si habere suum cuique non licet.

Parvi sunt foris arma, nisi est consilium domi.

*An, ni ita se res habēret, Anaxagōras patrimonia
sua reliquisset?*

All equity is removed, if each one may not have his own.

Arms are worth but little abroad, unless there is wisdom at home.

Would Anaxagoras then have left his patrimony, if this were not so?

Concessive Sentences.

417. Intimately connected with conditional clauses, are those which express concession, which is merely a conceded condition or cause; e. g.,

Condition.

*Medici, si intelligunt, nun-quam aegris dicunt, eos
esse moritūros.*

*Physicians never tell the sick that they are going to die,
if they know it.*

Concession.

*Medici, quamquam intelli-gunt saepe, tamen nun-quam aegris dicunt eos
esse moritūros.*

Though physicians often know that the sick are going to die, yet they never tell them so.

REM.—The conjunctions generally used to introduce a concession are etsi, etiamsi, tametsi, quamquam, quamvis, and licet.

Use of Moods in Concessive Clauses.

418. On the use of moods in concessive clauses, it may be remarked,

- 1) That quamquam is usually followed by the indicative; e. g.,

Vestra tecta, quamquam jam periculum est depulsum, tamen custodiis defendite.

www.libtool.com.cn

Although the danger is now removed, still guard your houses.

- 2) That etsi, etiamsi, and tametsi, are generally followed by the indicative, unless the concession is presented as a mere supposition, in which case it, of course, requires the subjunctive; e. g.,

Caesar, etsi prope exacta jam aestas erat, tamen eo exercitum adduxit.

Sunt, qui quod sentiunt, etiamsi optimum sit, ta-men non audent dicere.

Although the summer was nearly spent, still Caesar led his army thither.

Some do not dare to say what they think, even if it be very excellent.

REM.—The concession in the second example is a mere supposition.

- 3) That quamvis and licet are followed by the subjunctive; e. g.,

Illa quamvis ridicula essent, mihi tamen risum non movērunt.

Although those things were ludicrous, yet they did not excite my laughter.

LESSON XL.

Adverbial Attributive-Sentences.—Manner; Consequence and Comparison.

[108—110.]

421. Attributive sentences of manner are of two kinds:

- 1) Such as indicate the manner or character of an action or event by giving its results or consequences; e. g.,

Lucullus ipsum regem ita
vicit, ut robur militum
Armeniorum deleret.

Lucullus so vanquished the king himself as to destroy (that he destroyed) the strength of the Armenian soldiery.

- 2) Such as indicate the manner or character of the action or event, or the degree of the quality denoted by the predicate, by means of comparison. This may be done in two ways; viz.,

(a) By a comparison of equality, generally expressed by the correlatives ut—ita; tam—quam, and the like; e. g.,

Nemo tam pauper vivit, quam natus est.

No one lives as poor as he was born.

(b) By a comparison of inequality, expressed by the comparative degree of an adjective or adverb; e. g.,

Eurōpa minor est quam Asia. | Europe is smaller than Asia.

Romāni fortius quam hos tes pugnavērunt. | The Romans fought more bravely than the enemy.

REM. 1.—In a comparison of inequality, the connective quam is often omitted, and then the following noun is put in the ablative; e. g., Tullus Hostilius ferocior Romūlo fuit, Tullus Hostilius was more ferocious than Romulus.

REM. 2.—As comparisons of inequality with quam are elliptical; and as without quam they undergo an important change of structure, we must defer the farther consideration and illustration of them to the section on Abridged Complex Sentences.

Use of Moods in Consecutive Clauses.

422. Clauses denoting consequence or result are introduced by ut, and take the verb in the subjunctive mood; e. g.,

Quis tam demens, ut sua voluntāte moereat? | Who is so mad as to be sad from choice?

REM. 1.—Ut in a consecutive clause generally corresponds to some correlative in the principal sentence, signifying so, such, so great, &c.; thus, in the above example, we find tam in the principal clause.

REM. 2.—If a result is to be expressed negatively, non must be used, unless the clause contains some adjective, pronoun, or adverb which may assume the negative form; e. g., Ita sunt multi imbecilli senes, ut nullum vitae munus exsēqui possint, Many old men are so feeble as to be unable to discharge any duty in life.—Nemo adeo ferus est, ut non mitescāre possit, No one is so cruel as not to be able to become mild.

REM. 3.—Relative clauses sometimes express result; e. g., Neque enim tu is es qui nescias, Nor indeed are you such an one as not to know.

LESSON XLI.

Complex and Compound Sentences as Elements of other Sentences.

[111—113.]

425. A sentence of any form, whether simple, complex, or compound (164), may be used as an element in the formation of complex sentences.

REM.—We have thus far used only simple sentences as elements of the complex.

426. When a complex sentence is thus used, it must be observed,

- 1) That its principal clause assumes the same form as if it were a simple sentence.
- 2) That its subordinate clause, provided it is given either as the sentiment of some third person and not of the narrator himself, or as an essential part of the entire assertion, generally changes the indicative to the subjunctive, when the predicate of the principal clause is either in the subjunctive or infinitive; e. g.,

Ad haec Caesar respondit, se id quod in Nerviis fecisset, factūrum.	 	To this Caesar replied, that he would do what he had done in the case of the Nervii.
---	----------	--

REM. 1.—If the subordinate clause merely limits a particular term, without forming an essential part in the general thought of the proposition, the indicative must be used; e. g., Caesāri renuntiatur, Helvetiis esse in animo iter in Santōnum fines facere, qui non longe a Tolosatium finibus absunt, It is announced to Caesar, that it is the intention of the Helvetians to go to the territory of the Santonians, which is not far from the country of the Tolosatians. Here the clause qui non, &c., is given merely to explain fines, and accordingly takes its verb in the indicative.

REM. 2.—If the subordinate clause of the complex sentence is expressed by any other mood than the indicative before the sentence is thus made dependent, it remains unchanged; e. g., 1. Ubi jam se ad eam rem paratos esse arbitrati sunt, oppida sua omnia incendunt, When they thought that they were already prepared for this, they set fire to all their towns. Here the adverbial attribute of time is expressed by a complex sentence which in its independent form requires its object-clause, se ad eam rem paratos esse, to take the infinitive; accordingly that mood is retained when the entire sentence becomes subordinate. 2

Caesar, et si intelligebat, qua de causa ea dicerentur, tamen Indutiomarum ad se venire jussit, Caesar, although he knew why these things were spoken, still ordered Indutiomarus to come to him.
 Here the subjunctive dicerentur is retained just as it would have been if this concessive clause were used as an independent sentence.

427. When a compound sentence (164) is used as an element in the formation of complex sentences, its several constituent parts, being independent of each other, assume the same form as if each one were used alone ; e. g.,

Caesar certior fierbat, omnes Belgas contra populum Romānum conjurare, et has esse causas.

Caesar was informed, that all the Belgians were conspiring against the Roman people, and that these were the causes.

REM.—Here the compound sentence might stand thus : “Omnes Belgae contra populum Romānum conjuraverunt, et haec fuerunt causae.” When, however, it is made subordinate, its two parts both change their verbs to the infinitive ; just as either would have done, if the other had not been used at all.

pointed commander of the Athenian fleet, when the senate adopted cruel measures against the people? 8. Alcibiades was appointed commander, in order that he might recover ~~new the rights of the~~ people from the four hundred, unless they should themselves restore them.

§ 2.—Complex Sentences; Abridged.

LESSON XLII.

Principal Elements, Abridged. [114—117.]

430. We have seen that sentences, used as elements of others, are sometimes introduced unchanged, as direct quotations, and sometimes undergo certain alterations to adapt them to their new situations; e. g.,

Direct Quotation.

Dicit, “Rex venit.”

He says, “The king is coming.”

Indirect Quotation.

Dicit regem venire.

He says that the king is coming.

431. In either of the above cases, the complex sentence appears in its full form; but sometimes a part of the subordinate clause is omitted, as when it can be easily supplied from the rest of the sentence; the complex sentence may then be said to be abridged.

432. Sentences are abridged in two ways:

- 1) A portion of the subordinate clause is omitted, and the rest remains unchanged; e. g.,

Cupio discēre.

I desire to learn.

Eurōpa minor est quam

Europe is smaller than Asia.

Asia.

www.libtool.com.cn

REM.—In the first example, the subject of the subordinate clause (me) is omitted, because it is the same person as the subject of the principal part (ego), and discēre retains the same form as if the subject were expressed. So in the second example, the predicate of the subordinate clause is omitted, as it can be easily supplied from the principal part, while the subject and connective, quam Asia, remain unchanged.

2) A portion of the subordinate clause is omitted, and the rest is changed to adapt it to its new situation ; e. g.,

Eurōpa minor est Asiā.

Europe is smaller than Asia.

REM.—Here it will be observed that not only the predicate of the subordinate clause has disappeared (as in case 1st), but also the connective quam, and that the following noun Asiā loses its character as subject, and is put in the ablative.

Subordinate Clauses as Principal Elements, Abridged.

433. An infinitive sentence used as subject or predicate may have its own subject omitted, when it expresses a general truth, or when its subject may be easily supplied ; e. g.,

Turpe est mentīri.

To lie is base.

