OFFICE OF THE STATE TAX COMMISSIONER.

Olympia, Washington.

October 15, 1922.

Honorable Louis F. Hart, Governor of Washington, Olympia, Washington.

Sir: I have the honor to submit herewith the Third Biennial Report of the State Tax Department, covering the fiscal period beginning October 1, 1920, and ending September 30, 1922.

Respectfully submitted,

J. M. THATCHER,

Supervisor of Taxation.

In the compilation of the tables and statistics contained in this report, we have sought to avoid duplication of the statistical information contained in the annual reports of the State Board of Equalization, the tables in this report being cumulative and for the purpose of comparison.

The tables contained in this report, taken in connection with the annual reports of the State Board of Equalization for years 1920 and 1922, will, we believe, furnish complete statistical information relative to assessment and taxation for the biennial period.

STATE SUPERVISOR OF TAXATION.

The general property assessment system of the state is deserving of intense legislative consideration. Greater authority for the direction and control of assessments should be reposed in the tax department, and more liberal provisions made for field work. Administrative changes and varying legislative policies had not contributed to the execution of any plan contemplating stability in the method of obtaining and preserving the data that the tax department should gather each year for the enlightenment of the State Board of Equalization, until 1920, when the plan of securing and preserving bona fide sales records for each county in the state was adopted. The task of compiling in every county a complete record of the bona fide property transfers, was beset by difficulties, but in assuming this labor the tax department has paved the way to a more practical realization of the general incompetence of the present assessment system.

It is significant of the increasing stability of improved land values throughout the state, that in spite of the process of deflation, this class of property retained a relative high average of sales prices for 1921, with the exception of the few counties in the drought area where dry wheat farming has received a set-back. In some instances these lands have been reclassified as grazing or unimproved, and their assessed valuations reduced.

In order to establish and develop to a higher state of perfection, the system now pursued by the state tax department in promoting the judicial administration of state assessments, a more thorough field examination of property sales and transfers in the several classifications should be provided for legislatively. In pursuit of the facts used in equalizing the general property assessments, the Wisconsin Tax Commission has the constant service in the field of the district income tax supervisors, as well as a bureau of inspection and examination. In this respect our own state tax department is handicapped.

FEDERAL AND STATE VALUATIONS.

The census takers of 1920 have proved abundantly that owners of land and enumerated personal property maintain on the one hand a much higher appraisal of their possession than is found by the assessors; and in confidence give to the representative of the federal census bureau such accurate information regarding their personal property holdings as indicates a lesser state assessment valuation of at least 30 per cent. From the valuation bulletins issued by the census bureau, the tax department was enabled to make advisory comparisons with our state assessment statistics, suggesting:

1. That the federal census agents found more improved land acreage than is registered in our assessment records.
2. That the federal census appraisal of the acreage value of these lands exceeds, by very large percentages in some counties, the assessed acreage valuation as demonstrated by the ratio method.
3. That both the number of all classes of stock on farms and in cities, and the unit values thereof, exceed by 30 per cent the number and values of this class of property as assessed.

Because of physical, soil and climate contrarities, the State of Washington presents an unusually complicated problem of property classification and assessment. The tentative attempts of some states to adjust ratios in following the path pioneered by the Wisconsin tax experts are concentrated as yet on determining the actual value of land and improvements. The ratio thus obtained from the current value of land as compared with assessed value is applied to the other general property of the state. This policy is a violation of the principle of uniformity and if followed in our own state would reduce the average ratio at least ten points. In Washington we have adopted the more approved judicial method of ascertaining as near as may be the ratio of assessed to actual value in each of the seven classifications of the general property of each county, finding from that premise the estimated 100 per cent valuation of each classification in each county, then adding together the estimated actual values and dividing the sum total for each county into the sum total of assessment. In this manner we obtain as a result the compound ratio of the county unit, which is to be applied in equalizing the general property of the state.

This considerate process lacks complete fulfillment of its purpose, because of an insufficiency of correct data in two of the property classifications—timber lands and personal. The other classes of property are of record, and the movements in their valuations may be traced with some degree of certainty.

Timber assessments, however, are elusive, in that the cruise valuations of the several counties—and some counties have no cruise—are defective and out of date, and for the further reason that in some counties timber valuations are assessed apart from the land, while in others the assessment of timber and land is combined. Timber sold apart from the land is occasionally picked up by the assessor from the warranty deed or contract records, and assessed as personal property; and sometimes operators who purchase timber from the state school and land grants, so time their applications to buy that they log off the land before the assessor can get the property on the personal rolls. On the other hand, large timber holdings in some counties are assessed on excessive valuation estimates.