REM.—Here mentīri is subject, but its own subject is omitted, because, the truth being a general one, any subject we please may be supplied : thus, that you, I, any one, should lie, is base.

434. When the infinitive is used as the subject of a sentence, the predicate is sometimes expressed by the copula and a genitive ; e. g.,

Regis est regnāre.

It is the part of the king to reign.

REM. 1.—Here it is obvious that regnare is the subject, and regis est is the predicate.

REM. 2.—Combining articles 203 and 434, we have the following

www.libtool.com.cn

435. RULE.—Predicate Nouns.

A noun in the predicate after the verb esse and a few passive verbs, is put,

- 1) In the same case as the subject when it denotes the same person or thing; e. g.,

Cicero fuit consul. | Cicero was consul.

- 2) In the genitive when it denotes a different person or thing; e. g.,

Regis est regnare. | It is the part of a king to reign.

[F. B. 613; A. & S. §§ 210, 211, R. 8; Z. §§ 365, 448.]

436. The infinitive after passive verbs with personal subjects should be treated as a predicate nominative (see 229, 230), and, as the subject of the infinitive is omitted, being the same person or thing as that of the passive, any predicate noun, adjective, or participle after the infinitive is generally attracted into the nominative to agree with the subject of the passive verb; e. g.,

Rex beatus esse dicitur. | The king is said to be happy.
Coriolanus occisus esse di- | Coriolanus is said to have citur. been put to death.

REM.—It will be observed that beatus in the first example and occisus in the second would have been in the accusative to agree with the subjects of the infinitives if they had been expressed, but are here attracted into the nominative to agree with the subject of dicitur.

LESSON XLIII.

Modifier of Subject or other Noun, Abridged.

[118 & 119.]

439. The relative clause, modifying the subject or any other noun, is sometimes abridged by dropping both the relative and the copula, and retaining only the attribute.

440. When a relative clause is thus abridged, the attribute may be expressed,

1) By a participle agreeing with the antecedent of the omitted relative. This occurs when the predicate of the relative clause would have been expressed by a verb; e. g.,

Tullia aurīgam super patris corpus in via jacens carpentum agēre jussit. | Tullia ordered the charioteer to drive over her father's body, which lay (lit. lying) in the way.

- 2) By an adjective agreeing with the antecedent of the omitted relative. This occurs when the predicate would have been expressed by an adjective and the copula esse; e. g.,

Habētis ducem memōrem vestri. | You have a leader mindful (who is mindful) of you.

- 3) By a noun in apposition with the antecedent of the omitted relative. This occurs when the predicate would have been expressed by a noun and the copula esse; e. g.,

Aenēas, Anchīsae filius, mortuus est. | Aencaes, the son of Anchises (who was the son, &c.), died.

Rem.—Combining the above with article 190, we have the following

441. RULE.—Limiting Nouns.

A noun limiting the meaning of another noun is put

- 1) In the same case as that noun, when it denotes the same person or thing; e. g.,

Brutus consul. | Brutus the consul.

- 2) In the genitive, when it denotes a different person or thing, unless it expresses character or quality, in which case it is accompanied by an adjective, and is put either in the genitive or ablative; e. g.,

Regis filius. | The king's son.

[F. B. 624; A. & S. §§ 204, 211, R. 6; Z. §§ 370, 423, 426, 471.]

442. Instead of a sentence modifying a substantive, we often find either a gerund (with or without modifiers) or a gerundive (fut. pass. participle) in agreement with some other substantive; e. g.,

Omnis occasio exercendi virtūtem (or, exercendae virtūtis) arripiātur. | Let every opportunity of practising virtue be seized.

443. RULE.—Gerund.

The gerund is governed like a noun in the same case. (See above example.)

[F. B. 374; A. & S. § 275, III. R. 1, 2, 3, 4; Z. §§ 659, 664, 666, 667.]

444. RULE.—Gerundive.

Instead of a gerund governing its case, we may use the gerundive, participle in dūs, agreeing with a noun. (See above example.)

[F. B. 382; A. & S. § 275, II.; Z. § 656.]

LESSON XLIV.

www.libtool.com.cn

Object of Predicate, Abridged.

[120 & 121.]

447. When the subject of an infinitive-sentence used as object is the same person or thing as that of the verb on which it depends, that subject is often omitted after verbs denoting desire, intention, custom, ability, duty, and the like, and also after various passive verbs; e. g.,

Cupio discēre.

I desire to learn.

Assuefacti sunt muros de-fendēre.

They were accustomed to defend their walls.

Rem.—It will be observed that, in the first example, the infinitive stands as direct object, and in the second, as indirect object. After verbs of desiring, intending, &c., the infinitive is used as direct object, while after verbs denoting custom, ability, duty, and the like, it stands only as indirect object.

448. When the subject of the infinitive mood is omitted in consequence of its denoting the same person or thing as that of the verb on which it depends, any predicate noun or adjective after the infinitive is attracted into the nominative to agree with the subject of the principal verb; e. g.,

Omnes volunt esse bēāti. | All wish to be happy.

Rem.—It will be observed that bēāti, which would be in the accusative if the subject of esse were expressed, is here attracted into the nominative to agree with the subject of the principal verb.

449. An infinitive-sentence used as object of a transitive verb may sometimes be abridged by making its subject the object of the principal verb, and converting the infinitive into a participle agreeing with that object: e. g.,

Non audīvit Alexander dracōnem loquentem.	Alexander did not hear the dragon speak (lit. speaking).
--	---

Illud signum ita collocandum consūles locavērunt.	The consuls contracted to have this statue thus placed.
---	--

450. Instead of a sentence modifying the substantive or adjective predicate, whether objective or attributive, we often find either a gerund, or a gerundive in agreement with some substantive; e. g.,

Epaminondas studiōsior audiendi fuit.	Epaminondas was too fond of hearing.
---	---

REM.—The gerund audiendi depends upon studiōsior. See Rule, 443.

451. Instead of a subordinate clause denoting purpose—indirect object—a gerund, or a gerundive agreeing with some substantive, is often used, and is put sometimes in the dative, and sometimes in the accusative with a preposition; e. g.,

Aqua utilis est bibendo.	Water is useful for drinking.
---------------------------------	--------------------------------------

Boum terga non ad onēra accipienda figurāta sunt.	The backs of oxen were not formed for receiving burdens.
--	---

452. The supine in um is sometimes used after verbs of motion in place of a subordinate clause of purpose; e. g.,

Legāti ad Caesārem gratulātum convenērunt.	Ambassadors came to Caesar to congratulate him.
---	--

453. RULE.—Supine in um.

The supine in um follows verbs of motion to express the purpose or object of that motion. (See example above.)

[F. B. 676; A. & S. § 276, II; Z. § 668.]

LESSON XLV.

www.libtool.com.cn

Attribute of Predicate, Abridged.—Comparison and Participles.

[122—125.]

456. Complex sentences involving comparisons of inequality (421, 2) take two different constructions; viz.,

- 1) The connective quam may be used; and then the following noun is generally in the same case as the corresponding noun before quam; e. g.,

Eurōpa minor est quam | Europe is smaller than Asia.
Asia.

REM.—When the same word belongs to both members of the comparison in Latin, it is generally expressed in the first and omitted in the second; in English, however, it is expressed in the first, and represented in the second by the pronoun that or those; e. g., Maris superficies major est quam terrae, The surface of the sea is greater than (that) of the land. Here the noun after quam (terras) is in the same case as the corresponding noun maris before it.

- 2) The connective quam may be omitted; and then the following noun is put in the ablative; e. g.,

Nihil est clementiā divi- | Nothing is more godlike than nius. clemency.

457. RULE.—Comparison.

The comparative degree is followed,

- 1) Without quam, by the ablative.

- 2) With quam, generally by the case of the corresponding noun before it. (See examples above.)

[F. B. 636; A & S. § 256; Z. § 483.]

458. An attributive sentence of time, cause, manner, condition, concession, &c., may be abridged,

- 1) When its subject is some person or thing mentioned in the principal clause, by dropping the subject and copula, and generally the connective, and retaining the attributive part of the predicate in the form of a participle, adjective, or noun (according to the form of predicate) in agreement with that noun in the principal clause; e. g.,

Caesar, in Britanniam proficiscens, Morinos reliquit.

Quidam hanc patriam, hinc nati, urbem hostium esse judicavērunt.

Hic, puer duodeviginti annorum, patrem servāvit.

Caesar, going (i. e. when he went) into Britain, left the Morini.

Some, born here (though born here), have judged this country to be a city of the enemies.

He, (when) a boy of eighteen years, preserved his father.

REM.—Whenever, in thus abridging a sentence, a participle would be required in the perfect active with an object, the perfect passive must be used in the ablative absolute (see 2 below) with that object, as the Latin has no perfect active; e. g., Hostes, impētu facto, nostros perturbavērunt, The enemy, having made an attack (lit. an attack having been made), put our soldiers into disorder.

- 2) When its subject is some person or thing not mentioned in the principal clause, by dropping the connective and copula, and putting the subject in the ablative with the participle, adjective, or noun of the predicate in agreement with it. This construction is called the ablative absolute; e. g.,

Hostes, nihil timentibus nostris, celeriter nostros perturbavērunt.

The enemy, while our soldiers feared nothing (lit. our soldiers fearing nothing), quickly put them into disorder.