As an illustration of the timber values that elude assessment, the recent recruising of Cowlitz County will suffice. This was one of the counties that originally adopted the cruising and assessment plan promoted by the first tax commission. Its assessment report for 1919 showed 260,763 acres of timber land, assessed for $4,153,871 or $15.93 an acre. The recruise was decided upon by the county commissioners that year, and as a result the assessment report of Cowlitz County for 1921 disclosed 301,299 acres of timber land, valued at $9,511,362, or $31.57 per acre. The second cruise, therefore, added 41,536 acres to the assessable timber area; $5,357,491 to the assessable wealth of the county, and more than doubled the acreage value.

It is somewhat of a reflection on our assessment and taxation system that federal agents, during census taking periods, seem to discover large assessable resources that escape the tax rolls. For example, the census of 1920 reveals that for 1919 the capital invested in manufacturing in Washington was $553,125,000; that the material investment was $443,202,000, and that the value of manufactured products that year was $809,635,000. As against this marvelous showing, the personal property assessment of 1920 revealed a decrease in the assessed value of manufacturers' materials and manufactured articles of $133,223 from a total of $4,041,001 in 1919 to $3,907,878, while the increased assessment of machinery, tools, implements, etc., increased only $561,479—from $15,575,800 to $16,137,279. If we add to the assessed valuations of the above described personal property the increased assessment of all municipal property in the state ($24,013,790) we have as a result a total assessment of $43,058,947, as against a material investment of $443,202,000, and a product valuation of $809,635,000.

The inefficiency of the personal property assessment is strikingly illustrated by a comparison of the 1910 and 1920 records. It appears from the following table that with a net increase for the ten years of $96,319,714, and with 48 items in the personal property assessment, only four items, (1) automobiles and trucks, (2) merchandise, (3) manufacturing machinery, tools, materials, etc., (4) gas, electric light and power, water, telephones, represent $78,804,813, or 82.24 per cent of the total. If we add to these the assessment of hay and grain, lumber, and logging equipment, the increase in these seven items of the 48 is $90,974,281, or 94.94 per cent of the total increase of the personal property assessment during the decade. Although within this period the building investment on municipal property shows an increased assessment of $43,336,032, the assessment of household furniture, including clocks, rugs, gold and silver plate, paintings, etc., decreased $8,676.

ANALYSIS OF THE PROPERTY TAX BURDEN.

The general property segregations of the burden of taxation in the State of Washington are unusual when reviewed in the east and west geographical segments. For an analytical study of the subject, the accompanying percentage table, based on the tax levies of 1921 and showing the classification units in each county, arranged in geographical divisions, has been prepared. From this percentage chart it will appear that improved lands and improvements bear 49.35 per cent of the tax load in Eastern Washington, and only 9.99 in Western. In spite of the manufacturing, navigation and other personal property developments of the Puget Sound and coast regions, which contain two-thirds of our population, personal property in Eastern Washington bears 22.42 per cent, as against 20.37 per cent in the western division. On the other hand, the municipal property of the east side represents only 17.85 per cent of the tax value, or 4.57 per cent less than personal property—while the same class of property in Western Washington carries 48.09 per cent, or nearly half the burden. What is still more significant is the fact that municipal improvements in Eastern Washington carry 15.40 per cent, as against 2.45 per cent on city lots, or six and one-third as many times—while in Western Washington, city lot valuations bear 31.25 per cent of the taxes, as against 16.85 per cent for improvements; or nearly twice as much as the improvements. This difference of assessment policy in the municipal areas does not make for equality, and discloses a lack of the uniformity required by law. However, it adds no complication to the ratio problem, since the municipal ratios are decided on the basis of the bona fide sales of lots and improvements as unit valuations. If we include timber and improved land values with those of improved lands and improvements, these classifications in Eastern Washington take care of 59.73 per cent, as against 31.54 per cent on the west side.

Following are the tables in detail:

MUNICIPAL PROPERTY ASSESSMENTS.

Primarily considering municipal property, which carries 36.72 per cent of the total load of taxation in the state, and 48.09 per cent in Western Washington in adopting the pre-war and post-war periods for comparison, we discover that between 1914 and 1920 the aggregate value of city lots decreased $17,548,559, or 6.59 per cent, while municipal improvements increased $25,070,281, or 19.52 per cent. Here is a decided backward movement in the assessed valuation of the land property in cities, in denial of the theory that improvements enhance land values. Moreover, the millions of assessments made in the municipal improvement districts are not reflected in increased property values, since the only increase of value is the assessment of capital investment in buildings. In the three major counties in which are located Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, the decrease in the assessed valuation of city lots was $18,710,963.