Cicerōne consūle, Catilīna ad delendam patriam conjurāvit.

In the consulship of Cicero (when Cicero was consul), Catiline conspired for the destruction of his country.

459. RULE.—Agreement of Participles.

Participles like adjectives (189) agree, in gender, number, and case, with the nouns to which they belong. (See examples above.)

[F. B. 614; A. & S. § 205.]

460. RULE.—Ablative Absolute.

A noun and a participle, a noun and an adjective, or two nouns, standing grammatically independent of the rest of the sentence, are put in the ablative absolute. (See above examples.)

[F. B. 678; A. & S. § 257, R. 7; Z. §§ 640, 644, 645.]

REM.—Participles are sometimes used to abridge independent clauses; e. g., Quos Tyrii contra jus gentium occisos praecepitavērunt in altum, The Tyrians slew them contrary to the law of nations, and threw them into the sea.

461. VOCABULARY.

Add, join to, adjungo, ōre, ad-junxi, adjunctum.

Having taken Larissa in Thessaly, he added to his victorious army the strength of the Thessalian cavalry.

LESSON XLVI.

Attribute of Predicate, Abridged ; Gerunds and Supines.
[126—129.]

463. The gerund, as already mentioned (450), sometimes expresses the attribute of a substantive or adjective predicate ; e. g.,

Sapientia ars vivendi pu-	Wisdom should be regarded
tanda est.	as the art of living.

REM.—The forms of the gerund are very properly regarded as the oblique cases of the infinitive, and accordingly are the abridged forms of subordinate clauses : thus, ars vivendi, in the first example, literally construed would stand, the art of the to live = the art of living.

464. Instead of a subordinate proposition modifying the verb predicate, the gerund with a preposition, or a gerundive and a substantive with a preposition, may be used to express adverbial relations; e. g.,

Inter ludendum cantabant.	They were singing while playing.
----------------------------------	---

Brutus in liberanda patria est interfactus.	Brutus was killed in liberating his country.
--	---

465. The ablative of the gerund, or of the gerundive in agreement with a substantive, without a preposition often supplies the place of a subordinate clause of cause, manner, means, &c.; e. g.,

Mens discendo alitur.	The mind is strengthened by learning.
------------------------------	--

Loquendi elegantia augētur legendis oratoribus.	Elegance of speech is cultivated by reading orators.
--	---

 For Rules for the government of gerunds and gerundives, see 443, 444.

466. The supine in u may supply the place of an adverbial clause after certain adjectives, whether in the subject or predicate; e. g.,

Hoc optimum factu est.	This is best to be done.
-------------------------------	---------------------------------

467. RULE.—Supine in u.

The supine in u is used after adjectives signifying good or bad, easy or difficult, agreeable or disagreeable, &c. (See above example.)

[F. B. 635; A. & S. § 276, III; Z. § 670.]

CHAPTER III.

COMPOUND SENTENCES.

§ 1.—Compound Sentences; Unabridged.

LESSON XLVII.

Classes of Compound Sentences.

[180 & 181.]

470. A COMPOUND sentence is one which consists of two or more independent though related sentences.

Rem.—The sentences, thus united, may themselves be either simple, complex, or compound.

471. Compound sentences may be divided into three classes ; viz.,

- 1) Copulative sentences, in which two or more thoughts are presented in harmony with each other ; e. g.,

Longas naves aestus com- plēbat ; et onerarias tem- pestas afflictābat.	The water filled the war- ships ; and the storm tos- sed the ships of burden.
---	--

- 2) Disjunctive sentences, in which a choice between two or more thoughts is offered ; e. g.,

Audendum est aliquid uni- versis, aut omnia singū- lis patienda sunt.	Something must be braved by all, or all things must be endured by each.
---	--

3) Adversative sentences, in which the thoughts stand opposed to each other; e. g.,

Difficile factu est, sed conābor. | It is difficult to do, but I will try it.

472. Copulative clauses may be connected by the conjunctions et, atque, ac, que, or nec, neque.

Rm. 1.—Et is the most common, and is used to connect thoughts (or words) of equal importance; que, which is an enclitic (i. e. is always appended to some other word), indicates a more intimate relationship, and is generally used when the second part represents something as belonging to the first or derived from it, &c.; atque is used when the second part is more important than the first; ac, which is abbreviated from atque, never stands before a vowel, and has generally the force of et. Nequae and nec have the force of et non.

Rm. 2.—Associated with these conjunctions, we sometimes find etiam, adeo, quoque, &c., and sometimes these last only are used.

473. Sometimes a connective appears in both clauses; thus, we find the following correlative particles: et—et; quum—tum; tum—tum = both—and; non solum—sed etiam = not only—but also; ut—ita; tam—quam = as—so; as well—as; both—and; neque—neque; nec—nec = neither—nor; e. g.,

Et longas naves aestus complēbat; et onerarias tempestas afflictābat. | Both the water filled the war-ships, and the storm tossed the ships of burden.

474. Sometimes a causal adverb or conjunction appears with the copulative, as igitur, ideo, enim, &c., and sometimes the copulative is omitted, leaving only the causal adverb as connective; the sentence, however, retains its co-ordinate character; e. g.,

Nihil labōras; ideo nihil habes. | You do nothing, and accordingly have nothing.

475. Disjunctive sentences usually employ some one or more of the following connectives: aut, vel, sive, ve, or the correlatives aut—aut; vel—vel; sive—sive; seu—seu. (See example, 471, 2.)

1) Two or more simple sentences ; e. g.,

Gyges a nullo videbātur, | Gyges was seen by no one, ipse autem omnia vidēbat.

but he himself saw every thing.

§ 2.—Compound Sentences; Abridged.

LESSON XLIX.

Compound Elements.—Subjects, United.

[184—187.]

482. The several members of a compound sentence frequently differ from each other only in their subjects, and then these subjects are generally united, and the other elements appear but once, though in such a form as to agree with the compound subject; e. g.,

Romāni bella multa gessē-	The Romans waged many wars.
runt.

Graeci bella multa gessē-	The Greeks waged many wars.
runt.

Romāni et Graeci bella multa gessērunt.	The Romans and Greeks waged many wars.
--	---

REM.—Here it will be observed that the predicate and modifiers are the same in both the sentences united to form the compound, and accordingly they appear but once in that compound.

Caesar bella multa gessit.	Caesar waged many wars.
Hannibal bella multa ges-
sit.	Hannibal waged many wars.

Caesar et Hannibal bella multa gessērunt.	Caesar and Hannibal waged many wars.
--	---

REM.—Here it will be observed that the predicate in the compound is changed to the plural to agree with the compound subject.

483. RULE.—Agreement.

When the members of a compound subject are united by copulatives (except nec, neque), the predicate is generally put in the plural; but, when they are united by disjunctives or adversatives, it is generally in the singular, if the members themselves are of that number; e. g.,

Caesar et Hannibal bella multa gessērunt.	Caesar and Hannibal waged many wars.
--	---

Caesar aut Hannibal bella multa gessit.	Caesar or Hannibal waged many wars.
--	--

[F. B. 612, R.; A. & S. § 209, R. 12; Z. § 365.]

REM. 1.—If the subjects are of different persons, the verb agrees with the first in preference to the second, and with the second in preference to the third; e. g., Si tu et Tullia valētia, ego et Cīcōrō valēmus, If you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well.

www.libtool.com.cn

REM. 2.—If the subjects are of different genders, any predicate adjective or participle in the plural generally takes the gender of one of the subjects, preferring the masculine to the feminine and the feminine to the neuter; unless the subjects denote things without life, and then they are usually put in the neuter; e. g., Pater mihi et mater mortui sunt, My father and mother are dead. —Labor voluptasque inter se sunt juncta, Labor and pleasure are united together.

REM. 3.—Sometimes the verb in the singular is used in agreement with one of the subjects connected by copulatives, and is understood with the rest, and sometimes the verb in the plural is used with subjects in the singular connected by disjunctives, especially when one of these subjects is in the first or second person; e. g., Omnēs animi cruciātus egestas ac mendicitās consequātur, Let want and beggary follow all the agonies of mind. —Si quid Socrātēs aut Aristippus fecerint, &c., If Socrates or Aris tippus did any thing, &c.

REM. 4.—When different modifiers belong to the several subjects united, they must each be associated with their respective subjects; e. g., Fuērunt anno primo cōsūlēs Brutus, acerrimus libertatis vindēx, et Collatinus, maritus Lucretiae, Brutus, the most valiant defender of liberty, and Collatinus, the husband of Lucretia, were the consuls the first year.

484. VOCABULARY.

Or, aut; in double questions, an, ne, sometimes an in the second clause, and utrum, num, or ne, in the first. (See F. B. 482.)

Reach, arrive at, pervenio, ire, perveni, perventum.

Compound Elements.—Predicates, United.

[188—141.]

486. The several members of a compound sentence frequently differ only in their predicates, and then these predicates are united, while the other elements appear but once; e. g.,

Scipio Carthaginem cepit .	Scipio took Carthage .
Scipio Carthaginem diruit .	Scipio destroyed Carthage .
Scipio Carthaginem cepit ac diruit .	Scipio took and destroyed Carthage .

Rem.—When the modifiers of the several predicates are not the same, they must be associated with their respective predicates; e. g., In et in custodiam cives dedit et supplicationem mihi derelavit, He both delivered citizens into custody and decreed a thanksgiving to me.

487. The copulative connective is often omitted both in the full and in the abridged form of the compound sentence; e. g.,

Catilina abiit.	Catiline has gone.
Catilina evāsit.	Catiline has escaped.
Catilina erūpit.	Catiline has broken away.
Catilina abiit, evāsit, erūpit.	Catiline has gone, has escaped, has broken away.

488. If the predicate is expressed by a copula and attribute separately, the copula being the same in the several parts, we have only to unite the attributes; e. g.,

Asia opīma est.	Asia is rich.
Asia fertīlis est.	Asia is fertile.
Asia opīma est et fertīlis.	Asia is rich and fertile.

489. If there are modal adverbs (265) or modifiers, connected with either part, they must generally be retained with that part; if the same modal adverb belongs to each member, it is generally repeated, either alone or in combination with the connective; e. g.,

Otii fructus est non contentio anīmi.	The fruit of ease is not the vigorous exercise of mind.
Otii fructus est relaxatio anīmi.	The fruit of ease is the relaxation of mind.
Otii fructus est non contentio anīmi, sed relaxatio.	The fruit of ease is not the vigorous exercise of mind, but the relaxation of it.
Atticus mendacium non dicēbat.	Atticus did not speak a falsehood.
Atticus mendacium non pati potērat.	Atticus was not able to endure a falsehood.
Atticus mendacium neque (et non) dicēbat, neque (et non) pati potērat.	Atticus neither (both not) spoke a falsehood nor (and not) was able to endure one. overwhelmed the Gauls with rocks and arms. 7. Will you go to Athens? 8. I will go either to Athens or to Rome. 9. Have you been at Rome and Athens?

10. I have been at Rome, but not at Athens.

Elements Common to Different Members.

[151—153.]

501. The several members of a compound sentence sometimes differ from each other in two or more of their elements, and still have one or more in common. When this is the case, the parts which are common to the several members appear in one of them, but are usually omitted in the rest; e. g.,

Proximo die Caesar e cas-tris copias suas eduxit.

Proximo die Ariovistus partem suārum copiā-rum praemisit.

*Proximo die Caesar e cas-
tris copias suas eduxit,
et Ariovistus partem
suārum copiārum prae-misit.*

On the following day, Caesar led out his forces from the camp.

On the following day, Ariovistus sent forward a part of his forces.

On the following day, Caesar led out his forces from the camp, and Ariovistus sent forward a part of his forces.

REM.—It will be observed that here the common element proximo die appears but once, and that all the other parts retain their positions in their respective members.

502. VOCABULARY.

sessions. 4. Who was Perseus? 5. He was the elder of the sons of Philip, king of Macedonia. 6. A short time after, Demetrius ~~lives~~ was put to death, and Perseus received the government.

LESSON LV.

Classification of Sentences.—Recapitulation.

[154—156.]

504. Sentences may be divided, according to the form in which the thought is expressed, into three classes; viz.,

- 1) Declarative Sentences, which assume the form of an assertion.
- 2) Interrogative Sentences, which assume the form of a question.
- 3) Imperative Sentences, which assume the form of a command, exhortation, or entreaty.

505. In each of the above forms, sentences sometimes imply passion or emotion on the part of the speaker, and may then be called exclamatory declarative if of the declarative form, exclamatory interrogative if of the interrogative form, and exclamatory imperative if of the imperative form.

506. Again : sentences may be divided according to their structure into three classes ; viz.,

- 1) Simple Sentences, which express but a single thought, i. e., make but one assertion, ask but one question, or give but one command.
- 2) Complex Sentences, which express two or more thoughts, so related that one or more of them are made dependent upon the others.

- 3) Compound Sentences, which express two or more independent thoughts.

I. SIMPLE SENTENCES.

507. The elements of the simple sentence, as we have already seen, are of two kinds :

I. Principal Elements; viz.,

- 1) Subject.
- 2) Predicate.

II. Subordinate Elements; viz.,

- 1) Objective Modifiers.
- 2) Attributive Modifiers.

508. These elements appear in two different forms ; viz.,

- 1) Simple, i. e., without modifiers.
- 2) Complex, i. e., with modifiers.

II. (a) COMPLEX SENTENCES.

509. A simple sentence may become complex by having one or more sentences substituted for one or more of its constituent elements.

510. A sentence thus used as an element in the formation of a complex sentence, may be itself either simple, complex, or compound.

511. The subordinate character of a sentence thus used may be denoted,

- 1) By a subordinate connective without any change in the sentence itself.
- 2) By a change of form without the use of a connective.

- 3) By a connective and a corresponding change of form.

(b) ABRIDGED COMPLEX SENTENCES.

512. Complex sentences are abridged in two ways:

- 1) A portion of the subordinate clause is omitted; and the rest remains unchanged.
- 2) A portion of the subordinate clause is omitted; and the rest is changed to adapt it to its new situation.

REM.—The first case, involving only the ellipsis of a part, requires but little attention, while the second, involving a change of structure, should be carefully studied.

1. Change in the Form of the Subject.

513. The subject of the subordinate clause, when changed by abridging the sentence, is put,

- 1) In the ablative with predicate omitted, as after comparatives without quam.
- 2) In the ablative absolute with the participle, adjective, or noun, which remains to represent the predicate.

2. Change in the Form of the Predicate.

514. (I) The verb-predicate of the subordinate clause, when changed by abridging the sentence, assumes the form

- 1) Of a Participle. This must agree with some noun in the principal clause, if the subject is omitted, otherwise it will be in the ablative absolute with that subject.
- 2) Of a Gerund.
- 3) Of a Supine.

515. (II) Both substantive and adjective predicates in the subordinate clause, when changed by abridging the sentence, are put,

- 1) When the subject is omitted, in agreement with some noun in the principal clause.
- 2) When the subject is expressed, in the ablative absolute with that subject.

III. (a) COMPOUND SENTENCES.

516. Compound sentences may be formed by co-ordinating any two or more sentences.

Rem.—The sentences, thus co-ordinated, may be either simple, complex, or compound.

517. This co-ordination is of three distinct kinds ; viz.,

- 1) Copulative.
- 2) Disjunctive.
- 3) Adversative.

(b) ABRIDGED COMPOUND SENTENCES.

518. When the several members of a compound sentence have one or more parts in common, those parts, as we have seen in the last few lessons, generally appear but once in the sentence.

519. VOCABULARY.

- What became of Perdiccas?
- What people made an irruption into Greece a few years after?
- Under whom did they invade Greece?
- For what purpose did they march to Delphi?

III. Translate into Latin.

1. By whom were the Macedonians subdued? 2. Both the Macedonians and Aetolians were subdued by the Romans. 3. The Achaeans were very powerful, not from (on account of) the strength of the individual states, but from the union of all. 4. They were conquered by Mummius, the Roman consul. 5. How did it happen that he conquered them? 6. They were defeated, because they were thinking of the booty, and not of the battle. 7. The Romans destroyed the city of Corinth, and sold all its citizens as slaves.

RULES FOR TRANSLATING.

521. TRANSLATION consists in transferring thought and feeling from one language to another. To do this correctly and elegantly, the pupil must both get a clear idea of the exact meaning of the passage before him, and must embody that meaning with its full force in the language into which he is rendering. Thus conducted, the exercise of translating from the ancient classics, those living embodiments of great thoughts and stirring sentiments, those finished models of taste and beauty, becomes, in the highest degree, interesting and instructive. To prepare the pupil for this work, and to form in him thus early the habit of translating into good idiomatic English, is the object of the following rules. They relate to a large class of important idioms found in the Latin, and indicate one or more ways of translating them without doing violence to our vernacular.

I. Participles.

522. The participle is much more extensively used in Latin than in English; hence the frequent necessity, in its translation, of deviating from the Latin construction. It must not, however, be supposed that this must always be done, or that it is desirable to attempt it. On the contrary, it often happens that the participles may be more elegantly translated literally than in any other way. The following rules, therefore, whether relating to participles or other subjects, are designed to apply only to those cases in which a literal translation would fail, in point of clearness, accuracy, or elegance, to do justice to the original.

523. Participles in the perfect and future passive may express the action of their verbs substantively; they should then be translated by corresponding verbal nouns; e. g., Ad Romam conditam.

*To the founding of Rome. (Lit.
To Rome founded.)*

Ab urbe condita.

From the founding of the city.

Post reges exactos.

After the banishment of the kings.

524. Participles are sometimes used merely to limit or explain some noun or pronoun; they are then in most instances best translated by relative clauses; e. g.,

Romulus asylum patetfecit, ad quod multi ex civitatibus suis pulsi accurrerunt.

Romulus opened an asylum to which many who had been banished from their own states, came.

In proelio ibi exerto omnes perirunt.

*In a battle which was fought (lit.

525. Participles sometimes state the time of an action or event; they should then be translated by a verb or participle with while, when, or after, by a noun with during or after; or, if in the ablative absolute, by an active participle in agreement with the subject of the leading proposition; e. g.,

Urbem, omnibus delatis exercitibus, occupavit.

*Having destroyed all their armies,
he took the city.*

REM.—Sometimes participles, used as above, may be best translated by on with a participial noun; e. g., Qua re audita, On hearing this.