The following table shows in detail the increase and decrease of the assessed valuation of city lots and improvements:

ASSESSMENT OF IMPROVED LANDS.

The total assessed valuation of improved lands in 1914 was $157,502,254 and in 1920 the assessment was $198,520,690, with a net gain of $41,018,436, or 26.04 per cent. By reclassification, the loss in improved land acreage was 49,691 acres. Improved lands bear 20.15 per cent of the tax burden of the state, but in the geographical divisions the improved lands of Eastern Washington represent 42.63 per cent, while those of Western Washington carry only 6.80 per cent of the load. Despite the fact that in Eastern Washington are more than half a million acres of irrigated lands, including the highly productive orchard and alfalfa areas, the average acre assessed valuation of improved lands is only $30.12, as against $68.42 per acre on the west side. Assuming an average assessed valuation of $100 per acre for the orchard and other irrigated lands, and deducting for 529,829 acres of this class, the sum of $52,982,900 deducted from the total improved land assessment of $156,199,293, for Eastern Washington in 1920, we have an assessment of $103,206,393 on 5,465,206 acres of improved lands, or an assessed average of $18.89 per acre. Allowing an assessable value of $75 an acre for the irrigated lands, which are only 88,753 acres less than the entire improved land area of Western Washington, the average assessed valuation of the Eastern Washington wheat lands would be only $21.21.

The foregoing facts, taken into consideration with the constantly receding movement in the assessment valuation of municipal lands, raise a question as to whether the real property of the state has been advanced in potential value commensurately with the tax investment in highways, district improvement investments and municipal betterments. Since 1910 the highways taxes and bond investments, county and state, aggregate $120,000,000, while the assessed valuation of improved lands has increased only $14,755,842, municipal property $30,986,753, and unimproved lands $13,661,592, or a total of $59,304,187. As before pointed out, the increase in city valuation is building investment, which shows the highest rate of investment, so that within the last decade the growth of population, development of resources and the highway expenditure of $120,000,000 are represented in the productive areas of the state by an increased assessment of $28,417,434.

The average per acre assessed value of Eastern Washington improved lands has increased, 1914-1920, from $19.88 to $27.72, or $7.84, and the assessed per acre value of this class of property in Western Washington has in the same period advanced from $63.18 to $68.42, or $5.24 an acre. The average per acre assessed value for the state is $23.64 in 1914 and $30.02 in 1920, or an increase of $6.38. Following is the detailed statement of these comparative assessments:

PERSONAL PROPERTY ASSESSMENT.

Personal property, more than any other class, seems to have been affected in its assessment by the extravagant impulses of the time, until we scrutinize and compare the items in the schedule. The increased personal property assessment, 1914-1920, was for the state, $95,204,083, or 76.89 per cent increase; 91.07 per cent in Eastern Washington and 68.76 per cent increase on the west side. This assessment was by no means equitably distributed, inasmuch as $83,547,752, or 87.75 per cent of the total increase was placed on merchandise, hay and grain, lumber, logs, shingles, etc., gas, electric light, etc. In the meantime, while these particular items in the personal property list showed advanced assessments, the assessment on household goods, etc., decreased from $17,036,456 to $16,055,493, or $980,963; on libraries, books, scientific instruments, etc., from $794,030 to $682,230, or $111,800; and on diamonds, jewelry, watches, firearms, etc., from $1,077,837 to $897,108, or $180,729. The increased volume of assessment in short was attributable to the easy location of new property, and was not due to the influence of increased general values, or to the enforcement of the 50 per cent assessment law.

With 1920 the peak year for the general property assessment, the total of comparative equalized valuations for 1922 shows a falling off, approximately, of six and one-half per cent. During this period the slump in personal property assessed valuations, as reported from the counties, was $38,390,665, or 17.53 per cent.

IRRIGATED LAND STATISTICS.

The census report on irrigated lands shows a total of 529,829 acres in the state, and although 22 counties contain fractions of this amount, Yakima possesses 230,033 acres, or 43 per cent; and 84.87 per cent of the total is located in Yakima, Benton, Kittitas, Chelan, Okanogan and Walla Walla counties. In the counties of the Yakima drainage, Kittitas, Yakima and Benton are 351,272 of these valuable acres, or 66.3 per cent. It will appear from the following comparative table that in Benton county 9,247, and in Yakima 76,786 acres, irrigated lands, are not on the assessment rolls, but this acreage in all probability is non-assessable reservation lands under irrigation.

It is evident from the foregoing table, that irrigation developments are such as to justify a special classification of this property for assessment purposes as distinct from ordinarily improved lands. Indeed, one of the important problems awaiting solution by a more centralized and responsible assessment administration for the state is a reclassification of both the improved and unimproved land areas.