526. Participles may state the manner, cause, or reason of an action or event; they should then be translated by verbs with as, for, since, &c., or by substantives (including participial nouns) with by, from, through, in, &c.; e. g.,

Aqua refluxens eos in sicco reliquit.

The water in or by subsiding left them on dry land.

Porsena auxilium ei ferente.

*As Porsena furnishea him aid, or
By the aid of Porsena.*

527. Participles may state the condition on which a given action or event depends; they may then be translated by verbs or participles with if or when; e. g.,

Accusatus damnabitur.

If he is accused, he will be condemned.

528. Participles are sometimes used to state a concession in connection with a given action or event; they may then be translated by verbs or participles with though or although; e. g.,

Is hanc urbem acerrime defensam cepit. | He took this city, though it was valiantly defended.

529. Participles in the future, whether active or passive, often express purpose; they may then be translated by the infinitive or by a participial substantive with for the purpose of, &c.; e.g.,

Ad oraculum Delphicum profici- citur, consultūrūs.	He goes to the Delphic oracle to consult.
---	---

530. Participles may add to a given action or event some fact or circumstance intimately connected with it; they may then be translated, if in the ablative absolute, by a verb agreeing with the noun used in the ablative absolute, otherwise by a verb agreeing with the subject of the proposition in which they stand, and connected with the verb of that proposition by and; e. g.,

Rex ei benigne recepto filiam dedit. | The king received him kindly, and gave him his daughter.

Medicus nocte venit promittens, se Pyrrhum occisum.

The physician came by night, and promised (lit. promising) that he would kill Pyrrhus.

531. Participles with non may often be best translated by participial substantives depending upon the preposition without; e. g.,

Non ridens. | Without laughing.

532. Two nouns, or a noun and adjective in the ablative abs.

582. Two nouns, or a noun and adjective in the

532. Two nouns, or a noun and adjective in the ablative absolute, as they have the participle of the verb esse implied though never expressed, may be used in the various ways already mentioned for the ablative absolute of participles, and should be translated accordingly: sometimes, too, a word denoting the doer of an action can be best rendered by the word which denotes the thing done; thus, instead of guide, commander, consul, king, &c., we shall have guidance, command, consulship, reign, &c., with a preposition; e. g., •

Duce Fabio consile. | *Under the guidance (or command)
of Fabius the consul.*

533. The perfect participle of deponent verbs is best translated by the present participle,

- 1) When it expresses emotion or mental operation, as the Romans speak of an emotion as past, and we as continuing; e. g.,

Hoc facinus rex miratus juvēnem	The king admiring this act did miss the youth unhurt. dimisit incolūmem.

- 2) When it relates to an action or event which must in strict accuracy precede that denoted by the following verb, and which would yet in English be represented as simultaneous with it; e. g.,

Popūlus Romae seditionem fecit, questus quod tributis exhauri- rētur.	The people made a revolt at Rome, complaining that they were impoverished by tribute.
--	--

II. Principal Sentences.—Subjunctive Mood.

534. The subjunctive may be used in principal sentences,

- 1) To express a wish, command, or entreaty; it may then be translated by the imperative, by the present potential, or by some tense of that mood with a particle of wishing; e. g.,

Secernant se a bonia.	Let them separate themselves from the good.
-----------------------	--

- 2) To express an affirmation doubtfully or conditionally; it may then be translated by the potential mood; e. g.,

Darent.	They would give.
---------	-------------------------

III. Relative Clauses.

535. The relative clause often defines some indefinite antecedent, either affirmative or negative, and then its subjunctive should be translated by the indicative; e. g.,

Sunt qui dicant.	There are some who say.
------------------	--------------------------------

REM.—The subjunctive in relative clauses introduced into propositions with the subjunctive, or the accusative with the infinitive, is also generally best translated by the indicative; e. g., Utrum regnum habēre vellet, an bona, quae pe-tar reliquisset, Whether he would prefer the kingdom or the property which his father had left.

536. The relative clause with the subjunctive sometimes denotes purpose or object; it should then be translated by the infinitive, or by that he with the potential may or might; e. g.,
 Decemviri creāti sunt qui civitati leges scribērent. | The decemvirs were appointed to prepare laws for the state.

537. The relative clause with the subjunctive sometimes denotes result; it should then be translated by that he with will or would, &c., or by the infinitive with as; e. g.,
 Nec tamen ego sum ille ferreus, qui non movear. | Nor yet am I so iron-hearted as not to be moved.

538. The relative clause with the subjunctive sometimes assigns a reason for some action or event; it should then be translated by a subordinate clause after because, or by a participial substantive with a preposition; e. g.,

O fortunāte adolescens, qui tuae virtutis praecōnem invenēris. | O fortunate youth in having found a herald for your bravery, or because you have, &c.

539. The relative clause with the subjunctive after dignus, indignus, aptus, idoneus, and the like, stands in the place of object, and may be translated by the infinitive or by a participial substantive with a preposition; e. g.,

Videtur, qui imp̄ret, dignus esse. | He seems to be worthy to command.

540. The relative clause sometimes introduces a condition or concession; and then the subjunctive should be translated by the subjunctive with if, provided, or though; e. g.,

Nulla res vehementius rempublīcam continent, quam fides; quae esse nulla potest, &c. | Nothing tends more to preserve the republic than credit, though this can be nothing, &c.

IV. Final Clauses with Particles.

541. Final clauses with ut may be translated by the infinitive, or by the potential, may or might, with that; e. g.,

Romulus, ut civium num̄erūm auḡret, asȳlum patefecit. | Romulus, that he might increase the number of citizens, opened an asylum.

542. Final clauses with ne may be translated by the infinitive with not, or by the potential, may, might, with that—not; e. g.,

Ne vana urbs esset. | That the city might not be empty.

www.libtool.com.cn

543. In final clauses after verbs of fearing, ut and ne seem to exchange meanings; ut = that—not, and ne = that or lest; moreover, the subjunctive present must generally be rendered by the future, will, and the imperfect by would; e. g.,

Veritus est ne rex bellaret. | He feared that the king would wage war.

544. Final clauses with quo may be rendered by the potential, may or might, with that; e. g.,

Medico aurum dabo quo sit stu-diosior. | I will give the physician gold that he may be more attentive.

545. Final clauses with quominus (quo and minus = by which the less, so that the less) may generally be rendered by participial substantives with from; e. g.,

Regem impediit quominus pugnā-ret. | He prevented the king from fighting.

546. Final clauses with quin may be rendered by but, but that with the indicative; as not with the infinitive; the relative with not, or by participial substantives with from or without; e. g.,

Non dubitant, quin dii illud audi-ant. | They do not doubt (but) that the gods hear this.

V. Consecutive Clauses.

547. Consecutive clauses with ut may generally be rendered by that with the indicative, or by as with the infinitive; e. g.,

Ita vicit, ut robur hostium dele-ret. | He so conquered as to destroy the strength of the enemy.

548. Consecutive clauses with ut after in eo esse, &c., may be rendered on the point of, with a participial substantive; e. g.,

In eo erant, ut pacem auro emē-rent. | They were on the point of purchasing peace with gold.

VI. Temporal Clauses.

549. Quum with the perfect or pluperfect subjunctive in temporal clauses, may often be translated by the perfect participle with having; e. g.,

In Caprea quum secessisset, eam infamem reddidit sua nequitia.	Having removed to Caprea, he rendered it infamous by his profligacy.
--	---

550. Quum with the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive may sometimes be translated by the present participle. This use of the present instead of the past tense arises from the fact that the English often contemplates two events as simultaneous when one of them in strict accuracy must precede the other, while the Latin is strict to mark their precise order; e. g.,

Quum in Africam venissent, Poenos vicērunt.	Going into Africa they conquered the Carthaginians.
---	--

551. Quum with the pluperfect subjunctive in temporal clauses may sometimes be translated by the imperfect indicative. This use of the imperfect instead of the pluperfect is readily explained by reference to the principle mentioned above (see 550); e. g.,

Quum rediisset, respondit.	When he returned, he replied.
----------------------------	--------------------------------------

552. The subjunctive in temporal clauses should generally be rendered by the indicative; e. g.,

Quum tonaret, militibus imperavit, &c.	When it thundered, he commanded his soldiers, &c.
--	--

553. The adverb which introduces the temporal clause sometimes has a correlative in the principal clause; this correlative, however, may generally be omitted in translating; thus, tum—quum = when. The adverbs, antēquam, priusquam, and postquam, are sometimes separated into two parts, one standing in the principal clause and the other in the temporal; this separation, however, does not affect the translation; thus, ante—quam and prius—quam = before, and post—quam = after; e. g.,

Ante triennium, quam Carthago deleretur, Cato mortem obiit.	Cato died three years before Carthage was destroyed.
--	---

VII. Causal Clauses.

554. The subjunctive in causal clauses may often be best translated by the indicative; e. g.,

Quod albis equis triumphasset. | Because he had triumphed with white horses.

555. The imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive after quod may sometimes be translated by the participial substantive with of or for; e. g.,

Accusatus est quod praedam ini- | He was accused of having unjustly que divisisset. divided the booty.

VIII. Conditional Clauses.

556. In conditional clauses the subjunctive is often translated without the auxiliaries, may, might, should, should have, &c. This is especially the case when the condition is represented as impossible; e. g.,

Si quid habēret, daret. | If he had any thing, he would give it.

IX. Concessive Clauses.

557. The subjunctive in concessive clauses is generally best translated without the auxiliaries, may, might, &c.; e. g.,

Illa quamvis ridicula essent. | Although these things were ludicrous.

X. Intermediate Clauses.

558. The subjunctive in clauses introduced into propositions with the subjunctive, or the accusative with the infinitive, is generally best translated by the indicative; e. g.,

Utrum regnum habēre vellet, an bona quae pater reliquisset. | Whether he would prefer the kingdom or the property which his father had left.

XI. Dependent Questions.

559. The subjunctive in dependent questions may often be translated by the indicative, and the pluperfect tense by the imperfect; e. g.,

Quum comperissent, quae mater fuisset. | When they had learned who their mother was.

XII. Infinitive Mood.

560. The infinitive with the subject accusative must be translated by a finite verb with the subject nominative in a clause introduced by that; e. g.,

Dixit se regem vidisse. | He said that he had seen the king.

561. The infinitive is sometimes used in the place of a finite verb as the predicate of a sentence; it is then called the historical infinitive, and is translated by the imperfect indicative; e. g.,

Iram pater dissimulare. | The father concealed his anger.

562. The infinitive may sometimes be rendered by the participial substantive with the preposition of, with, &c.; e. g.,

Alcibiades insimulatur mysteria | Alcibiades is accused of having violated the mysteries of Ceres.

XIII. Miscellaneous.

563. Certiōrem facēre, lit. to make more certain, should be translated to inform, and certior fieri, to be informed; e. g.,

Caesar certior factus est. | Caesar was informed.

564. Inter se, lit. between themselves, is best translated by together, after agree, compare, &c., but after contrary, &c., it = to each other; e. g.,

Hi omnes inter se différunt. | All these differ from each other.

565. Licet with the dative and infinitive, is best translated by rendering the dative as the subject of the potential forms may or might, with the English of the verb used in the infinitive; e. g.,

Mihi ire licet. | I may go.

REM.—The present infinitive after the past tenses of licet is often best translated by the auxiliary have. So also after the past tenses of possum, oportet, and debo; e. g., Mihi ire licuit, I might have gone.—Ire potui, I could have gone.

566. Medius, summus, and the like, in agreement with substantives, are often best translated by the middle (the midst), the top followed by the substantive with of; e. g.,

Medius mons. | The middle of the mountain.

Summus mons. | The top of the mountain.

In media caede. | In the midst of the slaughter.

567. Nec or neque may often be translated by and not, sometimes by not only, especially in the phrase neque vero; e. g.,

Nec paucos agros urbi adjunxit. | And he added not a few fields to the city.
www.libtool.com.cn

568. Ne—quidem with one or more words between the parts, should be translated by not even; or even—not; e. g.,

Ne nomen quidem. | Not even the name.

569. Post. standing as an adverb between an adjective and its substantive in the ablative to denote time, may sometimes be translated by the preposition after governing the substantive, but should usually be rendered by afterwards; e. g.,

Paucis post annis. | *After a few years.
A few years afterwards.*

570. Quam ut with the subjunctive, and quam ut posset with the infinitive, should be rendered by the infinitive, and the comparative before quam by the English positive with too; e. g.,

Leges crudeliōres erant, quam ut | The laws were too cruel to be observed.

571. Qui at the beginning of a sentence, or at the beginning of a distinct member of a sentence, is generally best translated by a demonstrative or personal pronoun; and if quum is used in the same connection with qui, it must be translated first; e. g.,

Quae quum ita sint. | *Since these things are so.
Qui quum morbo extinctus esset. When he was dead.*

572. Quo factum est, ut, lit. by which it was brought about that, sic factum est, ut, and similar expressions, may be rendered by, the result of which was, that; the consequence of which was, that; or by consequently; e. g.,

Quo factum est, ut plus, quam | The result of which was that Mil-collagae, Miltiades valuerit. tiades had greater influence than his associates.

573. Verbs which are used impersonally in the passive with the dative of the agent, because they have no direct object in the active, are best translated by rendering the dative as the subject of the English passive; e. g.,

Vobis creditur.

You are believed.

Mihi creditur.

I am believed.

574. When two or more verbs stand together in the same compound tense, the copula esse, to be, is generally expressed with the last in Latin, and omitted with the rest; in the English translation, however, it should be expressed with the first and omitted with the others; e. g.,

Regulus captus et in vincüla conjectus est.

Regulus was taken and thrown into chains.

Second Latin Book;

COMPRISING AN HISTORICAL LATIN READER, WITH NOTES AND RULES FOR TRANSLATING, AND AN EXERCISE BOOK DEVELOPING A COMPLETE ANALYTICAL SYNTAX, IN A SERIES OF LESSONS AND EXERCISES, INVOLVING THE CONSTRUCTION, ANALYSIS, AND RECONSTRUCTION OF LATIN SENTENCES.

BY ALBERT HARKNESS, A. M.

SENIOR MASTER IN THE PROVIDENCE HIGH SCHOOL.

12mo. 362 pages. Price 90 cents.

This work is designed as a sequel to the author's "First Latin Book." It comprises a complete analytical syntax, exhibiting the essential structure of the Latin language, from its simplest to its most expanded and elaborate form.

The arrangement of the lessons is decidedly philosophical, gradually progressive, and in strict accordance with the law of development of the human mind. Every new principle is stated in simple, clear, and accurate language, and illustrated by examples carefully selected from the reading lessons, which the student is required to translate, analyze, and reconstruct. He is also exercised in forming new Latin sentences on given models. This, while it gives variety and interest to what would otherwise be in the highest degree monotonous, completely fixes in the mind the subject of the lesson, both by analysis and synthesis.

The careful study of this volume, on the plan recommended by the author, will greatly facilitate the pupil's progress in the higher departments of the language. Such is the testimony of the numerous institutions in which Harkness's improved edition of Arnold has been introduced.

From J. A. SPENCER, D. D., late Professor of Latin in Burlington College, N. J.

"The present volume appears to me to carry out excellently the system on which the late lamented Arnold based his educational works; and in the Selections for Reading, the Notes and Rules for Translating, the Exercises in Translating into Latin, the Analyses, &c., I think it admirably adapted to advance the diligent student not only rapidly, but soundly, in an acquaintance with the Latin language."

From PROF. GAMMELL, of Brown University.

"The book seems to me, as I anticipated it would be, a valuable addition to the works now in use among teachers of Latin in the schools of the United States, and for many of them it will undoubtedly form an advantageous substitute."

From PROF. LINCOLN, of Brown University.

"It seems, to me, to carry on most successfully the method pursued in the First Book. Though brief, it is very comprehensive, and combines judicious and skilfully formed exercises with systematic instruction."

From J. J. OWEN, D. D. Professor of the Latin and Greek Languages and Literature in the Free Academy, New York.

"This Second Latin Book gives abundant evidence of the author's learning and tact to arrange, simplify, and make accessible to the youthful mind the great and fundamental principles of the Latin language. The book is worthy of a place in every classical school, and I trust will have an extensive sale."

From PROF. ANDERSON, of Lewisburg University, Pennsylvania.

"A faithful use of the work would diminish the drudgery of the student's earlier studies, and facilitate his progress in his subsequent course. I wish the work a wide circulation."

HARKNESS, A. M., PRINCIPAL OF THE CLASSICAL DEPARTMENT IN THE

Just Published by

D. APPLETON AND COMPANY, NEW-YORK.

THIS work is designed as a sequel to the author's "FIRST LATIN Book," recently published, and has already acquired a wide reputation. It comprises a complete analytical syntax, exhibiting the sentential structure of the Latin language, from its simplest to its most expanded and modified form.

The arrangement of the lessons is decidedly philosophical, gradually progressive, and we believe in strict accordance with the law of development of the human mind. Every new principle is stated in simple, clear and accurate language, and illustrated by examples carefully selected from the reading lessons which the student is required to translate, analyze and reconstruct—he is also exercised in forming new Latin sentences on given models. This, while it gives variety and interest to what would otherwise be in the highest degree monotonous, completely fixes in the mind the subject of the lesson both by analysis and synthesis.

Opinions of Distinguished and Practical Instructors.

From W. S. TYLER, Professor of Languages in Amherst College.

Among the chief merits of Harkness' Second Book are the following:

1. It happily unites the analytic and the synthetic methods, and requires the pupil to turn Latin into English, and also English into Latin, in every lesson. Neither of these methods is complete without the other.
2. It points out, with clearness and correctness, the differences between the two languages as to idiom, construction, &c., and teaches the scholar at once to use idiomatic English, and to write pure Latin.
3. The Rules for Translating are concise, perspicuous and judicious—well selected and well expressed. The editor teaches by example, also, a neat and free, but now coarse or inaccurate style of translation.

4. The analysis of the structure of sentences is eminently philosophical and at the same time sufficiently simple and intelligible for beginners. This is one of the most striking excellencies of the book.

5. The notes furnish the right kind of guidance and assistance, showing the student what to do and how to do it, but not doing it for him.

I am so well pleased with the book, that I shall put my own boy into it; and I predict for it unusual success.

From J. J. OWEN, D. D., Professor of the Latin and Greek Languages and Literature in the Free Academy, New-York.

I am happy to express to you my high sense of the value of Prof. Harkness' labors in the cause of classical learning, especially in the Elementary Latin books which he has edited for your publishing house. His "Second Latin Book" gives abundant evidence of his learning, and tact to arrange, simplify, and make accessible to the youthful mind the great and fundamental principles of the Latin language. The book is worthy of a place in every classical school, and I trust will have an extensive sale.

From the Rev. J. A. SPENCER, D. D., late Professor of Latin and Oriental Languages in Burlington College, New Jersey.

I have given some attention to the "Second Latin Book" of Mr. Harkness, and am happy to find it all that the public had reason to expect from the high reputation acquired by Mr. H.'s previous labors. The present volume appears to me to carry out excellently the system on which the late lamented Arnold based his educational works; and in the Selections for Reading, the Notes and Rules for Translating, the Exercises in Translating into Latin, the Analyses, &c., I think it admirably adapted to advance the diligent student, not only rapidly but soundly, in an acquaintance with the Latin language.

From DR. CASWELL, Regent of Brown University.

Accept my very sincere thanks for the copy of "Harkness' Second Latin Book," which you had the kindness to send me. I have looked it over so far as to be satisfied that it will be a very useful book.

From PROF. GAMMELL, of Brown University.

The examination has led me to form a most favorable estimate of the plan of the work, and also of the manner in which it has been executed. The book seems to me, as I anticipated it would be, a valuable addition to the works now in use among teachers of Latin in the schools of the United States, and for many of them it will undoubtedly form an advantageous substitute.

From PROF. LINCOLN, of Brown University.

I have examined with great satisfaction the copy of Harkness' Second Latin Book. It seems to me to carry on most successfully the method pursued in the First Book. Though brief, it is very comprehensive, and combines judicious and skilfully formed exercises with systematic instruction.

From S. BELDEN, Principal of the Fruit Hill Classical Institute, R. I.

The perusal of your Second Latin Book has given me much satisfaction. In my experience as a classical teacher, I have long felt the need of a work of this kind, elucidating more fully than is usually done in Latin Grammar the nature and structure of Latin sentences, especially those that are complex and of more difficult construction. I think that you have been very successful in making plain and easy this most difficult and yet very important part of Latin Syntax. While, therefore, I am pleased with the reading extracts, I am especially so with the syntactical exercises. I shall at once introduce the work into my school.

From G. E. JACKSON, Classical Instructor in the Boarding School, Alexandria, Va.

If Mr. Harkness' work will not make *swif*t Latin students, it will at least make Morough ones. It seems better adapted to introduce a student to Cicero than any other work, and might, perhaps, be usefully substituted in the room of Caesar and Nepos.

From N. B. COOKE, Principal of the High School, Bristol, R. I.

Harkness' Second Latin Book has completed the work which his First so admirably began,—the development of a lucid and truly philosophical method of introducing the young pupil to the knowledge of the Latin. Such a work has hitherto been a desideratum. With these books, I conceive that the teacher will desire nothing more to cover the same ground.

From PROF. HAVEN, of the University of Michigan.

I admire in this book the perspicuity and natural order of the rules, its correctness, sufficient fulness, and freedom from redundancy, and, at the same time, its beautiful typography. I am fully convinced that a faithful use of the First and Second Latin Books will place the pupil securely on the right track, and facilitate, more than any other elementary treatises with which I am acquainted, his thorough understanding of the language.

I heartily wish that all students preparing for this college would study both books thoroughly.

From PROF. ANDERSON, of Lewisburg University, Pa.

I am happy to be able to express my high gratification, both with the plan and the execution of the work. The simplicity, yet thoroughness, with which each successive grammatical point is treated, peculiarly adapts it for those who are striving to master both the form and the spirit of the language. A faithful use of the work would diminish the drudgery of the student's earlier studies, and facilitate his progress in his subsequent course. I wish the work a wide circulation.

From A. P. S. STUART, Principal of the Holton High School, N. Danvers, Mass.

Your Second Latin Book is what I was prepared to expect from the character of your First Book—a lucid development of the structure of the Latin sentence, embracing at once what is sufficient, and yet no more than is necessary to give the pupil a clear and comprehensive view of the structure of the language. I shall recommend its introduction into my school.

From DAVID TURNER, Principal of the Select Classical and English School, Richmond, Va.

I have examined your Second Latin Book with care, and beg to say that I regard it as a valuable contribution to the cause of sound classical learning. In the Latin text, and in the Exercises in Grammatical Analysis which it contains, it is an admirable introduction to the study of the classic authors.

From E. L. HART, Principal of the English & Classical School, Farmington, Conn.

I have examined the Second Latin Book just published by the Messrs. Appleton, with much care and great pleasure. I like its plan,—the union of Reading Lessons in Latin with Exercises in the analysis and reconstruction of Latin sentences, and in translations from English into Latin. It is the true way of teaching Latin. The Exercises are remarkable for their simplicity and clearness, and lead on the scholar step by step from first principles in their simplest forms to their more complicated combinations in a manner most thorough and easily comprehended, till the perfect structure of the Latin language is gradually wrought out before him.

From J. W. FAIRB, Principal of the Classical Institute, Philadelphia.

In my opinion, Harkness' Second Latin Book is an excellent manual. The epitomes of Roman and Grecian history which constitute the Reader are decidedly superior in Latinity to those which have hitherto been in use. While the style is very concise, it is also clear, and the narrative sufficiently connected to be interesting. The notes are especially worthy of commendation, since they not only furnish translation of difficult words and passages, but also by the frequent references to grammars, direct the attention of the learner to the distinction of the moods and the structure and idioms of the language.

From J. F. CADY, Principal of the High School, Warren, R. I.

As no Latin book has yet appeared so suitable for beginners as your First Book, so there is nothing so suitable for a sequel to it as your Second Book. I regard the presentation of the parallel Latin and English idioms in both books as an invaluable feature, conducive alike to a clear and satisfactory understanding of the Latin, and to precision and elegance in translating into English. The First and Second Latin Books are altogether unrivalled; they will bear all reasonable tests, and will be more fully appreciated the more fully they are understood.

From R. S. HOWARD, Principal of the Girls' High School, Bangor.

I have examined the work as far as I have been able, and am much pleased with it. I think it admirably adapted to accomplish the purpose for which it is designed. It will, I have no doubt, have a wide circulation.

From G. CAPRON, Principal of the Worcester High School.

The exercises which are to be studied in connection with the reading lessons render the Second Latin Book invaluable for the young scholar. The pupil who goes through these exercises, in accordance with the design of the author, must, of necessity, carefully study the text, and, by a constant repetition of the words and sentences, become familiar with the vocabulary, and fix in the mind the construction and idioms of the language. The book seems to me admirably adapted to introduce the scholar to the study of the classic authors.

From R. S. JAMES, Principal of the High School, Norwalk, Conn.

In substituting the concise histories of the Roman Empire and of Greece for the ridiculous mythology and trifling anecdotes of former Readers, you have rendered an incalculable service to the minds of the young. But the chief excellence of the work consists in the superior manner in which the principles of the grammar are developed and illustrated. Your series is used in this institution, and we find it a pleasure to teach with such books.

From V. G. WALKER, Principal of the East Corinth Academy, Maine.

Harkness' Second Latin Book is just what is needed in our schools. I think it the most thorough and complete work on the construction of Latin sentences I have ever seen. I believe it well calculated to interest the scholar in those parts commonly dry and difficult, and by a series of progressive exercises to give a great amount of knowledge with less than the ordinary amount of study.

From S. H. TAYLOR, Principal of Phillips' Academy, Andover, Mass.

The author, who is a very successful teacher, has just views of the manner in which the Latin should be studied, and has clearly and happily embodied these in his book, which in all its parts is well executed, and I regard it as very happily adapted to give the pupil who will faithfully study it critical and comprehensive views of the Latin language.

Select Orations of M. Tullius Cicero

WITH NOTES, FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

BY E. A. JOHNSON,
PROFESSOR OF LATIN IN THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK.

12mo. 459 pages. Price $1.

This edition of Cicero's Select Orations possesses some special advantages for the student which are both new and important. It is the only edition which contains the improved text that has been prepared by a recent careful collation and correct deciphering of the best manuscripts of Cicero's writings. It is the work of the celebrated Orelli, Madvig, and Klotz, and has been done since the appearance of Orelli's complete edition. The Notes, by Professor Johnson, of the New York University, have been mostly selected, with great care, from the best German authors, as well as the English edition of Arnold.

From Thomas Chase, Tutor in Latin in Harvard University.

"An edition of Cicero like Johnson's has long been wanted; and the excellence of the text, the illustrations of words, particles, and pronouns, and the explanation of various points of construction and interpretation, bear witness to the Editor's familiarity with some of the most important results of modern scholarship, and entitle his work to a large share of public favor."

"It seems to us an improvement upon any edition of these orations that has been published in this country, and will be found a valuable aid in their studies to the lovers of classical literature."—Troy Daily Whig,

Cicero de Officiis,

WITH ENGLISH NOTES, MOSTLY TRANSLATED FROM ZUMPT AND BONNELL,

BY THOMAS A. THACHER, OF YALE COLLEGE.

12mo. 184 pages. Price 90 Cents.

In this edition, a few historical notes have been introduced in cases where the Dictionary in common use have not been found to contain the desired information; the design of which is to aid the learner in understanding the contents of the treatise, the thoughts and reasoning of the author, to explain grammatical difficulties, and inculcate a knowledge of grammatical principles. The Editor has aimed throughout to guide rather than carry the learner through difficulties; requiring of him more study, in consequence of his help, than he would have devoted to the book without it.

From M. L. Stover, Professor of the Latin Language and Literature in Penn. College.

"I have examined with much pleasure Prof. Thacher's edition of Cicero de Officiis, and am convinced of its excellence. The Notes have been prepared with great care and good judgment. Practical knowledge of the wants of the student has enabled the Editor to furnish just the kind of assistance required; grammatical difficulties are removed, and the obscurities of the treatise are explained, the interest of the learner is elicited, and his industry directed rather than superseded. There can be but one opinion with regard to the merits of the work, and I trust that Professor Thacher will be disposed to continue his labors so carefully commenced, in this department of classical learning."

Greek Ollendorff;

BEING A PROGRESSIVE EXHIBITION OF THE PRINCIPLES OF THE GREEK GRAMMAR.

BY ASAHEL C. KENDRICK,

PROFESSOR OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE IN THE UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER.

12mo. 371 pages. Price $1.

The present work is what its title indicates, strictly an Ollendorff, and aims to apply the methods which have proved so successful in the acquisition of the modern languages to the study of Ancient Greek, with such differences as the different genius of the Greek, and the different purposes for which it is studied, suggest. It differs from the modern Ollendorffs in containing exercises for reciprocal translation, in confining them within a smaller compass, and in a more methodical exposition of the principles of the language.

The leading object of the author was to furnish a book which should serve as an Introduction to the study of Greek, and precede the use of any grammar. It will therefore be found, although not claiming to embrace all the principles of the Grammar, yet complete in itself, and will lead the pupil, by insensible gradations, from the simpler constructions to those which are more complicated and difficult. The exceptions, and the more idiomatic forms, it studiously avoids, aiming only to exhibit the regular and ordinary usages of the language as the proper starting-point for the student's further researches.

In presenting these, the author has aimed to combine the strictest accuracy with the utmost simplicity of statement. His work is therefore adapted to a younger class of pupils than have usually engaged in the study of Greek, and will, it is hoped, win to the acquisition of that noble tongue many in our academies and primary schools who have been repelled by the less simple character of our ordinary text-books.

BY JAMES R. BOISE,

PROFESSOR OF GREEK IN THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

12mo. 185 pages. Price 75 Cents.

These Exercises consist of easy sentences, similar to those in the Anabasis, in having the same words and constructions, and are designed by frequent repetition to make the learner familiar with the language of Xenophon. Accordingly, the chapters and sections in both are made to correspond. No exercises can be more improving than those in this volume; obliging the student as they do, by analysis and synthesis, to master the constructions employed by one of the purest of Greek writers, and imbuing him with the spirit of one of the greatest historians of all antiquity.

By J. T. CHAMPLIN.

PROFESSOR OF GREEK AND LATIN IN WATERVILLE COLLEGE

12mo. 208 pages. Price 75 cents.

In compiling this grammar, Prof. Champlin has drawn upon the best critics and grammarians, and with the results of his research has interwoven much original matter suggested during several years' experience in teaching, and editing Greek authors. His design is to exhibit the essential facts and principles of the language in the clearest, briefest, and most practicable form possible. With this view, all theories and complications belonging to general grammar have been avoided, and only their results used. The amplification and illustration of principles have been carried only so far as is necessary to their comprehension. In this way all the real wants of the Greek student are met, while his attention is not distracted by unnecessary and embarrassing details. Materials for oral exercises are supplied, and a sketch of Greek versification is given in an appendix.

From the Rev. Mr. ANDERSON, New Orleans.

"I believe the author has fully accomplished what he proposes in his preface. To those wishing to study Greek, I am satisfied he has presented a book which will much tend to simplify the study to beginners—and at the same time, without being too voluminous, presents as lucid and full an exposition of the principles of the language, as can be contained within so small a compass.

Kuhner's Greek Grammar,

TRANSLATED BY

PROFESSORS EDWARDS AND TAYLOR.

Large 12mo. 620 pages. Price $1 50.

Kuhner's is universally acknowledged to be the most accurate, comprehensive, clear, and practical grammar of the Greek language now extant. It is the work of one who devoted his life to Greek philology, and spent years of patient labor in perfecting this work. Too full and learned for the beginner, it is just what is needed for the college curriculum, containing all that a book of reference should contain. The student will never appeal to its pages in vain. In fulness of illustration, copiousness of reference, and philosophical analysis of the various forms of language, it is unsurpassed, we might say unequalled.

The present translation is made by two distinguished American scholars, who have revised the whole, verified the references, and appended an original treatise of their own on Greek versification. As now presented to the public, it is believed to be as perfect a grammar of the Greek language as enlightened research and profound scholarship can produce.

BY JAMES R. BOISE,
PROFESSOR OF GREEK IN THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

12mo. 393 pages. Price $1.

A handsome and convenient edition of this great classic, really adapted to the wants of schools, has long been needed; the want is here met by Professor Boise in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired. Decidedly the best German editions, whether text or commentary be considered, have appeared within the last few years; and of these Mr. Boise has made free use; while, at the same time, he has not lost sight of the fact that the classical schools of this country are behind those of Germany, and that simpler and more elementary explanations are therefore often necessary in a work prepared for American schools. Nothing has been put in the notes for the sake of a mere display of learning,—pedantry is out of place in a school-book; and nothing has been introduced by way of comment except what can be turned to practical use by the reader.

An historical introduction, which will enable the pupil to enter on his task intelligently, is prefixed. An abundance of geographical information, embodying the latest discoveries of travellers, is supplied; and the whole is illustrated with Kiepert's excellent map, showing the entire route of the ten thousand on their retreat.

From DR. WILLIAM SMITH, London, Author of "History of Greece," "Dictionary of Antiquities," &c. &c.

"I am very much obliged to you for a copy of your edition of Xenophon's Anabasis, which I have carefully inspected, and think to be decidedly the best edition of the work I have hitherto seen, for school and college purposes."

Xenophon's Memorabilia of Socrates

WITH NOTES AND AN INTRODUCTION.

BY R. D. C. ROBBINS,
PROFESSOR OF LANGUAGES IN MIDDLESEX COLLEGE, VERMONT.

This will be found an exceedingly useful book for College classes. The text is large and distinct, the typography accurate, and the notes judicious and scholarly. Instead of referring the student to a variety of books, few of which are within his reach, the editor has wisely supplied whatever is necessary. An admirable treatise on the Life of Socrates introduces the work, and English and Greek Indexes render it easy to refer to the text and notes.

From PROF. HARRISON, University of Virginia.

"The Notes contain, in much detail, the grammatical and other explanations, which it would be convenient for the learner to have placed before him, instead of having to refer to various books. I have no doubt that the Notes are very carefully prepared, and in accordance with the best authorities."

PRACTICAL INTRODUCTION TO GREEK PROSE COMPOSITION. 12mo. 287 pages. Price 75 cents.

GREEK READING BOOK. CONTAINING THE SUBSTANCE OF THE PRACTICAL INTRODUCTION TO GREEK CONSTRUING, AND A TREATISE ON THE GREEK PARTICLES; ALSO, COPIOUS SELECTIONS FROM GREEK AUTHORS, WITH CRITICAL AND EXPLANATORY ENGLISH NOTES, AND A LEXICON. 12mo. 618 pages
Price $1.25.

A complete, thorough, practical, and easy Greek course is here presented. The beginner commences with the "First Book," in which the elementary principles of the language are unfolded, not in abstract language, difficult both to comprehend and to remember, but as practically applied in sentences. Throughout the whole, the pupil sees just where he stands, and is taught to use and apply what he learns. His progress is, therefore, as rapid as it is intelligent and pleasant. There is no unnecessary verbiage, nor is the pupil's attention diverted from what is really important by a mass of minor details. It is the experience of teachers who use this book, that with it a given amount of Greek Grammar can be imparted to a pupil in a shorter time and with far less trouble than with any other text-book.

The "First Book" may with advantage be followed by the "Introduction to Greek Prose Composition." The object of this work is to enable the student, as soon as he can decline and conjugate with tolerable facility, to translate simple sentences after given examples and with given words; the principles employed being those of imitation and very frequent repetition. It is at once a Syntax, a Vocabulary, and an Exercise book. The "Second Part" carries the subject further, unfolding the most complicated constructions, and the nicest points of Latin Syntax. A Key is provided for the teacher's use.

The "Reader," besides extracts judiciously selected from the Greek classics, contains valuable instructions to guide the learner in translating and construing, and a complete exposition of the particles, their signification and government. It is a fitting sequel to the earlier parts of the course, everywhere showing the hand of an acute critic, an accomplished scholar, and an experienced teacher.

From the Rev. DR. COLEMAN, Professor of Greek and Latin, Princeton, N. J.

"I can, from the most satisfactory experience, bear testimony to the excellencies of your series of Text-Books for Schools. I am in the daily use of Arnold's Latin and Greek Exercises, and consider them decidedly superior to any other Elementary Works in those Languages."
